POLICE STEM RUSH TO HEAR DR. BROWN DEFEND HIS BELIEFS

Bishop Refuses to Criticize His Judges, but Says He Cannot Accept Bible Literally.

SEES MUCH AS ALLEGORY

CROWDS ARE TURNED AWAY

Hundreds Stay to Cheer Clergyman Under Fire When He Leaves Community Church.

So many persons wanted to hear Bishop William Montgomery Brown deliver the address he was prevented from delivering last Sunday in St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie that when the Community Church, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth, was opened for them last night a crowd stormed its doors. The auditorium was filled quickly.

A few minutes after 7 o'clock a squad of a dozen patrolmen took charge of the crowd that was unable to gain admittance, forcing it back and enabling the iron gates of the edifice in Thirty-fourth Street to be closed. Would-be auditors made a rush for the other entrance on Park Avenue and the police were needed here also to clear the sidewalk. Several hundred persons remained in front of the church through the service and cheered the aged Bishop when he emerged.

Bishop Brown was to have made his first pulpit appearance in New York since his conviction of heresy by an ecclesiastical tribunal last Sunday at St. Mark's Church. Dr. William Norman Guthrie, rector of that church, bowed to an order of Bishop Manning forbidding Bishop Brown to speak at St. Mark's or any church in the diocese. John Haynes Holmes, minister of the Community Church, thereupon invited him to make the forbidden address in his church last night. The Community Church has no connection with St. Mark's or the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Dr. Brown is the retired Bishop of Arkansas, who was convicted of heresy by an ecclesiastical court last June. He now awaits final disposition of his case by the House of Bishops.

Bishop Manning was criticized for his action in refusing to let Bishop Brown speak in Episcopal churches in New York both by Mr. Holmes and by Joseph W. Sharts, the other speakers of the evening. Mr. Sharts was the Bishop's counsel in his heresy trial. He joined the name of Supreme Court Justice Vernon M. Davis with that of Bishop Manning in his strictures, which the audience applauded.

Bishop Brown's appearance was greeted warmly. When he made his speech, its text coincided with his benevolent aspect. He uttered no criticism and said his judges, the Bishops, were sincere and earnest men. He spoke on "My New and Old Faiths," calling his address a sermon and using the text: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness."

Bishop Defines His Belief.

He touched on details of his trial and defined his beliefs, saying he had entirely abandoned supernaturalistic theology and interpreted the Bible as allegorical and idealistic expression when it spoke of events which could not be accepted in the light of modern scientific progress.

The meeting was opened with a prayer by Archbishop W. H. Francis of the Greek Orthodox Church, who later spoke the benediction. He was dressed in the crimson robes of his office and Bishop Brown was in full vestment. The first address was made by John Haynes Holmes. Referring to Bishop Brown's reception at the hands of Bishop Manning, he said:

"I think I catch the spirit of this assembly, representative not so much of the Community Church as of this whole great community of New York City, when I say that we have met here to protest against this arbitrary ban of excommunication leveled by one brother against another. We have a right to make this protest against this injustice and insult to a man who, if he cannot be agreed with, should at least be treated by his own brothers with courtesy, to say nothing of Christian love.

"In no sense are we intruding upon domestic concerns which are not our business. The Bishop of this diocese is now appealing to the citizens of this community, irrespective of creed, class and color, to assist him and his church in the building a great cathedral. This is done on the understanding and with the solemn public pledge that this cathedral shall be 'a house of prayer for all people.' At the first test of what this promise means, we see the ban of outlawry hurled not against an outsider but against a member of this very household of faith. As those whom the Bishop of this diocese has himself expressly invited to come to his church, we protest against his action. What does the Bishop of New York mean by 'all people' —the child of God, or such of those children as he, in his episcopal favor, deigns to recognize?

Sees Free Speech Issue.

"But there is more than protest in this meeting. There is determination and high resolve that his Grace, the Bishop of Arkansas, shall not be silenced in this community. We believe that our American ideal of free speech is valid inside as well as outside the churches. We hold that this right should be not only recognized, but jealously protected in the case of one who is under attack and condemnation from his fellows. We feel instinctively that

VIENNA, April 22.—The first account of conditions in Sofia coming from responsible foreign eyewitnesses was received here when three members of the British Parliament, Colonel J. C. Wedgwood, Labor; William Mackinder, Labor, and Major P. E. Malone, Conservative, on arrival at Belgrade tonight denounced in a signed statement the terroristic methods of the Bulgarian Government.

They declare that Bulgaria today is ruled by the Military League. Within five minutes in their presence forty prisoners were brought into the police station. The total number arrested to date was put at 6,000, most of them on mere suspicion.

The three members of Parliament point out the impossibility of all these suspects being involved in the cathedral bomb plot. They appeal to the public opinion of the civilized countries to bring to bear pressure upon the Bulgarian Government to try the prisoners before the proper courts or to discharge them.

"We are convinced," the statement says, "that a large number were shot without any trial at all."

The visitors interviewed the Bulgarian Foreign Minister, who told them that the outrage was executed by the Communists, but with the knowledge of Bulgaria's western neighbor.

In Sofia the hunt for suspects continued all day. A large number were arrested. Two prominent leaders of the Agrarians, Pfutkin, the Chief of Police under the Stambulisky regime, and Muravieff, former Minister of War, were murdered today.

100,000 Russians Reported Held.

According to reports, 100,000 Russians have been arrested in all parts of Bulgaria, regardless of whether they are Whites or Reds. Fights between Government troops and peasants took place at Kustendil.

According to a report, King Boris is practically held as a prisoner by General Lasaroff, head of the Sofia garrison, and other Generals, who now wield all the power. The King was not allowed to leave the country following an invitation from the Rumanian King to come to Sinai Castle to await events.

The King, it is said, brought down the Generals' wrath upon himself by desiring to reform the Cabinet by including the leaders of the moderate opposition and to introduce democratic reforms.

According to well-informed Yugoslav circles in Vienna, the bomb used in the cathedral outrage was sent by a special Bolshevist courier from Vienna. The informer adds that the Communists were heard to express regrets over the shortage of bombs, as they desired to make their work more radical.

The first direct charge that the Yugoslav Government had a hand in the bomb outrage in the Sofia cathedral Thursday was made yesterday by the Minister of the Interior, Roussef, at the first session of the Sobranje since the catastrophe. Reporting on the investigation, M. Roussef said that the belfringer of the cathedral had stated before the court-martial that Captain Minkoff had assured him before the explosion that he would be taken in safety across the frontier by a motor car from the Yugoslav Legation.

Less specific, but still stronger, was the accusation hurled at Yugoslavia by Premier Tsankoff.

"I'm ashamed," he said, "that there are Bulgarians who lent themselves to carry out this outrage in the service of Bulgaria's enemies. One hundred and forty men, women and children were found dead in the cathedral. We must thank Providence that Bulgaria is saved. Fourteen Generals were killed who had been spared by the enemies' bullets in the war."

In this statement the word "enemies" obviously mean Yugoslavia, as Bulgaria has never been at war with the Bolsheviki, to whom the reference otherwise might apply.

Cabinet Attends in Bandages.

The meeting of the Sobranje presented a dramatic scene as the Cabinet, headed by Premier Tsankoff walked in, all with their head, hands and legs in bandages. The Minister of War, General Vulkoff, had to be assisted to his seat by a soldier, as he could hardly walk.

The Cabinet was greeted by a storm of applause. A large number of Deputies also attended heavily bandaged. The Sobranje building was surrounded by a strong cordon of military from dawn.

Free Collins's Body in Cave; 75-Pound Rock Held Him

CAVE CITY, April 22.—The body of Floyd Collins, who died from hunger and exposure when trapped in Sand Cave late in January, today was freed from its underground prison and moved from beneath the rock that pinned it to the bottom of the seventy-foot shaft, W. H. Hunt, Central City, Ky., engineer, said early tonight.

The body was in good condition considering the time it had been exposed to the elements, Mr. Hunt said. He announced that it would be raised from the shaft to the surface at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Examination of the rock that fell on Collins and pinned him in the death trap showed that it weighed only 75 pounds, according to the engineer.

Just after two workmen had removed the body from under the small rock, the portion of the tunnel and lateral in which it was found collapsed and fell from 60 to 100 feet into a pit directly behind the spot where the body had reclined. Collins had told rescuers in the first days of his imprisonment that there was a deep pit behind him.

Two miners, E. S. Hays and J. S. Smith of Central City, were the ones who ventured into the death trap.

WHEELER DECLARES FEE CHARGE FALSE

CONCERN IN ONE OIL PERMIT

Defendant Admits Mentioning Booth in Promise Only to Inquire About It.

Special to The New York Times.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 22.—Taking the stand in his own defense today, Senator Burton K. Wheeler branded as false the charge made by the Government that while a member of the Senate he accepted money to represent Gordon Campbell, the Montana oil promoter, before the Department of the Interior.

Likewise he declared to be false the testimony of George B. Hayes, the New York lawyer, who on Monday testified that he had been asked to substitute before the Interior Department for Mr. Wheeler and had been promised one-half of whatever compensation Mr. Wheeler received.

Although Senator Wheeler categorically denied that he was retained by Gordon Campbell to be his advocate before the Department of the Interior on the issue of oil permits, he did admit, under cross-examination, having the interest of a Senator acting in behalf of a constituent in one oil permit and recalled that the name of Edwin S. Booth, then Solicitor of the Department of the Interior, came up with reference to his promise to Mr. Campbell to inquire about the matter at Washington.

The permit in question was involved in the sale of Campbell acreage to the Standard Oil Company of California. The parties to the sale were in agreement, the Senator said, and as there was no dispute he told them they should have no trouble in the Department of the Interior.

Senator Wheeler swore that the only time he ever met Mr. Hayes was in the early Spring of 1924, when Mr. Hayes was called as a witness before the Senate committee that investigated Harry M. Daugherty's administration of the Department of Justice. Mr. Hayes, he said, had been called before the committee in connection with the alleged bootlegging activities of a man named Gorini.

On March 16, 1923, the day Mr. Hayes testified, he met Mr. Wheeler in the lobby of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City, between 4 and 7 P. M., Senator Wheeler declared he could account for his every hour.

Tells of Associates on Day.

He said that throughout the day he shopped with Mrs. Wheeler and that from 5:30 to 7 P. M. they were in their room at the Waldorf-Astoria getting ready for the dinner they attended in the evening at the home of a Mrs. Griswold, where, besides Mrs. Wheeler and himself, those present included Colonel and Mrs. Edward M. House, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and Colonel Stone of the Regular Army.

Following the dinner, he said, he at-

Ex-Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, in an address here last night, predicted a disastrous increase in the cost of living unless something is done to help the farmers organize for the cooperative marketing of their products. If the present "desperate situation" of the farmers is not changed by artificial means to stabilize conditions, he went on, there will be a gradual natural change which will keep the farmers down for the present but which in fifteen or twenty years will put them on top and bring about ruinous conditions for consumers of farm products.

The former Governor was the principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association at the Waldorf-Astoria, a feature of the annual meeting of the A. N. P. A. He appealed to the publishers to use their power to mold public opinion "on behalf of the millions who still cling to the farm, but with diminished hope for the future," and to help them "to organize their great industry and thus take their rightful place in the organized world in which we live."

The speaker said that American agriculture was decaying, that farm bankruptcies had increased 600 per cent. in recent years and that farms are being abandoned in increasing number all over the United States.

Says City Lack Information.

Commenting on the contrast between the subject of his speech and its locale, Mr. Lowden said that there was perhaps no place in the United States where information on the agricultural situation was so much needed as New York City. He said he thought this was true also of the newspaper publishers, and he criticized the financial writers of the metropolitan papers, as well as magazine writers and bankers who have been interviewed on the subject, on the charge of minimizing the seriousness of the situation.

He said that since arriving in New York he had read an article saying that the farmers were better off than they had been for years.

"That would be news if it ever reached the people back on the farm," he added, caustically.

"There seems to be a concerted effort," he went on, "on the part of the financial writers on whom we must depend for our information to prove that there has been no farm depression, or that it has been exaggerated, or cured."

Mr. Lowden declared that the stabilization of agricultural prices was the greatest domestic problem now before the American people. A graph of pig-iron prices over a certain period, he said, would be represented by a straight line, while one of the price of pigs would fluctuate like a zigzag course. The reason for the disparity, he explained, was the organization of the steel industry and the lack of organization of agriculture.

Because all industries are interdependent and must be so for the sake of the country as a whole, he said, agriculture should be kept in line with other industries.

"We cannot have any permanent recovery of business prosperity," he went on, "without a return of the great basic industry of agriculture to its rightful place."

He also warned of the danger to the country in time of war if the agricultural regions should be depopulated and their inhabitants forced to flock to industrial centres.

Calls Farm Situation Desperate.

"Whatever may be the popular opinion in the cities on the subject," he continued, "the ablest farm economists generally agree that the farm situation is desperate. This they think grows out of the great disparity between the prices of the things the farmer has to sell and the prices of the things he has to buy. They can see no permanent relief until this disparity is removed.

"We are coming to learn that unrestricted competition is not clothed with all the virtues it was once thought to possess. Unrestricted competition is but a form of warfare. Whether among the nations of the world for larger armaments or among the producers of useful commodities it has been found to entail losses to society far beyond the benefits it has conferred.

"In the modern world, the farmer alone has been the last to realize the value of organization for its own sake.

TELL OF SAILORS DROWNING

SAW MANY, PINCHOT SAYS

Japanese Sailors Struggling in the Sea After Freighter Capsized, Other Travelers Declare.

Passengers of the White Star liner Homeric, which went to the rescue of the Japanese freighter Raifuku Maru and reported that she was unable to save the lives of the crew of thirty-eight when the freighter went down off Nova Scotia on Tuesday at noon, differed widely in their opinions of the rescue efforts made by the Homeric when they arrived in New York last night from Southampton. While 123 of the passengers had signed a testimonial praising Captain John Roberts for the manner in which he handled the situation, there were others who asserted that "no heroic attempt was made to save the Japanese."

Captain Roberts said he had three lifeboats on the davits and over the side of the Homeric when he arrived alongside the Japanese freighter.

"We had the boats over the side and manned," said Captain Roberts. "If there had been anybody clinging to wreckage after the Japanese ship went down I would have ordered those boats launched, although I doubt whether they could have lived in the mountainous sea that was kicked up by the gale. But I saw no one clinging to wreckage and I gave no order to lower the boats. There was nothing to be accomplished when there was no one to be saved."

Ames Pinchot's Story.

Many passengers took issue with Captain Roberts. Amos R. E. Pinchot, brother of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, was one of a large group of passengers who said they saw many Japanese sailors struggling in the raging sea after their ship turned over and disappeared. When Mr. Pinchot was informed of Captain Roberts's statement that there was no one struggling in the water after the freighter went down, he said:

"The Captain's statement was extremely inaccurate when he said there was no life in the water after the Japanese freighter capsized. I personally saw several men in the water, either swimming or being carried by the current toward the Homeric. I lost trace of them in the high waves as they drifted toward the stern of our ship.

"We steamed off almost immediately after the steamer capsized, and a great many of the passengers expressed anger and regret that the Homeric did not stand by a few minutes longer."

Mr. Pinchot said that when the Homeric steamed up to the Japanese freighter the Homeric went by her slowly on the windward side for a distance which he estimated at probably two miles. He said further:

"We backed up to a position almost to the leeward, parallel to the sinking freighter—I should say almost three-quarters of a mile—when she finally capsized. We could see men climbing over the side of the Japanese ship. Some were swept overboard, others tried to cling to the bottom of the overturned ship. We could see them with our naked eyes. People who had glasses could see them very plainly, as they were clinging to the rail. Others—many others—drifted down to within 150 to 200 yards of the stern of our ship. There were three or four in one group. They gradually dropped out of sight. We were standing still. Almost immediately after the Japanese ship was capsized we continued on our way.

Says Rafts Might Have Aided.

"I have no idea whether it was possible to launch a lifeboat. I do say, however, that I believe rafts could have been thrown overboard and allowed to drift toward the wreck. Rafts might have floated close enough to the Japanese freighter for her crew to have reached the rafts and been saved."

Mr. Pinchot made it plain that he was not suggesting that lifeboats should have been launched. He expressed grave doubt that a small boat could have survived the pounding of such tremendous seas as were raised by the northeasterly gale through which the Homeric fought her way for five hours, making a speed

Hylan Says He Will Test Constitutionality of Law, So That Millions Already Spent Won't Be 'Wasted'

When Mayor John F. Hylan, before he left the City Hall last night, was told that Governor Smith had signed the bill eliminating the freight feature from the Narrows tunnel, as recommended by Justice John V. McAvoy in the report following his transit investigation, he said:

"I shall direct the Corporation Counsel to test the constitutionality of the bill, so that the millions the people already have expended under a previous law passed by a Republican Legislature to build this tunnel will not be wasted."

In his reference to the "millions already expended" the Mayor presumably had in mind principally the $4,000,000 to $4,500,000 which it has cost to draft plans and to sink perpendicular shafts on the Brooklyn and Staten Island ends of the tunnel preparatory to driving the tube under the Narrows.

Engineers who supported the Governor, Justice McAvoy, the Transit Commission and General Goethals in their stand for using the tunnel exclusively for rapid transit contend that the money expended in the sinking of the terminal shaft has been by no means wasted, as such shafts are a necessary preliminary to driving through the tube, no matter for what purpose.

SMITH BACKS UP M'AVOY

He Holds the Mayor's Plan Is Impracticable and Extravagant.

NO BREACH OF HOME RULE

He Declares It the City's Duty to Provide Transit and the Port Authority Freight Facilities.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 22.—Over the objections of Mayor Hylan, Governor Smith today approved the Nichol-Hofstadter bill backing up Justice McAvoy's transit report and dealing a death blow to Mr. Hylan's proposal for a combined freight and passenger tunnel under the Narrows between Brooklyn and Staten Island.

In a statement explanatory of his action the Governor riddled every contention made by the Hylan Administration in favor of the Mayor's project. He declared that the original act under which the project was launched in 1921 was conceived in error and quotes ex-Governor Nathan L. Miller, who signed the first tunnel bill, to prove that what he says is true. He accuses the New York City authorities of bad faith in dealing with the Port Authority, which body was charged with the preparation of plans for a freight tunnel across Staten Island. Without evasion he meets the threat of Mayor Hylan that approval of the bill would mean that the entire project for tunnel connection between Richmond and the other boroughs would be dropped by his Administration by showing that the measure stamped with his approval leaves the city authorities free to construct a rapid transit tunnel for the relief of that borough, which the Governor pronounces the obvious thing to do.

"The business thing to do is to change the law," the Governor says. "Give to Staten Island her rapid transit tunnel at the earliest possible moment, let the freight feature be cared for under the comprehensive plan of the Port Authority, drawn to feed all five boroughs of the city, having behind it the sanction of law in this State as well as in New Jersey and having further behind it the force and power of the Interstate Commerce Commission to make it effective."

The statement is one of the most thorough ever prepared by the Governor. It is accepted here as leaving the Hylan Administration without a leg to stand on in its protests against the rapid transit tunnel and in favor of its own project for a joint freight and passenger tube.

Calls Hylan Plan Impracticable.

Governor Smith accepts the argument advanced by advocates of the bill that to run freight and rapid transit traffic through the projected tube would be impracticable, declaring the weight of engineering opinion decidedly against such a proposal. He further points out that in view of the plans worked out by the Port Authority in relation to freight traffic it would be a sheer waste on the part of the City Administration to persist in its present program.

The Governor places the cost of a rapid transit tunnel at $22,000,000. The city authorities admit that the freight and passenger tunnel conceived by Mayor Hylan would cost $60,000,000. Testimony taken before Supreme Court Justice John V. McAvoy at his investigation of the New York City transit situation indicated that the cost would reach $100,000,000. This, he says, means a saving to the tax and rent payers of New York of at least $38,886,888, as the freight tunnel proposed by the Port Authority would be paid for by tolls levied on the railroads using it.

The Governor stresses the fact that while the freight feature would add so greatly to the burden of the taxpayers, if the Hylan project were carried out, the city was going ahead with the project without assurance of being able to form a connection with any of the railroad lines reaching tidewater in New Jersey, and with every indication that the Baltimore & Ohio, the one road on which the hope of the city authorities for a supply of freight appeared to be most firmly fixed, might be forced from Staten Island by the law compelling electrification of its lines prior to Jan. 1.

Governor Asks a Question.

"What business man or what business organization would proceed with the construction of a $60,000,000 tunnel without having a single contract with any railroad to send freight through it?" the Governor asks.

"All this," he declares, "is entirely aside from the question of whether the credit of the city should be pledged for the construction of any kind of freight tunnel, particularly one for the exclusive use of a single railroad, even if that railroad had agreed to send its freight through it."

Dealing with the contention of Corporation Counsel Nicholson that the bill was an invasion of the home rule principle and Mayor Hylan's fitness to go to court and have it decreed invalid on that ground, the Governor says:

"Nobody can sustain that contention. What this bill does is to leave with the

LIGHTER CAR OVERTURNED

Dead Girl Had Joined Party at Last Moment When There Was an Extra Ticket.

Five children, accompanied by three adults, going to the circus yesterday afternoon found a pleasure they had been anticipating for weeks changed suddenly into tragedy by an automobile collision, which killed one child instantly and injured seven other persons.

Four of the children were Elisabeth Trapp, 13 years old; George Trapp, 10; Francis, 8, and Robert 6. They were with their mother, Mrs. Agnese Trapp, her grown son, William, and her friend Mrs. Josephine Hertschel of 711 Thirty-third Street, North Bergen, N. J. The other child was Gebhardine Lemmermeier, 15 years old, of 2 Jerome Place, North Bergen. Gebhardine was the guest of the Trapps. She was killed in the wreck.

Just before the party left home, William Trapp informed his family he would be unable to accompany them to the circus as planned, but agreed to take them to the Weehawken ferry in his automobile. This left an extra ticket. Elisabeth suggested that they invite her girl friend, Gebhardine, who lived around the corner.

The proposal met with approval. Elisabeth hurried to her friend's home to tell her the good news. But Mrs. John G. Lammenmeier, Gebhardine's mother, was reluctant to give her consent. It was a school day, she objected, and circus or no circus the place for children on school days was in school.

Elisabeth pleaded that Gebhardine should be permitted to accompany them, and painted such vivid pictures of circus pleasures that Mrs. Lammenmeier's consent was won. Gebhardine dressed for the occasion and skipped happily around to the Trapp home.

It was just 12:40 when the automobile bearing the circus party reached Washington Place and Seventeenth Street. Gebhardine, seated in the front seat beside William, was chatting gayly of previous experiences at the circus. A big motor truck bore down upon them. William saw it and put the wheel hard down, but too late. The truck crashed into the side of the sedan overturning it.

Ready hands helped remove the children from the wreckage. One by one they climbed out through the door of the overturned car. Elisabeth, George, Francis and Robert, all with minor injuries. William was unhurt, but Mrs. Trapp suffered a broken hip and Mrs. Hertschel was badly bruised about the body.

"Where's Gebhardine?" some one asked.

They found her in the front seat wedged under the wreckage. At Will Hain's direction a score of men lifted the overturned car while he freed the little girl. Then he placed her with Mrs. Trapp and Mrs. Hertschel in an automobile and took them to Hudson Hospital. A doctor there who examined Gebhardine said she had died instantly.

Ralph Milano of 37 Nineteenth Street, West New York, driver of the motor truck was also slightly injured and was treated at North Hudson Hospital. The West New York police began an investigation into the causes of the accident. No arrest was made.

CHARGES A SCANDAL IN TUNNEL REALTY

FORESEES A VAST OUTLAY

Declares Action Was to Save Speculators in Staten Island Property.

In a statement prepared and made public yesterday by the Citizens Union, before it was known that Governor Alfred E. Smith had approved the bill restricting the use of the projected Staten Island tunnel to a rapid transit passenger service, the Citizens Union charged that the Board of Estimate, even after Justice McAvoy had filed his report advising that course and the Governor had approved it, had incurred heavy expenses in vesting in the city title to more than 300 parcels of land "to save the real estate speculators controlling the right of way of the projected railroad back of the Staten Island end of the tunnel."

The Citizens Union characterized this action as "scandalous and wholly unwarranted while legislation on the subject was pending." The statement, which was made public early yesterday, several hours before the Governor's action was announced from Albany, by Walter Tallmadge Arndt, Secretary of the Citizens Union, follows:

"The Citizens Union issued the following statement today in criticism of the Hylan administration's action in playing into the hands of Staten Island real estate speculators in an endeavor to complicate the Staten Island tunnel situation. The Citizens Union believes such action scandalous and wholly unwarranted while legislation on the subject was pending.

"It is now clear that whether or not permitted to go on with its useless and wasteful project of a combination freight and passenger tunnel to Staten Island, the Hylan administration has been resolved to save the real estate speculators controlling the right of way of the projected railroad back of the Staten Island end of the tunnel.

Take Title to Land.

"It was on Feb. 6, 1923, that Justice McAvoy submitted to the Governor his recommendation for legislation to restrict the Staten Island tunnel to rapid transit use. It was on Feb. 10, 1925, that bills were introduced in the Legislature to carry out that recommendation and on Feb. 16, 1925, the Governor expressed his approval of Justice McAvoy's view. As late as March 9, 1925, in a memorandum submitted to the Legislature in opposition to the bills, the Corporation Counsel indicated that the city had not yet taken title to the land in Staten Island along the line of the Administration's projected railroad back of the tunnel.

"At the hearing before the Governor last Monday, Arthur S. Tuttle (Chief Engineer of the Board of Estimate) stated that the city had taken title to this land. Investigation discloses that on March 9, the same date as the Corporation Counsel's memorandum, the Board of Estimate adopted a resolution vesting title in the city to over 300 parcels of land with a total area of over four million square feet, the cost of which, in the light of the city's experience with its condemnation proceedings for the acquisition of land for the Staten Island piers, will probably not be known for several years and perhaps not until long after Mayor Hylan has ceased to hold office, even if he should be inflicted on the city for another term.

"Obviously upon the submission of Justice McAvoy's recommendation, approved as it was by the Governor, it was the duty of the administration to delay all avoidable expenditure or commitment on this project until the Legislature and the Governor had acted on the recommendation. The failure of the administration to follow this course and its contrary action in pushing the vesting of title to this property is clear proof that a large part of its persistence in this indefensible project is due to the

Albee Pays Over $5,000,000 for Hippodrome; Will Continue It as a Keith Playhouse

The Hippodrome, occupying the block front on the east side of Sixth Avenue between Forty-third and Forty-fourth Streets, which has probably been reported sold more times during the last few years than any other building in Manhattan, was finally disposed of yesterday, when the United States Realty and Improvement Company contracted to sell it to E. F. Albee, President of the Keith-Albee vaudeville organization.

The sale includes the site and structure and is said to involve between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000.

The transaction was concluded in the apartment of Harry S. Black, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the realty company, at the Hotel Plaza. Mr. Black expressed his personal and professional satisfaction over the fact that the Hippodrome "would continue to be America's most representative place of amusement," because, as he explained, he was associated with the late John W. Gates in planning, building and financing the project over twenty years ago.

Discussing the transaction last evening Mr. Albee said: "The Hippodrome, of course, will continue its present policy and management. The transfer of this great property removes it from the real estate market and settles its policy for all time to come. The biggest theatre in the world, with the Keith-Albee de luxe composite program of international stars and novelties, with changes weekly, is enjoying the greatest patronage of any playhouse in the world, and it will continue to be the place of debut and premiere for all the new foreign, native and distinguished acts and artists adventuring into vaudeville."

The Hippodrome Realty and Theatrical Corporation to take over the real estate was formed at a meeting yesterday by M. Goodman, attorney, of 1,564 Broadway. The new corporation was capitalized at $1,000,000, and will have as directors J. J. Hopkins, T. A. Sherman and L. B. Thompson.

city the proper city function of constructing rapid transit subways and to leave the freight feature with the Port Authority."

Text of the Statement.

In all of my twenty-one years of experience at Albany I probably have never had to deal with a proposition about which there is such a general misunderstanding as there seems to exist with regard to what is sought to be done by the erection of a tunnel between Staten Island and Brooklyn.

The original act was conceived in error. The Governor who signed the bill in a public speech said he knew perfectly well that before another session of the Legislature it would be impossible to do anything under that bill except investigate. He undoubtedly had in his mind amendments to the law to be made at a subsequent session of the Legislature.

The history of the act shows the strange things that occasionally happen in the business of the Government. In 1921 the Legislature created the Port Authority and directed it to "take up, study and consider the joint report of the New York-New Jersey Port and Harbor Development Commission," and to that end the statute creating the Port Commission imposed the further duty of holding public hearings on the plan, conferring with municipal authorities, &c. As a result of such hearing the Commissioners of the Port Authority were directed to report to the Legislature of our State and to the Legislature of the State of New Jersey a comprehensive plan for the development of the port. The same Legislature placed upon the Board of Estimate and Apportionment the duty of constructing a tunnel between Brooklyn and Staten Island for freight and passenger purposes.

In order to reconcile these very apparent cross-purposes of the Legislature the Governor, in his memorandum of approval, clearly set forth the belief that nothing would happen looking to the construction of the Narrows tunnel without conference between the city authorities and the Port Authority, looking to fitting the Narrows tunnel, if possible, into the general port development scheme. In his public speech he admits that he put his signature to a bill defective and unworkable. In 1923 amendments to the act were attempted but they were defeated. Subsequent history proved conclusively that the Governor's assumption that this matter would be studied in conjunction with a broad comprehensive plan proved to be without foundation.

Says City Failed to Cooperate.

The city did not cooperate with the Port Authority and did not confer with the bi-State agency charged with the preparation of the plan but, on the other hand, came to Albany in open opposition to the plan brought forward by the Port of New York Authority and offered as a substitute a plan of its own predicated upon the Narrows tunnel and assuming that it lay within the power of the City of New York to effect railroad connections with the Narrows tunnel without regard to the attitude of our partner to the plan the State of New Jersey, or, for that matter, the railroads themselves.

Both plans were debated for many hours in the Assembly Chamber. The Legislature adopted the plan of the Port Authority, which plan made the so-called Greenville Tunnel between Greenville, N. J., and Bay Ridge, South Brooklyn, the connecting link for tying up the railroads entering the port on the westerly side and those entering it on the easterly side, so that the so-called Narrows Tunnel was suspended in the air—looked upon and regarded as a purely local improvement.

All of the above, however, is the history of the past. Let us, therefore, deal with the situation presented today. It seems to me that the weight of engineering opinion is in favor of the contention that it is not practical to operate the rapid transit trains on the same tracks provided for freight. The cases cited by the engineer for the city where there is a combined freight and passenger operation through a single track tunnel are those of through trains operating over trunk lines and cannot be used as an argument in favor of rapid transit and through freight trains on the same tracks.

The present hear of the New York City Transportation Commission in a report in 1920 dealing with this subject summed up, it seems to me, the majority of engineering opinion on it when he said:

"It is impracticable in our judgment to attempt to construct a combination freight and passenger tunnel except with the clear understanding that the freight service would be extremely limited and controlled entirely by passenger service requirements. It would be impracticable to attempt to route any through freight trains over such a road, even though connections with trunk line railroads were provided."

Transit Facilities Needed.

It seems to be the majority opinion that what Staten Island really needs and what it is entitled to at the earliest possible moment is a rapid transit tunnel, although, strange to say, all those in opposition to the present bill seem to lay all their stress upon the freight feature.

Let us approach the subject from the standpoint of a business matter. What business man or what business organization would proceed with the construction of a $60,000,000 tunnel without having a single contract with any railroad to send freight through it? Certainly the city itself, as the owner of the tunnel, would have no freight to ship through it, and if it is to get freight it must get it from some freight carrier. If the opponents of this bill were able to make a contract even with the one railroad that now has freight yards on Staten Island it is reasonable to suppose that on the argument before me they would advance the fact of the existence or even the promise of a contract as a reason for the veto of this bill.

All this is entirely aside from the question of whether or not the credit of the city should be pledged for the construction of any kind of a freight tunnel, particularly one for the exclusive use of a single railroad, even if that railroad had agreed to send its freight through it.

Under the Port Authority plan, tunnels are to be constructed without cost to the taxpayers and are to be paid for from the proceeds of the tolls charged to the different railroads for their use of the facilities. This one is to be built with the credit of the city and will constitute an additional burden upon the taxpayers and the rentpayers of the city, although it was promised by many of its proponents to reduce the cost of living.

At the hearing nobody said anything about whether or not the only trunk line operating on Staten Island would use the tunnel. At this point it is interesting to see what the President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad said about the operation of that railroad on Staten Island. He was before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the 17th of November in 1923 while the question of the consolidation of railroad properties of the United States into a limited number of systems was under discussion, and then and there, representing the attitude of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, he said that they did not want by any plan adopted to be deprived of an opportunity to transfer their freight business to terminals in Jersey City, where, he claimed, there was room for extension.

Quotes Head of the B. & O.

He put the desirability of transferring to Jersey City upon the further ground that the State of New York had passed an act requiring the electrification of all railroads operating within the City of New York before the 1st of January, 1926. He said that that additional expense in no way increased the freight facilities of the Baltimore & Ohio in the slightest degree, and he referred to it as simply making a change from one motive power to another. Speaking of the opportunity to be permitted to move their freight yards to Jersey, he made this positive statement:

"If we are to be deprived of that opportunity and required to continue to operate on Staten Island, and at the same time assume this very large expense [meaning electrification as required by law], it becomes a very serious problem whether we would be justified in staying there at all or not; whether it would not be better to give up our efforts to remain an initial carrier into and out of the City of New York and stop at Philadelphia and give our business to connecting lines at that point."

All of this means that if we go on with this $60,000,000 freight tunnel, and we leave on the statute books the provision for electrification, it is quite possible that before the tunnel is constructed there will be no trunk line freight railroad on Staten Island. That would leave us in a nice position. We would have a $60,000,000 freight tunnel and no railroads to operate through it.

At this point let me call attention to one of the provisions of the original act providing for the construction of this tunnel. It says:

"The Board of Estimate and Apportionment shall have power to fix all charges to tolls for the use of such tunnel, but not less than sufficient to pay the cost of the administration, maintenance and operation of such tunnel."

Upon that subject during all of the hearing there was a strange silence, and it was urged that we go on and take a chance and build the tunnel. When I asked the chief engineer of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment what guarantee we had that the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad would use the tunnel, the only answer he was able to make was:

"Common sense would dictate such a course."

I am unable to give serious consideration to the contention of the city's engineers with regard to this tunnel, because they do not regard it as a local improvement. One prominent engineer, writing for the city, starts his brief in this way:

"The tunnel is located at the natural gateway to the easterly side of the harbor for 80 per cent. of the freight tonnage that passes between the West and Southwest and Long Island and New England points."

However, at no place in his brief does he indicate wherein the city is going to be able to induce or compel the different trunk lines carrying this 80 per cent. of freight to use this tunnel.

Points to Revenue Needed.

I have before me maps which are practically identical with those presented to the Legislature in 1922, at which time it was attempted by the city to use the Narrows tunnel as an alternative plan for the one proposed and supported by the Port Authority. If this tunnel is to be constructed and operated according to the provisions of the statute and return the revenue which it is provided in the statute it shall return, it will be necessary for it to get this 80 per cent. of the freight.

In what position does that leave the Port Authority plan? At the legislative hearing on the Port Authority bill on Jan. 31, 1922, the chief engineer of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, arguing for his plan, said:

"It should be pointed out that the requirements are such as to fully justify a properly designated and located tunnel, but not such as to justify two, and that a wasteful and unnecessary expenditure for such facilities will only add to the cost of doing business in the Port of New York, instead of decreasing it as is supposed to be the end."

What, therefore, is meant by the proposal that this tunnel be constructed for the purpose of connecting the trunk lines from the West with those of the East unless it be to defeat the principal feature of the Port Authority plan, which makes this direct rail connection by tunnel from Greenville, N. J., to Bay Ridge, South Brooklyn?

Upon that phase of the situation I questioned the chief engineer of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment at the hearing, when I said:

"Obviously, if the plan you present is carried out, the Port Authority plan falls to the ground."

What was his answer to that? His answer was:

"Well, there is nothing sacred about the Port Authority plan."

Of course he is talking strictly as an engineer. He sees no sacredness in law and he sees none in the treaty with the State of New Jersey, and his plan, even if the City of New York had the power or authority to carry it out, means a repudiation of our sacred pledge and promise to the State of New Jersey, ratified by the Congress of the United States, that we would develop the Port of New York jointly and for the benefit of both States and in accordance with a plan that would have the approval of both States.

If it is seriously contended that this proposed Narrows tunnel is the proper freight connection between the East and West, the way to bring it about is by amendment to the statute setting up the plan which is now the law of this State and the law of New Jersey, and has the approval of the Federal Government. However, nobody seriously considers it for a minute as a substitute for the Port Authority plan.

Sees Saving of $38,000,000.

The tunnel as designed calls for an expenditure of approximately $60,000,000, while a tunnel designed for rapid transit would call for an expenditure of about $22,000,000, making a difference of $38,000,000, which money could well be applied to the construction of additional subways and thereby do away in part at least with the disgraceful crowding and jamming of men and women going on in the present subway operation.

The business thing to do is to change the law; give Staten Island her rapid transit tunnel at the earliest possible moment; let the freight feature be cared for under the comprehensive plan of the Port Authority drawn to feed all five boroughs of the city, having behind it the sanction of law in this State as well as in New Jersey, and having further behind it the force and power of the Interstate Commerce Commission to make it effective.

It has been urged both at the hearing and in various communications which have come to my attention that this bill is an invasion of the home rule principle. Nobody can sustain that contention. What this bill really does is to leave with the city the proper city function of constructing rapid transit subways and to leave the freight feature with the Port Authority, the proper bi-State agency for planning freight movements, upon the theory that the Port Authority is the only agency that can bring about the unification of freight terminal service required to make any freight tunnels successful.

Emphasizes Bi-State Feature.

While the opponents of this bill have urged that the tunnel for both freight and passenger traffic is purely a local matter, every brief submitted against the bill indicates that the freight feature of this tunnel is a bi-State matter and has to do for its success with freight to be received from railroads whose rail terminals are in the State of New Jersey, with the exception of a single line, to wit—the Baltimore & Ohio, which handled but 717,327 tons of the 18,576,424 tons of freight that enter the Port of New York annually over seven trunk lines from the South and West.

This whole proposition is difficult of understanding without very serious study of the entire problem presented. For that reason I am afraid that a great many business men's organizations, local Chambers of Commerce and taxpayers' associations, generally, are prompted to a support of the existing plan without a thorough study of its ultimate effects. Many Staten Island people have expressed the fear that if any change is brought about it may defeat their chance for a rapid transit tunnel. No such defeat can come by the operation of this amendment to the law, as the city is left with the full power to bring to speedy completion a tunnel for rapid transit purposes and all of Staten Island's freight needs will be better met under the comprehensive plan of the Port Authority, which is now the law of this state and of the State of New Jersey.

Klan Barred From Wisconsin.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., April 22.—The Ku Klux Klan cannot be incorporated under the laws of Wisconsin, Attorney General Herman L. Ekern declared today in an opinion to Secretary of State Zimmermann. The Klan had demanded the right to file incorporation and the question whether the organization could be admitted was referred to the Attorney General.

ALBANY, April 22.—Governor Smith stepped out of the Chief Executive's chair for an hour today so that it could be occupied by another east side boy, James Doonan Jr., aged 13, of 46 Rose Street.

"Governor" Doonan filled the office of Chief Executive for a brief space to further the interest of Boys' Week, which will be opened officially in the State next Sunday. He came to Albany with Harry Klemfuss, representing the New York Rotary Club. He was selected from 500,000 other metropolitan boys.

When James walked into the executive chamber to take over the reins of the State Government he was greeted by Governor Smith with:

"Hello, James, how are you today?"

"I am fine, sir, and I hope you are the same," the youth replied.

"They tell me you are going to graduate from the Cathedral College Preparatory School," the Governor continued. "Well, that is fine. You see I never had the opportunity to be graduated from an institution like that and yet I have been Governor of this State three times. Every boy has the same chance, and maybe some day you will be President of the United States."

Governor Smith then asserted "Governor" Doonan to the executive chair. The "Governor" was all smiles when he seated himself in the big leather chair.

His first announcement was the appointment of his staff. He appointed Paul Croce, aged 14, of 27 New Bowery, one of his chums, his private secretary. Danny Sullivan, aged 14, of 63 Cathline Street, was elevated to the rank of "Colonel." Jimmy Fox, aged 13, who lives at the same address, was made an "Admiral."

"I think I will order 'Admiral' Fox to clean up the rum fleet," said "Governor" Doonan, smiling.

He went through all the motions of telephoning. He affixed make-believe signatures to some of the thirty-day bills still pending before the Governor. He called in George R. Graves, the Governor's secretary, and handed letters to him with instructions to see they were taken care of immediately. He summoned Major David Lawyer, the Governor's military secretary, and told him to be sure and book him for a speaking engagement at such a place on a certain night.

"Governor Jim" was escorted around the Capitol and saw where Governor Smith had sat as Speaker of the Assembly. An afternoon spent at the opening game of Albany's baseball season, where he caught the first ball pitched, was followed by a brief but satisfying visit to Governor Smith's sanctum and the new beam—proudly exhibited by Arthur Smith, son of the Executive.

On Friday, May 1, he will march with Governor Smith at the head of a large Boys' parade in New York in the city's observance of Boys' Week.

All in all, "Governor" Doonan played his rôle with all the technique of an experienced actor. When his hour was up he stepped out of the executive chair and handed back the reins of government to the real Governor.

Reading a batch of congratulatory telegrams comprised the boy "Governor's" first official work. He read such statements as "Grandma is happy and overjoyed"; "Follow 'Al' and you can't go wrong." One from St. James's Parochial School on the east side, "Jimmy's" school, read:

GOV. SMITH VETOES BILL FOR COLLEGES

TO MAKE PERSONAL EFFORT

He Will Endeavor to Reconcile Contending Views for Measure Next Year.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 22.—Governor Smith today vetoed the Nicoll-Hofstadter bill which provided for the coordination of the Boards of Trustees of public colleges in New York City into a board of higher education for establishing additional colleges in Greater New York was vetoed today by Governor Smith. It had generally been believed here that he would approve the measure.

The bill was strongly opposed by many residents of Brooklyn, including Borough President Joseph A. Guider. It was favored by the Board of Trustees of the College of the City of New York and by many other educators.

For many years the residents of Brooklyn have been clamoring for the establishment in their city of a separate university. Those who opposed the Nicoll-Hofstadter bill told the Governor that under the measure they could not hope to obtain an institution such as a majority of the people of Brooklyn wanted. They insisted that a majority of the members of the board of higher education would come from Manhattan and that they would not take much interest in a Brooklyn institution.

Here the opposition of Borough President Guider was regarded as being largely political. It was asserted that he felt he would be furthering his own political future if he could bring about the establishment of a separate Brooklyn university.

For the last few years bills have been introduced in the Legislature providing for the establishment of separate universities in every borough with the exception of Richmond. These measures, however, have never met with success in either the Senate or the Assembly.

In vetoing the bill the Governor let it be known that he intended to do all he could between now and the next session of the Legislature to bring the contending parties into accord on a measure which would have the support of the residents of Brooklyn. In his veto memorandum he wrote:

"This bill seeks to amend the Education law in relation to the consolidation of Boards of Trustees of public colleges for the purpose of establishing collegiate centres in the City of New York. From the arguments on the bill, both before me and before both houses of the Legislature, there seems to be in minds of the people a special relation to the establishment of a university in the Borough of Brooklyn. I am unable, in the time given to me to get the public sentiment upon the proposed bill. At the hearing among the memoranda filed the sentiment seems to be pretty evenly divided as to whether or not the desired purpose should be brought about by the operation of this bill.

"When Brooklyn secures a university it is highly desirable that it get off to a good start and has the entire body of public opinion behind it. I am satisfied that nothing will be lost by deferring action on this bill until next year. Meanwhile, I propose personally to do what I can to reconcile the views of the contending parties to the end that when a bill is agreed upon it will have the popular support which I believe necessary to make it a final success."

SEES SMITH IN THE SENATE.

Meredith of Iowa Also Expects Democrats to Win in 1928.

Special to The New York Times.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, April 22.—The Democratic Party has an excellent chance of winning in 1928, according to E. T. Meredith of Des Moines, Secretary of Agriculture in the Wilson Cabinet, who is here attending a Masonic convention. He figured the chances at about 100 per cent. He added:

"The stage now is not particularly well set for the Republican Administration, and if business conditions do not improve in the next three years it will be an Anti-Coolidge vote in 1928."

He said he looked for a big Democratic swing in 1928 if the party gets together.

Mr. Meredith was asked if he were a candidate for the Presidency. He replied that whatever had been said in reference to him was due to the enthusiasm of warm friends and that it was too early to talk about candidates. He was asked what he thought of Governor Al Smith's chances. His reply was that he expected Governor Smith to be elected to the Senate.

PLAN NEW ALIEN POLICY.

Officials Study Proposal to Examine Immigrants Abroad.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Detailed study of a proposal by Secretary Davis for examination of immigrants at ports abroad, or aboard ship on their way to the United States, with a view of making the plan effective as soon as possible, was begun today at a conference of representatives of the Immigration Service, the Public Health Service and the State Department.

Immigration officials believe the greatest advantage in the plan lies in its humanitarian aspect through removal of the necessity in many cases of returning aliens to their homelands after they have come to the United States with the expectation of making their homes. They also see in it a prospective saving in money through elimination of immigration stations, which now cost approximately $2,000,000 a year.

RABIES QUARANTINE FOR WESTCHESTER

All Dogs to Be Under Ban in Lower Part of County Because of Boy's Death.

DECISION MADE AT ALBANY

Many Children Bitten Recently—Action Recommended by Several Health Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 22.—The southern half of Westchester County, will soon be placed under a strict quarantine for rabies, Berne A. Pyrke, State Commissioner of Farms and Markets, announced tonight. One death already has resulted from rabies, the first in this State in several years.

The victim was Norman Bens, 4 years old, of New Rochelle, who was bitten by a dog. He died in the Willard Parker Hospital, New York City.

Rabies has been in existence just across the line in Connecticut for more than a year, and the authorities suspect that it found its way into this State from that source.

An investigation was made by H. J. Henry, Director of the Bureau of Animal Industry, who will submit a report to Commissioner Pyrke recommending quarantine. All dogs within the quarantined area must be confined or muzzled.

A conference of the health officers and Commissioners of Public Safety in the cities in the southern half of Westchester County with Dr. S. Rivenburg, Assistant Director of the New York Office of the Department of Farms and Markets, was held, and it was the unanimous opinion that the quarantine should be established to prevent the disease spreading.

As the result of strict enforcement of quarantines and efforts of the Bureau of Animal Industry, this State has been practically free from rabies. No part of the State is under quarantine now.

The law provides that the Commissioner shall quarantine any district to prevent the spread of rabies, and that if a dog be found within the quarantined district in violation of the regulation any person may have the animal impounded or confined. If it is found afterward that the dog is not affected with rabies, it may be released upon the application of the owner. Upon the receipt of such release the dog's owner is required to pay a $10 penalty to the Treasurer or chief officer of the city or to the Treasurer of the county in which the dog is impounded. If the application for release is not made within three days after it is found that the dog is not affected, or if the penalty is not paid within three days after the receipt of such release, or if it is found impractical after reasonable effort to catch and impound such dog, any person may kill the animal and cannot be held liable for damages.

CENSUS BEGINS ON JUNE 1.

State Force of 7,566 Enumerators Will Finish in 15 Days.

ALBANY, April 22.—The New York State census will start on June 1, and is expected to be completed within fifteen working days, Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, Secretary of State, announced tonight. Statistics will be gathered by a field force of 7,566 enumerators, one for each election district.

The work of enumerators in each county will be directed by a county supervisor, with offices in the court house. Enumerators will report daily to the supervisors, who will forward the reports to Mrs. Knapp and her assistant, Lafayette B. Gleason, Chief of Census.

Mrs. Knapp announced today the appointment of John G. Peck of Southampton, a former Assemblyman, as assistant to Mr. Gleason in the New York City office. Others announced included: Ines D. Squires of Port Jefferson, to be Census Supervisor of Suffolk County; Mrs. Sara E. Lamb of Utica, Census Supervisor of Oneida County; Mrs. Josephine MacLachlan of Babylon, Deputy Supervisor of Suffolk County; Edward Evans of Yorkville and Jesse Bird of Rome, Deputy Supervisors of Oneida County.

FIRE IN GRAND CENTRAL.

Hundreds of commuters living along the lines of the New York Central and New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroads bound home last night left with smarting eyes as the result of a fire which started in a hairdressing shop operated by Mrs. James P. Carey in the Grand Concourse of the Grand Central Terminal and filled the big rotunda of the terminal with acrid fumes.

The fire was short-lived and did little property damage, but firemen said it was one of the smokiest small blazes they ever had fought. It was discovered just after 9:30 o'clock and within half an hour persons waiting in the rotunda for trains were compelled to seek fresh air outside. A forced draught apparatus was then brought into play by station authorities and by midnight most of the smoke had cleared away.

Eisner in Olvany Firm.

In the announcement that the offices of the law firm of Olvany, Eisner & Donnelly were moving to 292 Madison Avenue, printed in THE TIMES a fortnight ago, the firm's name was incorrectly given as Olvany, Fisher & Donnelly. The members of the firm are George W. Olvany, Mark Eisner, James F. Donnelly and Irwin M. Berliner.

WIND BALKS RETURN OF THE LOS ANGELES

BUT MAY BE BACK TONIGHT

Second Journey to the Island Was Made Yesterday in 12 Hours From Lakehurst.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The dirigible Los Angeles notified the Navy Department late today that it would remain at Hamilton, Bermuda, tonight and not attempt to return to Lakehurst before tomorrow.

The craft arrived today from Lakehurst and moored to the tender Patoka. In a dispatch to the Navy Department her commander reported:

"Los Angeles lying comfortably at Patoka's mast in northwest wind averaging thirty-five miles per hour, which will probably continue until sunset and then diminish and change direction. Expect more favorable wind tomorrow, so will remain Patoka mast overnight, arriving Lakehurst tomorrow night."

The airship, which left Lakehurst at 2:35 P. M. yesterday, arrived over Bermuda at 2:10 o'clock this morning. Awaiting daylight the big craft cruised about over the island before attempting to moor.

Successful mooring of the ship was received with enthusiasm in Navy aeronautical circles here, a former trial at Bermuda having been frustrated by unfavorable weather.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, April 22.—(Associated Press).—The United States dirigible 2airship Los Angeles, visiting Bermuda for the second time, was first sited off Bermuda at 2:20 A. M. She then cruised seaward again and was lost to view until about 5:30. She cruised leisurely about the island and at 6:30 took her position over the Patoka. She made fast in a little less than an hour.

The second visit of the airship evidently meant less to the people of Bermuda than her first. There were only a few persons present to witness her arrival, but when she was ready to make fast many gathered along the shore to watch the proceedings. Later a number of small craft from Hamilton cruised about the bay carrying spectators.

The day was beautifully clear, and with the exception of the strong wind conditions were entirely favorable.

WATCHMEN SLEEPING WHILE FACTORY BURNS

Sebastian Scimonelli and Peter Gimmelli have been night watchmen for Scimonelli & Rodi, coat manufacturers, who occupy the top floor of the four-story building at 1,081 Willoughby Avenue, Brooklyn.

No one saw them last night when a passerby discovered flames leaping to the windows of the third floor occupied by the Eastern Knitting Mills.

One fire alarm was sent in and then quickly a second and third, for the fire was threatening to consume the entire building. Fire apparatus filled the street, while every cross street in the neighborhood was crowded with people gazing upward at the burning building, which rises two stories above adjoining structures and which was lighted by the flames and by searchlights from fire engines.

Suddenly as more streams of water were turned toward the fourth story two men appeared on the roof. The crowds in the streets gasped. The two men were in their underclothes.

They appeared about to jump, but the drop of two stories apparently made them change their minds. They stood on the roof of the building in the spotlight made by the flames and the searchlights beseeching help from those below.

Firemen ran up the steps and brought them down. They were Sebastian and Peter.

"What were you doing up there?" they were asked.

"We're the night watchmen," they answered. "We sleep on the top floor."

ARREST POLICEMAN AS CHICAGO ROBBER

Traffic Patrolman Accused of Aiding Kidnapping of Officer Guarding $10,000.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Raymond F. Vinickey, 26 years old, traffic policeman at Thirty-first Street and Michigan Avenue and known to thousands of automobilists, was arrested tonight on the charge that on March 21 he was one of three highwaymen who kidnapped another policeman and stole $10,000 from a bank messenger the second policeman was guarding.

One answer to the city's question, "Where do they get the guns they kill the bluecoats with?" led to Vinickey's arrest. He sold the revolver stolen from the kidnapped patrolman, James Gavin, to a private detective. The seal of another detective, to whom the pistol was subsequently sold, in checking its original ownership led to Vinickey's arrest.

desire to play the game of certain real estate speculators. If Governor Smith approves the bill now before him, restricting this tunnel to rapid transit purposes, this property acquired by the city will be useless, except perhaps as it may afford sites for Mayor Hylan's campaign billboards."

George McAneny, Chairman of the Transit Commission, last night said he was greatly gratified to learn that Governor Smith had signed the Staten Island Tunnel bill. He said he considered it "not only a check of a wasteful program of expenditure" but also "a preparation for real rapid transit service for Staten Island."

He said he would probably comment in more detail today.

Mayor Hylan made a pilgrimage to Albany on Monday, in connection with the bill. He was accompanied by Borough President Joseph A. Guider of Brooklyn, Borough President John A. Heffernan of Richmond and representatives of other three Borough Presidents' offices.

At the Board of Estimate meeting last Friday the board, with the exception of Controller Charles L. Craig, went on record as opposing a change in the tunnel plans.

Why not Smoke the Finest?

25¢ for Twenty

We like to spin our all-wool yarns for the boys.

Same sort of all-wool yarns that are spun for our men's clothing, so we know that the youngsters are getting the best there is.

"All-wool" probably doesn't mean much to little lads, but its long wearing qualities and strength mean an awful lot to Dads and Mothers who pay the bills.

Even at that, our prices make it easy as possible, consistent with value received.

DEPEW, 91, MISSES HORSE AND BUGGY

DOES USUAL DAY'S WORK

Gets Many Appeals for Longevity Hints Since Exponents of Two Systems Died Young."

Chauncey M. Depew, who is 91 years old today, did his regular day's work at the New York Central offices yesterday, besides going through a large mail of congratulations and of applications for health hints which have been made to him in increased volume recently since the death of Walter Camp at 68 and the death of Metchnikoff at less than 70 have disturbed the faith of followers of longevity systems.

The loss of every one of his early friends is the one shadow on Mr. Depew's life which is otherwise full of enjoyment and activity. The only other melancholy note struck by the ex-Senator in the course of a long interview yesterday was the extinction of the family horse and the family buggy.

"The automobile has wiped out one picturesque, charming and delightful feature of American life and that is the family horse," he said. "The family horse and buggy did more than any other one thing to promote matrimony and happy domestic life. It used to be the first great ambition of every boy to own a buggy. Usually there was a family horse which his father would let him have for the buggy. The family horse was an educated animal. He would know just about when to look around and find the boy and girl sidling up to each other and he would slow down. You could rest the reins on the dashboard with perfect confidence. The family horse would sometimes stop and you didn't care.

"I remember eighty years ago, when I first——"

Mr. Depew was interrupted by somebody who reminded him that he was placing his first sparking experience at the age of 11 years. "I know that," he said. He retracted nothing.

But He Favors the Present.

Except for attacking the automobile for its extermination of this honest old matrimonial agent and admitting that no editors like Horace Greeley and no orators like Wendell Phillips existed today, Mr. Depew found everything in favor of the present. Asked what age goal he had in mind at present, Mr. Depew said:

"If I get past a hundred, I'll leave the rest to Providence."

The ex-Senator said his life went on almost exactly the same as it did when he was of middle age. Asked his views on the proper age of retirement, he said:

"Never. When you retire you're through. I am enjoying life as much as ever, except that it is awful—the dropping out of your friends. I was graduated from Yale in 1856. There were ninety-nine husky members of that class, who went out to conquer the world and did pretty well. Two of them got to be Justices of the Supreme Court. Others were Governors, Brigadier Generals in the Civil War, &c. There are only two of us alive. The rest have gone west. The other is Mr. Ratcliffe, a lawyer of Portland, Me. I believe he still goes to his office now and then, but he is practically retired.

"The Gridiron Club celebrates its fortieth anniversary tonight. I was a guest at their first anniversary forty years ago, and of those who attended that dinner I am the only one living. So you see I am getting lonesome.

"My friends are now the second and third generation of those who were my early friends. I have cultivated the younger men right along, otherwise I would be lost. For instance, in this depot there are several thousand men and they are all my friends.

"The way we keep in touch with the world is by reading the newspapers. I read the newspapers every morning and every evening. First I read the general news, then the social news and then, to get a mental tone and balance, I read the editorials."

"Do you read the sporting page"

"I never do. I have never played golf, tennis or baseball or any other of the games."

Mr. Depew said that after a long life spent without taking any exercise he had a few years ago taken up the daily dozen largely because of his friendship for Walter Camp, and that he puts ten minutes in at these exercises every morning.

"What does your doctor say about it?"

"He don't say anything. He doesn't think it does me any good or any harm. He's surprised that I bother about it."

Skeptical of a System.

After telling how the death of Walter Camp had stimulated letters from seekers after long life who now wanted the Depew system, he said:

"There's not much reliance to be placed on any system. A few years ago Metchnikoff came out with his theory that the residents of the Balkan peninsula lived longer than others because they consumed so much buttermilk. He put it out in concentrated form, and it was the custom at directors' meeting to reach into your pocket, take out your tube and take a drink of this concentrate in the belief that you were extending your life. But Metchnikoff died before 70 and the thing came to an end. Then Walter Camp came out with his daily dozen and everybody did it, and they even set it to music and played it daily on the phonograph. But Camp died at 66. Now, no one wants to follow the theory of a man who died at that age and they all write to me."

"Isn't there any secret of longevity?"

"No—yes, moderation and cheerfulness."

Asked his opinion about the Voronoff and Steinach schemes, he said:

"I don't believe in anything that puts a knife in you. I doubt if it is good for the human anatomy. I know there are times when a surgeon must operate, but I believe in it only in cases of extreme necessity."

Dean Inge came up for discussion.

"But he isn't a gloomy Dean," said Mr. Depew. "He is a very wise and shrewd commentator on human nature and the world as it is, and not by any means a pessimist."

The aged lawyer was pleased with a letter which he received from an old man who wrote: "I am a follower of Ingersoll; heaven for climate, hell for company." He did not endorse the sentiment, however.

Faith in Orthodox God.

"My mother made me go to church twice on Sunday," he said, "and to be at the Friday evening prayer meetings, and it instilled for me an absolute faith in the orthodox God, and I feel him around me all the time, and whenever I am in trouble I appeal to Him. I believe I get an immediate response. I know that I get an immediate response in the way of help. I have tested it."

This led to Fundamentalism and Modernism.

"I don't know anything about dogmas," said Mr. Depew. "I believe in the Bible as I learned it, and I believe in church-going. I am too busy doing the things I have to do to follow any church controversies.

"Evolution? I believe in that. I presided at St. Augustine at the meeting when my friend Bryan delivered for the first time his famous lecture against evolution. I have followed that discussion right straight down to the action of the legislators of Tennessee, which passed a bill announcing in the name of the sovereign State of Tennessee that they didn't believe in evolution. They didn't state where they did come from."

There was no more crime, than there used to be, according to this close student of the news, only more was published about it.

Mr. Depew described with some regret how he had dispensed with his daily ration of a pint of champagne. He was nearly 90 when he found something wrong with him, and he attributed it to alcohol, so he cut it out except now and then as a tonic.

"If there is anything you like too much, it is well to watch it. It is likely to be the thing hurting you. At one time I had a spell of insomnia and indigestion. I was smoking twenty-five cigars a day, and I thought that might be the cause. I stopped it.

"Forty years ago I had an attack of sciatic rheumatism so bad that sometimes I had to sit down on the street and rest because of the pain. I made up my mind that it was caused by eating too much porterhouse steak and roast beef. I have never eaten it since. Millions and millions that are dead would be alive today if they had given up the thing they liked best."

As to the good or evil of prohibition, Mr. Depew said that he had not been able to make up his mind.

"It has done away with the saloon, that's certain," he said. "But we hear so much of what has taken its place that I am uncertain. Before the amendment was passed I was for prohibition, but not as a constitutional amendment. I do not believe in loading up that dear old Constitution with a lot of police laws."

Admirer of Coolidge.

President Coolidge was a subject which caused the famous humorist to square his elbows and start off enthusiastically.

"I am a great admirer of the President. He is one of the few men in the world who has capitalized reticence. Millions have capitalized gab. The fact is that with too many statesmen, it is their only asset."

Mr. Depew said earlier that women would become railroad executives, as they had become Governors of States, and that they would compete with men in every field.

"Will they ever capitalize reticence?" he was asked. "Never."

The former Senator was able to admire Coolidge and Dawes at the same time.

"Dawes is another rare type," he said. "He is a man that has something to say. Everybody wants to hear him. He has something original."

As to the closure rule for the Senate recommended by Dawes, Mr. Depew said that he, as a Senator, had opposed it, believing that filibusters had been valuable in checking bad legislation, but that he had come round today to the belief that modified closure would give the majority a chance to perform the service of checking legislation, without enabling them to defeat many good laws.

Static Gently Chided.

One other gentle complaint was made by the distinguished and venerable man. It was about static. It has been spoiling program after program for him lately. He dismissed with an airy wave of his hand the fear felt by certain deep-browed philosophers that the country was being hurt by radio, films, motors, puzzles, funnies, columns and too much entertainment generally.

"I am not alarmed at all," he said. "As for radio, most people, like myself, listen to it after dinner, when they would otherwise be at some other amusement."

He refused even to be alarmed about the younger set.

"The younger generations have always been about alike," he said. "Flapperism is a style, I think. I have gone through the period when the glory of a woman was to save her hair down to her heels. That will come again. I have seen the hoopskirts, the bustles, the wasp waist which ruined the digestion of the women of the time, and I feel no terror about flapperism."

As for his own health, Mr. Depew said: "The fact is, my doctor examined me yesterday to see how I could stand this interview. He was a little nervous about me, as family doctors usually are. He found my pulse normal, my temperature normal, my blood pressure normal, and he said, 'I don't care how many you see.'"

Telling of his interviews with Lincoln in 1864, when Mr. Depew, as Secretary of New York State, went out to get the vote of New York soldiers which carried the State for Lincoln, he said that Lincoln usually told stories, not for amusement solely, but to make some point without arguing about it.

"He felt the futility of conversational argument," said the ex-Senator. "He was a great logician, but he would never argue a question. If he disagreed with you he would reach into his great fund of stories and tell you one which put the situation so precisely that it didn't leave you a leg to stand on. You could only gasp."

Of all the great orators that he has heard Mr. Depew said there was none to equal Wendell Phillips.

"He was the only man in this country in my time," he said, "who could keep an audience in a sort of deathlike silence. Listening with their mouths and ears open."

One thing which delighted him yesterday was the arrival of a letter from a town in Yugoslavia, containing an illustrated page from a Yugoslavic paper, picturing Mr. Depew on his ninetieth birthday and telling all about him.

Youthful Burglar Pleads Guilty.

Stanley Wilson, 20 years old, of 189 South Oxford Street, Brooklyn, against whom nerly fifty burglaries in the Jamaica and Richmond Hill sections were charged before his capture on March 25 by Detective John Werle of the Hunters Point Detective Bureau, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Burt J. Humphrey to four indictments charging burglary and grand larceny. He was remanded for sentence on May 4.

100 Half Barrels of 'Beer' for Police Seized and Pigs' Knuckle Fest Is Dry

A group of detectives of the Jersey City night squad intercepted early yesterday a quantity of alleged beer destined for the Jersey City Patrolmen's Benevolent Association pigs' knuckle fest last night. The detectives halted a truck at Montgomery and Warren Streets and seized a load of eighteen half-barrels of what they said was beer. The drivers, William Nayher of 99 Sherman Avenue and Jack Thurn of 182 Webster Avenue, descended from the truck, smiling broadly.

They were arrested on the charge of owning and transporting liquor in violation of the State Prohibition law, and still they smiled. It was not until the police interrogated them as to the source of the alleged beer that the reason for their amusement became apparent.

The eighteen barrels, the men explained, were the last of a consignment of 100 which had been assembled at Frederick L. Kenbusch's restaurant, on the northwest corner of Griffith Street and New York Avenue.

The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association of Jersey City, numbering 900 men, had planned a pigs' knuckle fest last night at Luckenbusch's, and the alleged beer was the supply considered necessary to slake the thirst of 900 thirsty Jersey City policemen.

No one knows with what thoughts Inspector Daniel Casey and Police Captain William Hogue, in charge of the precinct where the supposed beer was stored in the restaurant, did their duty. But they did it. The beer was seized, to the last half-barrel, and the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association pigs' knuckle fest was devoted exclusively to the consumption of pigs' knuckles.

GIRL DOESN'T CARE SO HE GOES TO JAIL

She Has Him Arrested for Annoying Her and Objects to Suspended Sentence.

THEN HE SPRINGS SURPRISE

Tells Judge He Is a Burglar and Is Locked Up Pending an Investigation.

Thomas Taylor, 21 years old, of Corona, Queens, had been arrested and brought to the Night Court on the complaint of Madeline Welsh, 18, of 346 East Forty-first Street, who said he had been annoying her.

"Have you a crush on this girl?" asked Magistrate Barrett.

"Yes," replied Taylor, hanging his head.

"Well, you're guilty," said the Magistrate, "but I'll suspend sentence if you promise to let her alone."

"Don't do that, Judge," spoke Madeline hastily. "He promised a year ago, but he didn't keep his promise."

The boy gazed steadily at the girl. "Madeline, do you want me to go to jail?" he asked.

"I don't mind," the girl replied carelessly.

"All right, then," said the boy. "If you don't want me I don't care. Judge, I'm wanted by the police for burglary. Taylor's not my real name. My real name is Tom Quinn. I'm a burglar. The police want me."

Magistrate Barrett showed his astonishment. "If that's true I'll have to hold you without bail until this is looked into further. Patrolman Klinkenberger (the policeman who arrested the boy) look into this. I'll examine this boy again Saturday night."

He turned to the boy and started to ask a question, but he was interrupted. "I won't say more," the lad said. "You see Detective Lynch at the East Thirty-fifth Street Station." Then he turned to the girl. "Madeline, do you want to see me go to jail?" "All right, I'd rather be in jail than be without you."

He was locked up.

SEEKS DIVORCE IN PARIS.

Mrs. Paul Abbott Alleges Desertion —Was Elise Everett.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 22.—A plea for divorce has been filed in the Paris courts by Mrs. Paul Abbott, formerly Elise Everett, on grounds of desertion. Mrs. Abbott's home address is 155 East Seventy-second, New York City.

Elise Everett was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Leo Everett of 155 East Seventy-second Street. She was introduced in 1919 and was one of the most popular debutantes of the season, taking a prominent part in amateur plays and having the leading role in "What Next?" an amateur play that ran for two weeks at the Princess Theatre.

On Nov. 25, 1920, she was married to Paul Abbott at the Church of the Transfiguration. The reception was at the Colony Club. Among the bridesmaids were Miss Millicent Rogers, now the Countess Salm von Hoogstraten, Miss Margaret Kahn and Beatrice and Sheila Byrne.

Paul Abbott was a graduate of Yale, class of 1920. During the war he served overseas. He was a graduate of the French Military School at Fontainebleau and received an officer's commission.

SEIZED AFTER PISTOL FIGHT.

Two Men Held in Jersey as $100,000 Fur Robbery Suspects.

Two men charged by the police with half a dozen big silk and fur robberies in Brooklyn and Manhattan, aggregating more than $100,000, were arrested yesterday afternoon by detectives from the Automobile Squad after a four-mile chase along the Bergenline Road, which terminated at Union Street, West Hoboken.

Fifty shots were exchanged between the detectives and the fugitives, and only after they were convinced that further resistance was useless did the two men finally consent to surrender. They are Walter, alias "Gyp," McCarthy of 542 Ann Street, West Hoboken, and John, alias "Little John," Haughey of 670 Park Avenue, West New York. Both were locked up in the West Hoboken Police Station charged with grand larceny and will be held there pending extradition proceedings.

The most recent job charged by the police against McCarthy and Haughey is the theft of $24,000 worth of silk from a truck belonging to A. B. Juilliard at Fortieth Street and Eleventh Avenue on April 7.

AUTO OUTPUT IN MARCH.

Increase Shown Over February, but Decrease From Last Year.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The production of passenger cars in this country and Canada in March, 1925, was 332,108, and of trucks, 45,012, according to the Department of Commerce. Of these 319,004 cars and 42,923 trucks were made in the United States. In February, 1925, there were produced 232,755 cars and 34,334 trucks, of which 242,006 cars and 32,660 trucks were made in the United States.

In March, 1924, 357,006 cars and 36,417 trucks were produced, of which 341,612 cars and 34,377 trucks were made in the United States.

For the first quarter of 1925 there were produced 797,802 cars and 107,445 trucks, of which 765,708 cars and 102,124 trucks were made in the United States. For the same period in 1924 the output was 904,274 cars and 100,021 trucks, of which 857,167 cars and 94,535 trucks were made in the United States.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST LONG BRANCH, N. J., April 22.—The body of Mrs. Herman Seagar, wife of Rabbi Herman Seagar of 2,001 Mermaid Avenue, Coney Island, who disappeared on the night of April 19, was washed ashore here this morning. Mrs. Seagar was last seen when she left the home of her daughter, Mrs. Nanna Farber, at 1,904 Mermaid Avenue.

LENT HALF MILLION AS POLITE GESTURE

British Oil Man Says He Wanted to Help Youssoupoff Redeem His Rembrandts.

NOT AFTER THEM HIMSELF

A Friend Told Him It Would Be a Graceful Thing to Do, He Says—Didn't Ask Security.

Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for Prince Felix Youssoupoff of Russia, rested his case against Joseph E. Widener in the Supreme Court yesterday, in which he seeks to recover two Rembrandts valued at $1,000,000, which the Prince alleges were given to Mr. Widener as security for a loan of £100,000, and which were to be redeemed upon payment of that amount plus interest at 8 per cent. before June 1, 1924. Mr. Widener, who contends that under the terms of the agreement he retained the right to purchase the paintings if they were to be sold to any one, will take the stand today.

The chief development of the trial yesterday was the reading into the record of the testimony taken in Paris of Calouste S. Gulbenkian, a director of the Royal Dutch Shell Oil Company, with homes in London and Paris. Gulbenkian admitted he had advanced the $525,000 offered by Prince Youssoupoff to Mr. Widener on Jan. 1, 1924, in repayment of the loan. He understood the Prince had a right to demand the return of the Rembrandts upon paying this money. He opened credit in New York for the Prince through the New York attorney, Louis S. Levy. The transaction was not a matter of business, he said, but resulted from a request made by Gulbenkian's friend, M. Adjemoff, a Russian lawyer in Paris. He insisted he had no thought of obtaining the paintings.

"I have no desire to get them," he said, "because I have been advised that Mr. Widener under his contract with the Prince had some rights to them even if he were compelled to return them."

Asked No Security.

Gulbenkian said that he asked no security from Youssoupoff for his loan and accepted a lien on the paintings only when Youssoupoff insisted. He was examined by Henry L. Sherman, counsel for Prince Youssoupoff, and by H. B. Farr, representing Mr. Widener, after a commission for his testimony had been issued in the Supreme Court on the application of Mr. Widener. He testified that he was building a new house at 51 Avenue dIena, Paris, and that he would hang the Rembrandts there if they eventually came into his possession.

Asked concerning his activities as a collector of paintings and his interest in art, Gulbenkian said: "I have some pictures, statuary, books and odds and ends. I buy paintings merely as a recreation. I have a few great masters, including a Franz Hals. I can't give a list of them, but I believe I have between twenty and thirty.

M. Gulbenkian said he had known the Prince since 1919, when Arthur Ruck, a London dealer from whom he had bought paintings, took him to see the Rembrandts which had just been brought there from Russia. M. Gulbenkian said: The Prince told me he did not wish to sell them because they had been in the possession of his family for so many years, but he wanted to raise money on them. He expected to redeem them and take them back to Russia. I pointed out that I was not a money lender."

"Mr. Ruck urged me to make a loan, stating that the Prince probably would be unable to pay it, and I would have control over the pictures, and could get them at a reasonable price. I refused because I did not want to take part in any machinations."

A Favor to a Friend.

Explaining how his friend Adjemoff got him interested in the loan, M. Gulbenkian said:

"Adjemoff told me it would be a beau geste, a graceful act on my part, and it would oblige him very much if I would help Prince Youssoupoff. He didn't think there was any risk for me in doing it. I was interested only in acceding to the wish of my friend Adjemoff."

When the trial opened yesterday morning, Sir Joseph Duveen resumed the witness stand. Asked by Mr. Miller if he had learned in December, 1922, that the Prince had offered the two Rembrandts for sale through Mr. Ruck, Sir Joseph replied that he had, explaining that his brother cabled him so. He identified a sheaf of papers as copies of his brother's cables, which he said he had forwarded to Mr. Widener.

These were offered in evidence by Mr. Miller. Mr. Shearn objected on the ground that it was not the proper time to offer them. Justice Davis ordered the papers withheld until Mr. Widener is on the stand.

Testimony for the defense will begin this morning.

CARDINAL WILL TALK ON CHARITIES TONIGHT

Leaders in Catholic Campaign for $1,000,000 Will Meet at the Roosevelt.

Cardinal Hayes will address more than 1,000 prominent Catholic laymen and clergymen tonight at the Hotel Roosevelt on the Catholic charities of the archdiocese, for which the annual campaign will be started Sunday and will be continued for a week by 20,000 workers, who will seek to raise $1,000,000. Cardinal Hayes is President of the Catholic Charities. His address will be broadcast by WEAF and will be preceded by a musical program, in which Mario Chamlee and Edmund Burke of the Metropolitan Opera Company and the boys' choir of fifty from St. Stephen's Church will sing.

The audience tonight will comprise delegates and priests from each of the 325 parishes of the archdiocese, who will be the guests of Nicholas F. Brady, Thomas F. Farrell, George J. Gillespie, Henry Heide, George McDonald and Joseph A. McAleenan. The campaign will be opened at St. Patrick's Cathedral Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when Cardinal Hayes will deliver a message to 5,000 workers.

During 1924 285,000 persons gave $1,121,773.47 in the campaign. The money is made a supplementary fund to unify, supervise and assist 200 Catholic agencies, which have a total annual expenditure of nine to ten million dollars.

FAILS TO PROSECUTE.

London Company's Charge Against Jersey Men Nolle Prossed.

County Judge Kinkead nolle prossed in Jersey City yesterday an indictment which charged embezzlement of $20,000 against John E. King of 30 Clinton Street, Newark; Brentwood J. Alley of 30 Summit Avenue, Hackensack, and the State Agency, Inc., of Jersey City, which is now out of business. The complainant was the Morgan Lyons Co. of London, insurance underwriters with Lloyds. Judge Kinkead ruled that there was no evidence incriminating the defendants. This had previously been agreed to by Assistant Prosecutor Lewis G. Hansen.

The defendants claimed that the London concern owed them money, declaring that they had expended, in the interest of the business of the Morgan Lyons Company, a greater sum than the $20,000. When the case came up for trial yesterday the insurance concern was not represented by counsel.

PREDICTS MARX WILL WIN SUNDAY

Republican Prophecy of 1,750,000 Margin Not Accepted by Hindenburg Backers.

BOTH TO TALK OVER RADIO

5,000,000 Listeners Are Expected to Hear Them—Red Candidate Barred.

By T. R. YBARRA.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 22.—Among numerous prophecies regarding next Sunday's Presidential election, one which seems deserving of most credence is a carefully prepared prognostication made here today that Dr. Marx, despite Field Marshal von Hindenburg's popularity and the immense efforts being made to elect the latter by his adherents, will have a clear margin to the good of 1,750,000 votes.

Makers of this prophesy arrive at their estimate thus: First, they give Marx 13,333,000 votes which went on March 29 to the candidates of the three parties now combined in supporting Marx—Centrists, Democrats and Socialists. To these they add scattering votes from various parties in whose ranks discord reigns, bringing the Marx total to 14,000,000.

Among the latter parties the most important is Stresemann's German People's Party. Though this party is officially credited to the Right bloc side of the ledger, there is so much disunion in its ranks that the assumption is becoming general here that many of its members will either vote for Marx or abstain from voting rather than back Hindenburg.

To the above-mentioned 14,000,000 Marx votes an additional 250,000 are added from voters who would support the Right bloc ordinarily but have been alienated this time by the strongly militaristic character of the Hindenburg candidacy. This brings the total of votes credited to Dr. Marx to 14,250,000.

Votes Credited to Hindenburg.

To Field Marshal von Hindenburg are credited all votes which went March 29 to the Right candidate, Herr Jarres—10,400,000—plus three-quarters of the total vote cast that day for Dr. Held, the Bavarian Peoples' Party candidate, and the entire Ludendorff vote. This swells the Hindenburg total to 11,400,000. Then in view of Hindenburg's tremendous personal popularity an additional 10 per cent. of the total Jarres vote on March 29 is credited to Hindenburg, bringing the latter's total vote to 12,500,000.

This prophecy certainly seems most in accordance with the probabilities as many political wiseacres see them. Perhaps von Hindenburg should be credited with an additional block of votes because of his popularity. But even giving him 500,000 more and deducting that number from Marx the result would stand: Marx, 13,750,000; Hindenburg, 12,000,000.

Incidentally, if Dr. Marx gets 14,250,000 votes, as predicted above, he will have an absolute majority—assuming the total vote is 28,000,000—whereas he only needs a relative majority.

While the Marxites are showing their confidence by making prophecies like the one above quoted, the Right bloc camp professes to be equally hopeful. Political experts abound who predict a majority for von Hindenburg ranging all the way from millions down to just enough to let him nose out Marx in the race. They base their assertions largely on von Hindenburg's personal popularity, ceaselessly emphasizing the wisdom of the Right bloc managers, who, instead of running Jarres or some such candidate—who, however meritorious, had little drawing power among the masses—suddenly presented von Hindenburg, a man whose name is magical in Germany, a man to whom millions of Germans look up with something approaching blind idolatry.

Nevertheless Left bloc experts, while admitting all this, insist that even von Hindenburg cannot make such inroads into the votes credited to his opponent as to swing the majority from Marx to himself.

Chief Candidates to Use Radio.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg will have the honor Friday evening of being the first candidate permitted the use of the Government-controlled broadcasting service for an election speech. Arrangements have been made to connect his home in Hanover by telephone with nine official sending stations throughout Germany, whence his message will be broadcast to millions of subscribers. In previous elections the radio was not permitted for campaigning purposes, chiefly on account of the large number of candidates, since the present race has narrowed down to three men the Minister of Posts gave permission.

Von Hindenburg will not hold his honors long. Dr. Marx will follow half an hour later, being allowed the regular fifteen-minute speech.

Marx for Open Presidential Policy.

MANNHEIM, April 22.—Dr. Wilhelm Marx, the former Chancellor and now candidate of the Weimar Coalition for the Presidency, declared in his campaign speech here today that "the policy of the future Reich President must be open and above board before the nation and the whole world."

"Dealings with Foreign Powers, he added, "must be without subterfuge or reservation." He emphasized his intention, if elected, to continue the policy adopted in the London negotiations, saying: "Our future policies must be clean and pure."

KARLSRUHE, April 22.—Dr. Marx, speaking here today said:

"The German Republic has often been described as the product of revolution whereas it is really a protection against threatening revolution.

"The only danger threatening Germany is in the over-estimation of words and the under-estimation of reality. The question of security is progressing. Formerly only security against Germany was considered; today security concerns Germany for her own protection."

Bankers' Report on Russia's Gold Hoard Tells What Happened to $847,500,000

Copyright, 1925, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, April 22.—The Tribune has obtained a confidential bankers' report tracing the history of the $800,000,000 in gold lost to Russia since 1913.

At the beginning of the war Russia possessed a gold deposit of 1,695,000,000 rubles ($847,500,000). A war agreement with Britain provided for the transfer of 600,000,000 rubles ($300,000,000) to London in 1914. Some were returned. At the time of the Bolshevist coup there was on deposit in Moscow 1,164,000,000 rubles ($582,000,000), of which 700,000,000 rubles ($350,000,000) was transferred to Kazan.

Admiral Kolchak in May, 1919, seized 650,000,000 rubles ($340,000,000) of the Kazan deposit and sent it to the East. A part was deposited in the State Bank at Vladivostok and 100,000,000 rubles ($50,000,000) was turned over to the Cossack General Semenoff at Chita. Documents prove that although Admiral Kolchak attempted to obtain this, General Semenoff refused to return it and sent it to Shanghai, where it was deposited with the Russo-Asiatic Bank. The purchase of war supplies cost Admiral Kolchak in May, 1919, at Vladivostok 11,000,000 rubles ($5,500,000) to England and 12,000,000 rubles ($6,500,000) to France, and in July and August to Japan 27,000,000 rubles ($13,500,000), and to France 16,500,00 rubles ($8,250,00).

Of the remainder Japan extended a loan of 30,000,000 yen ($15,000,000); $40,000,000 passed through American interests, while $4,500,000 was expended on war supplies in the United States.

When the Bolsheviki attacked Omsk in November, 1919, Admiral Kolchack left with 400,000,000 rubles ($200,000,000), but his train was wrecked at Tartarskaya and the gold was sprinkled on the railway tracks. In December the Kolchak Government and Chief of Staff split with its convoy, consisting in half of Czechoslovak troops who requisitioned their railway stock. Kolchak was finally allowed two locomotives.

The Czechoslovak troops under General Sirovoy confiscated the gold which was sent to Harbin. Kolchak's supporters charge that most of this gold found its way to Prague banks.

The Bolshevist victories brought the treasury 640,000,000 rubles ($320,000,000). One hundred and twenty million rubles ($60,000,000) which the Bolsheviks, in conformity with the Brest-Litovsk victory, turned over to Berlin were retransferred by the Spa agreement to the Bank of Europe.

ALFONSO DEFENDS MILITARY DIRECTORY

Says People in Spain Have More Liberty Than in London and New York.

PARIS, April 22 (Associated Press).—King Alfonso of Spain is quoted by the French writers and brothers. Jerome and Jean Tharaud, as declaring to them in an interview that the tranquil conditions in Spain were proof that his country was satisfied with the Government of the Military Directory, to which, he asserted, only a handful of professional politicians were opposed.

"Have you in your travels in Spain noticed that we were living in a state of siege under military oppression?" he asked the writers. "The foreign papers I see declare our Directory shoots and imprisons people and spreads a reign of terror everywhere. Have you received such an impression?

"Nothing has changed in our customary life, and for my part I know no country where the police are less interfering than here. You can stand in the middle of the road to talk with friends without a policeman telling you to move on. You can drink whatever you like in the cafés after midnight, which I defy you to do in New York or London—those countries of liberty. In Madrid you can sing your headoff until 6 in the morning if that amuses you.

"There is only one thing changed since the Directory—you can walk about with money in your pocket without fear of being attacked. There are no more strikes; our factories are at work and our employers no longer see their workmen arrive mornings revolver in hand to assassinate them or to impose their own will. You must admit that is something.

"Oh, yes," the King added ironically, "it has to be paid for. General Primo de Rivera (head of the Military Directory) has put us outside the Constitution, and that is evidently grave."

The King spoke of the Bolshevist danger, saying Italy had been the first country to grasp the fact that parliamentarianism was incapable of resisting the effort the Soviet Government was making to impose its will upon the world by force. Spain had followed suit.

"Who knows," he asked, "if other nations will not be obliged to abandon legality for a time! I see the outline of the sword forming almost everywhere."

BRITISH BUDGET EAGERLY AWAITED

ALSO CUT IN INCOME TAX

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 22.—A Cabinet Council was held in Downing Street today, at which the chief business, it is understood, was concerned with Winston Churchill's budget proposals. The Chancellor of the Exchequer put before his colleagues the main outlines of the statement he will make when introducing his budget in Parliament Tuesday next.

While the details of the proposals are kept a profound secret, there is a considerable amount of speculation on several points. On the one hand, Mr. Churchill, it is argued, will this year be only able to lay down the foundations, as it were, upon which future budgets designed to restore normal conditions can be constructed, and that consequently his proposals will contain no surprises.

On the other hand, there are many predictions that the present Chancellor of the Exchequer, being nothing if not bold, will bank upon an expected great revival in trade and upon chances of the naval expenditures being further reduced by another Washington conference. This latter argument, it may be mentioned, is not advanced in highly responsible quarters.

Income Tax Cut Expected.

Some reduction in the income tax is regarded as a certainty. The general opinion is that it will not exceed sixpence in the pound, though some optimists look for double that reduction in view of the fact that several members of the Cabinet believe enterprise in industry and commerce is unduly hampered by the present high rates, which begin with a charge of 4s. 6d. in the pound.

Finally, it is stated that on Tuesday next Mr. Churchill will make the long-expected announcement regarding a return to the gold standard and the date it is to come into operation. The rise in sterling during the last few days is attributed to American expectations that the gold standard will be restored at a relatively early date.

Altogether the atmosphere in which Mr. Churchill is completing his financial proposals is one of considerable optimism. Even the fact that he wore a flower in his buttonhole and was jauntily attired in a lounge suit, white felt hat and gray topped shoes has been taken as indicative of his sanguine outlook.

In other directions there are signs of reaction against the pessimism with which general trade conditions in the country have been regarded. It is true enough that shipbuilding, engineering, mining and the iron and steel industry are suffering severely, but it is pointed out that although some great staple industries are in a distressful condition, other trades are not in a similar predicament, and that, in fact, on the contrary, the industrial situation generally shows marked improvement.

Figures of annual profits made by a certain number of big concerns during the past year are given by The Daily Express to show that British industry is slowly but steadily on the up grade.

"In the face of typical figures like these," says The Daily Express, "it is ridiculous to represent British commerce and industry as standing on the verge of ruin. Comparison of the return on capital between 1923 and 1924, though not strictly comparable to the relation between the figures of 1924 and 1925, entirely bears out the general conclusions of The Daily Express. From 1923 to 1924 the average profit in coal, iron, steel and engineering fell by three points. In the motor industry it had risen three points and in the cycle industry six points. Cotton and other textiles and railways show practically no change. Shipping improved by two points. General stores, the boot and shoe trade, tobacco and brewing all show largely increased profits.

"In other words, depression is confined to a few trades, however important those trades may be.

"The present condition and development of trade and industry absolutely refutes the doctrine of the pessimists. In 1924 nearly 150,000 unemployed found work. In the last two years 500,000 workers have been absorbed into the ranks of producers.

Spending Power Increasing.

"Signs are manifest of an increase in the national spending power. The turnover of money as revealed in the returns of bankers and the Clearing House for 1924 disclosed an expansion of £3,000,000, as against the figure of the previous year. Banking houses reported much larger holdings of commercial bills. The advances of banks to customers showed marked growth within this period and the spending power of the people increased.

"All these facts point to a conclusion precisely contrary to that advanced by those publicists who are continually announcing that the end of British export trade and British producing industry is at hand."

Much of the lamentation which has recently been heard over the conditions of British industry has been ascribed to protectionist efforts to force the hand of the Government in regard to the reintroduction of regulations such as were contained in the Safeguarding of Industries Acts by which certain trades received a measure of protection.

Protection as a general policy has been ruled out of the present practicabilities by the pledges given by Baldwin and his chief supporters at the general election, but free traders have not lost hope of getting in the thin end of the wedge and the clamorous insistence of their organs in the press regarding German advance in shipbuilding and other industries in competition with British has been part of the game.

The Tory Morning Post has been especially conspicuous in this respect, and even today it displays a feature on "The Anxious Labor Outlook." At the same time it prints an article by a special correspondent which is far from pessimistic. The correspondent tells of the new spirit that is taking possession of labor and of the effect which the Prime Minister's appeal for a truce of God in industry had. Those appeals have fallen on fertile soil and there is no doubt that the industrial situation has changed, and changed for the better.

Sir Alfred Mond, who is not merely a politician, but is in closest touch with the labor situation as a big employer, also takes a hopeful view.

"Away with croakers," he said yesterday.

BRITISH M. P.'S TELL OF SOFIA TERRORISM

No visitors were admitted and the galleries, instead, were filled with soldiers. The only strangers present were two member of the Yugoslav Legation in the diplomatic box.

Obviously another attempt was feared and many Deputies were observed anxiously looking under their desks in search of bombs.

All the speakers, including the Agrarians and Socialists, expressed horror over the outrage. The Socialist speaker Sakazoff declared that the party approved the Government's measures, but could not vote for them, being opposed to martial law as a matter of principle.

In his speech Premier Tsankoff further said:

"As I came out of the cathedral covered with blood I rejoiced when I saw that General Vulkoff, too, was alive. I knew then that the army was saved. Today the army has the word. No parties must exist."

The bill approving the state of siege then was carried.

Denies Yugoslavia Foments Trouble.

When the statements of Rousseff and Tsankoff in the Sobranje were submitted to the Yugoslav Minister in Vienna, M. Milosevitch, tonight he scouted the idea.

"One must not forget," he said, "that these are the same people who, during the war, declared that Serbia no longer existed. This was when we sent large sums of money to aid war sufferers in Serbia, then occupied by the Bulgarians. These people still nurse the wartime bitterness. In their minds the war continues. There is nothing in the accusations.

"Yugoslavia has nothing but peaceful intentions in the Balkans and wants to preserve the best relations with Bulgaria. I don't believe the stories of intervention. The only danger I see for the Balkans threatens from Moscow."

A prominent Yugoslav in Vienna today estimated that the number of people shot in Bulgaria since the outrage was more than 1,000, adding that since the death of Stambouliski 18,000 had been killed. At the present rate, he said, gradually the leaders of both sides will be wiped out by the vendetta.

The Bulgarian Minister in Vienna, M. Nedkoff, in an interview today declared that all reports of reprisals were grossly exaggerated. Bulgaria is all quiet, he said, and warned against accepting reports coming from Belgrade at their face value. The revolution planned by the Government's enemies, he went on, has failed miserably, adding that although further outrages may be expected, a serious upheaval need not be feared any longer.

When questioned about the danger of foreign intervention the Minister said that such an intervention would involve consequences of too grave a nature, and no power would take the responsibility.

The Minister's assurances notwithstanding, all the reports published in the Vienna papers tonight tell of the continuation of a reign of terror in Bulgaria.

Sofia's Nerves Are Still on Edge.

SOFIA, April 22.—With the capture of the ringleaders of the Communist group which caused the explosion in the Sofia cathedral the atmosphere in the capital is becoming calmer, but it is no exaggeration to say that every one's nerves are still terribly on edge.

The Sobranje reassembled yesterday afternoon after the Easter recess, but little important business is expected to be transacted as everything is subordinated to the task of running down the criminals, of whom it is stated only about fifteen have not been captured.

After vigorous and patriotic speeches by Premier Tsankoff, the Cabinet Minister of the Interior and leaders of the Democrat, Radical, Liberal and Moderate Agrarian Parties, the Sobranje unanimously approved the declaration of martial law. Only the Socialists refrained from voting. Stallioneoff, the former Democratic Prime Minister, promised the entire support of his party to the Government. The union against Communism is fast becoming an accomplished fact.

Yaroff, the Minister of Finance under Stambulisky, was arrested in Sofia yesterday morning.

How Yankoff was Trapped and Slain.

LONDON, April 22.—A Daily Telegraph dispatch from Milan says that a special correspondent of the Corriere Della Sera, Signor Gino Berri, wiring from Sofia, last night gives further details of the siege of and killing of the Communist leader Yankoff and his companions, and of the present state of the Bulgarian capital. He says:

"The people of Sofia are still under the tragic impression of the Communist terror, and are praying to God to spare them from further calamities. All day, crowds go on a pilgrimage to the cathedral ruins which recall the terrible tragedy. The ruins are irreparable, and besides, according to the Orthodox Rite, any church once the scene of a crime remains definitely desecrated.

"Under the walls of the cottage where, yesterday morning, the terrorist leader Inkoff was killed, two other corpses were found and were recognized as Communists who had acted under the orders of Ninkoff. A letter left by him, the police discovered, contained instructions to the Terrorist Committee at Philippolis enjoining them to discard all humanitarian feelings, because they would be signs of weakness.

"The search for Yankoff last night ended unexpectedly with the discovery of his place of refuge. A comrade of Yankoff revealed the fact that Yankoff was concealed in the house of another terrorist, Gurgeloff, a Lieutenant Colonel of the Communist Reserves, who is in prison. Troops were already watching the neighborhood and when the information was received they had orders to surround the cottage of Gurgeloff, armed with rifles, machine guns and bombs.

Talks to His Wife From Fortress.

"Yankoff was summoned to surrender, but as no reply came, it was decided to send Gurgeloff personally into the house to convey the order to surrender. Gurgeloff was escorted to the approaches of the house and was kept at some distance. He had sworn solemnly that Yankoff was not in the house, but at that very moment Yankoff appeared at a window.

"The police immediately opened fire on the cottage and bombarded it intermittently from 10 P. M. until 2 A. M. Yankoff answered by hurling bombs with method and precision. Suddenly, a bomb thrown by the police, supposed to have fallen on the reserves of ammunition in the courtyard, caused a big explosion and for a certain time the explosion of cartridges continued from the depot which it is believed Yankoff had got had time to place in safety. It is calculated that several thousand rifle cartridges went off.

"At midnight Yankoff asked to be allowed to see his wife. She was brought to the vicinity of the house. Yankoff spoke to her from a distance and asked that she be allowed to enter the house. The police refused, believing that Yankoff that suspect her of having betrayed him and might kill her. When she was removed, Yankoff started again throwing bombs at regular intervals and sometimes discharging his rifle.

"The police redoubled their fire, and when the attack was at its highest Yankoff asked for a parley with an officer. He offered to surrender on conditions but was told that only unconditional surrender would be accepted. The besieged man replied with furious oaths and the attack was resumed.

"For twenty minutes the cottage was bombarded with shells and bombs and nearly demolished. Yankoff at first replied with bombs, but his defense grew weaker and ceased. During the last attack Gurgeloff was killed, hit by a bullet either from the cottage or from the soldiers.

"Officers and soldiers rushed into the ruins of the cottage and found Yankoff dead in a corner, with many wounds. His body was taken out and laid in a field alongside the body of Gurgeloff. Soldiers and officers hurled imprecations on the bodies and the crowd which had gathered was kept away with difficulty from approaching and mutilating Yankoff's body.

"In the smoking ruins of the cottage a collection of rifles with the butts burned, as well as many cartridges, were found, together with piles of letters from terrorists at Philippopolis, Varna and other places.

"The house of Gurgeloff is now believed to have been the headquarters of the organization of the entire terrorist conspiracy. Copies of false orders to various garrisons were found, which indicate that on the morning of the explosion in the cathedral the terrorists believed that the conspiracy would succeed. The false orders sent from Sofia were duly obeyed, and many garrisoned places and munition depots in the hands of the terrorists."

Allies Grant 7,000 More Troops.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 22.—The Council of Ambassadors today authorized Bulgaria to enlist 7,000 additional militia troops in order to cope with the existing situation. This decision followed an exchange of telegrams between the Governments concerned and the favorable ruling of the interallied organization at Sofia, which had transmitted with approval Premier Tsankoff's appeal to the powers.

Bulgaria asked for 10,000 more men in addressing the request to all the signatories of the Treaty of Neuilly. Even the 7,000 authorized can be used only temporarily, as the Council of Ambassadors ruled that the extra force must be demobilized May 31, or upon eight days' notice at any earlier date.

The arms for the troops must be taken from the stocks authorized by the Treaty of Neuilly already in existence in order to prevent any additions to the military equipment in Bulgaria's possession.

The Supreme Council's authorization, it must be noted, is extremely cautious, even though it is unwilling to leave Bulgaria helpless in the face of Bolshevist undertakings. This was because it was feared that situations might easily arise in other countries which have been disarmed that might enable them to demand increased military forces on the grounds of a Bolshevist menace. Such a situation at the Ambassadors' Council wishes to avoid, especially any increases of military personnel or equipment which are likely to be permanent.

ROME, April 22.—An official report from Bulgaria states that King Boris does not intend to leave the country, where he is more popular than ever, especially after the recent attempt upon his life, when the monarch displayed great courage in resisting and attempting to pursue his assailant.

VIENNA, April 22.—A number of Bulgarian students at Gratz, supporters of the Sofia Government, yesterday forced their way into a hotel room where Bulgarian Communist students were holding a meeting, and a bloody battle ensued.

The police found many of the students injured so severely as to require hospital treatment. Both groups were unarmed, but the broken dinner plates, glasses, chairs and even the window frames in the room testified to the severity of the fight.

SOFIA DENIES MASSACRES.

Calls Report of 16,000 Arrests and 4,000 Executions Ridiculous.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 22. — The Bulgarian Legation here received authority today from the home Government to deny New York dispatches alleging the wholesale massacre of Communists in Sofia. The story it was explained to THE NEW YORK TIMES, is ridiculous on the face of it.

There have been, the story declared, 16,000 arrests and 4,000 executions, but Sofia has only 100,000 population altogether and at the last election the entire Communist vote was 5,000. Consequently, it was declared to be absurd to suppose that the Government has acted in any such wholesale fashion.

Of course, martial law and curfew regulation have been instituted, the Legation said, but the steps taken to enforce these are strictly legal according to the regime thus set up, and the news received from Bulgaria shows that all regular public activities such as the post, customs and railways are being carried on without interruption. The statement goes on:

"It is true that the two leading conspirators, Captain Ninkoff and Yankoff, have been killed, but the police did so only because they resisted arrest and would have been much better pleased to capture them alive in the hope of obtaining valuable information from them."

As for the Soviet inspiration of the cathedral outrage, the Bulgarian authorities profess no doubt of it. They have, they say, documents to prove it, and they point to the capture last year of three motor launches laden with explosives of the Soviet pattern and bearing the Soviet Government mark, although an attempt had been made to obliterate it. These launches and their cargo were exhibited to the representatives of the foreign powers in Bulgaria.

On the other hand, it is admitted in Bulgarian circles that there is much of what may be termed indigenous Communistic feeling. The country is very heavily taxed and burdened with hundreds of thousands of refugees who have not yet been absorbed.

It is impossible, it is claimed, with the army of 30,000 men allowed by the peace treaties to prevent the entry of undesirable characters along its 1,500 miles of frontier and there is bound to be economic discontent, which leads to communism, but the actions of all the Bulgarian parties since the outrage, it is contended, show that this internal Communist feeling had no part in causing the explosion.

Opinion in British circles well acquainted with Bulgarian conditions is not quite so well satisfied with the official view. The actual story of the massacre itself is indeed scouted as absurd, but there is an indisposition to think too kindly of the Tsankoff regime. Telegrams from Sofia speaking of "counter-coup searches and usual," it is thought, may imply a good deal of high-handed action. Bulgaria is not used to mild-glove methods, and in recent political history a long series of assassinations uncommonly like a vendetta.

Fedor Alexandroff, the Moderate Macedonian leader put out of the way in August last year, and since then other political figures murdered as well as many recent despatches referred to as "suicides in prison," have an unpleasant sound.

The documents to show Soviet instigation of the cathedral explosion produced by the Bulgarian Government are not held here to be absolutely conclusive, and have been compared, as regards their authenticity to the famous Zinoviev letter. At the same time there is no doubt that at the moment the country has received a severe shock and that, in face of the desperate and strong Communistic elements, all sections of the community are thought now to be rallying around the Government. The effect the outrage will have on Balkan affairs is thought here, on the whole, to be against any Siberian move against its neighbor.

Serbia is opposed to the Tsankoff Government and was much more kindly disposed toward former Premier Stambulisky, the Agrarian who was assassinated in 1923. Serbia also has been flirting with the Extremist section in Macedonia, who are of a distinct Communist sentiment. But such an outrage on civilization as the cathedral bombing has, it is believed, caused the Balgrade authorities a good deal of anxiety for their own position. Communism is by no means a negligible danger within its own borders, and they are likely now to be aroused against it as common danger.

A dispatch to The Morning Post from Belgrade says that the police have arrested Premalina, the second leader of the Communist party in Bulgaria, and the wife of Major Yankoff, chief of the Communist military staff. The dispatch said it had been confirmed that Yankoff and Minkoff received a large sum of money from Moscow, and promises of important posts in the Bulgarian Soviet Republic. According to reports from Sofia, the danger of revolution has been removed for the time being, but the Bulgarian Government considers that the assassinations will continue.

The Labor paper, The Daily Herald, claims to be able to expose as a forgery the alleged letter from the Communist International containing secret instructions for a Bulgarian insurrection on April 15, which it is stated was found on a Soviet agent captured by the Bulgarian police early in April.

The paper declares that such a document never came from Moscow, but from Berlin, and was really the work of Czarist conspirators. As proof it quotes the heading of the document, "ECCI, Central Section, Department for Foreign Relations." The Herald, after pointing out that the Comintern has no Department for Foreign Relations, proceeds:

"As long ago as March 24, long before the document was published, before it had been captured, the Berlin Rote Fahne issued a warning that a fake was being prepared, though for what sinister purpose it could not then surmise.

"It had discovered that a white exofficer, now working as a secret agent, a man known sometimes as Gutschinski, sometimes as Bruschevski, living at 99 Anabacherstrasse, Berlin, had printed at a printing works in Lutherstrasse, Berlin, thousands of copies of forged Third International note paper. This Gutschinski forgery bore the same damningly impossible heading 'ECCI, Central Section, Department for Foreign Relations.'"

SOVIET PRESS ANGRY.

Deny That Moscow Fostered the Bomb Outrage in Sofia Cathedral.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, April 22.—The Soviet press, which prints the news of the outrage at Sofia only this morning in the absence of papers during the three Easter holidays, resents the comments in the foreign press which attributes "the revolutionary terror" in Bulgaria to "Moscow strategy and the intrigues of the Comintern."

The Pravda declares:

"We Communists are resolutely opposed to individualistic terror. We call on all supporters of the Comintern not to lend themselves to provocation, and to rely only upon the movement of the masses, organizing them against all Government licentiousness. The Comintern never, nowhere, has planned individual terror."

The entire Soviet press regards the explosion in the cathedral as an outburst of national ager against the policy of the Tsankoff Government, and as a revolutionary counter-terror against the reactionary terror of the Government. Kollaroff, general secretary of the Comintern, himself a Bulgarian, in a special article evinces the belief that the attempt upon the life of the Bulgarian King was the work of Tsankoff's supporters, as King Boris disagrees with Tsankoff expressing dissatisfaction with the Government's terroristic policy. He has refused to sign the death sentences.

Unfavorable comment in the German democratic press against Russia especially angers the Soviet papers, who remark that Soviet Russia was the only state which expressed sympathy with Germany when France trampled it under its feet, and the other great powers kept in her face."

DEATH FOR 3 REDS FOR GERMAN PLOT

13 OTHERS GO TO PRISON

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 22.—Three Communists were condemned to death today and thirteen, including one woman, received sentences ranging from six months' to fifteen years' imprisonment as the climax of the sensational "German Cheka" trial which has been dragging on for several months before the Leipsic Supreme Court.

In announcing the sentences the Court asserted that the accusations that the Moscow Soviet authorities had planned, through those condemned, to overthrow the German republic had been fully substantiated.

The Court declared that the Soviet Embassy at Berlin was used as a meeting place by German and Russian Communists plotting a revolution in Germany, that documents had been discovered covering the complete mobilization plans, that typhus germs were found wherewith the plotters intended to start an epidemic in Germany, and that schemes had been matured for creating a reign of terror in the entire country favorable to the revolutionary movement directed from Moscow.

The three men sentenced to death were Felix Neumann, Ernest Poege and Alexander Skobleuski. The first named was accused of murdering the barber, Raunch, because the latter had been surprised betraying the Communist cause, and also of numerous treasonable acts. Poege was condemned for murder and conspiracy and Skobleuski for complicity in murder and conspiracy. The last named is a mysterious Russian, said to have been a General in the Russian Red Army, who put down the Cronstadt rebellion and was especially sent by the Moscow Government to foment a Communist revolution in Germany.

A big crowd packed the court room at Leipsic today, breathlessly awaiting the court's verdict. When the sentences were announced the defendants cheered for Moscow, while their sympathizers among the spectators threw them red flowers. As those sentenced were led from the court room they continued the cheering, which was taken up by some of the spectators.

The authorities interfered, declaring that if quiet were not restored the cheering spectators would be arrested. The noise continued, notwithstanding, until finally one spectator was arrested.

The long-drawn-out trial has been rich in sensations. What with the amazing testimony of Neumann and others regarding plots to murder notable Germans and the connection between Moscow and the German Communist Party, and frequent altercations between attorneys for the defendants and the presiding Judge, it will go down in German court annals as one of the most remarkable and longest trials on record.

Neumann is a Berlin printer, who confessed that in 1923 he was commissioned by Skobleuski to organize the proposed Communist revolution which, according to the charges, was to start in Saxony and then capture Berlin. Neumann, who turned State's evidence, said that he received $35,000 from Russian sources to promote the revolution. The defense maintained that Neumann is a mental defective.

Skobleuski was called the "master mind" of the revolutionary group. He is alleged to have been working, under Moscow's direction and to have placed money from Moscow with German munitions workers for the purchase of arms, explosives and ammunition.

Poege, a carpenter of Leipsic, was charged with being one of the terrorist group that proposed, under Neumann's direction, to distribute poisoned food to a group of selected Government officials and industrial leaders.

The other defendants, charged variously with murder, incitation to murder, attempted murder and high treason, were Johannes Stohn, Berlin locksmith; Rudolf Margies, Bochum factory worker; Adolf Mpersner, Berlin taxi driver; Otto Koenig, Stuttgart furniture polisher; Adolf Koenig, Stuttgart iron worker; Emil Leanise, Stuttgart fireman; Maira Leanise, wife of Emil Leanise; Gottwald Meus, Berlin electrical worker; Ewald Huke, Berlin workman; Emil Hallup, Berlin mechanician; Karl Intorf, Berlin tailor; August Mayer, Berlin clerk; Georg Kuhle, Berlin woodworker.

BERLIN, April 22 (Associated Press).—Fifty Communists, held in the city jail on charges of political offenses, have begun a hunger strike in protest against what they allege is the intentional delay of the authorities in bringing them to trial.

SELLS FARM, HANGS HIMSELF

Austrian Farmer Chagrined by Error in Estimating Currency Value.

VIENNA, April 22.—The new Austrian shilling currency, in which reckonings are already being made, although it exists in name only, is causing many errors, sometimes with tragic results.

Thus a Styrian farmer, Stefan Schriebel, yesterday hanged himself upon learning that the 300 shillings for which he had sold his farm, was not the equivalent of 200,000,000 crowns, but only 2,000,000.

HERRIOT IS ELECTED CHAMBER PRESIDENT

OPPOSITION DO NOT VOTE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 22.—Even more than during yesterday's debate the bitterness of the French party quarrel showed itself today in the Chamber of Deputies. Between the Nationalist minority and the Left majority there is neither quarter nor courtesy. With dissolution as its ultimate aim, the Opposition is fighting every inch on every issue, whether the appointment of M. Caillaux to the Cabinet, the security policy of the Government, proposed financial reforms or any other.

Today a clash came on the election of the retiring Premier, M. Herriot, to M. Painlevé's former place as President of the Chamber. M. Herriot is an exception among French public men in this, that he has no personal enemies among his opponents. Even M. Poincaré has always extended to him some sign of friendship.

When, therefore, the Left proposed to elect him to the Presidency of the Chamber the Opposition at once declared that it would not oppose any candidate. Secure in that promise, many Left Deputies this morning left for Paris to take part in the municipal election campaigns. They did not foresee the manoeuvre which was intended. Without exception the whole Right abstained at the first ballot, with the result that there was not a quorum and the election had to be held over again.

Under the rules of the House the majority elects on a second ballot, and then M. Herriot got every Left vote in the House, 266 in all.

M. Caillaux's presence in the Government is now the excuse for every kind of filibustering and riot. Though Léon Daudet is no longer a Deputy, the standard of manners he set in debate and the insolence of his interruptions without their gay wit is being followed studiously by the young school of the Opposition. Of these M. Tharnagaray and M. Balanant are the leaders.

Today, overjoyed at the success of his manoeuvre, which had produced hours of wasted time on the first ballot for the Presidency, M. Balanant went beyond the patience of the House. He installed himself behind the President's chair, accused one of the secretaries of having sought to cook the voting and constituted himself censor of the proceedings.

The acting President asked him to resume his seat. M. Balanant refused. The argument got warm and, their patience exhausted by obstruction and insult and his self-constituted control of the proceedings, half a dozen Socialists rushed to the tribune and physically threw the offending Nationalist from the President's platform. Blows were struck and for a moment it seemed that the President's chair was likely to be overturned in the scrimmage.

Tomorrow the Chamber proposes to vote provisional credits for the next two months and thereafter will disband for a month's municipal electioneering in the country.

On what happens then a very great deal depends, for if the Nationalists make any appearance of winning, it is considered certain that on their return toward the end of May they will by every kind of tactics endeavor to make the position of the Government so intolerable that a new election will be forced on the country.

10 HELD FOR PLOT TO PASS BAD NOTES

BOGUS BILLS IN A BIBLE

Woman Among Prisoners—Authorities Believe Gang Circulated Notes Made Abroad.

Ten men were held in $10,000 bail, each, in the Federal Court yesterday after Government officials had alleged that several plots to flood the United States with bogus $5, $10 and $20 banknotes had been uncovered. The arrest of one of the men in Newark on Tuesday afternoon and the questioning of his birde of two weeks led to the apprehension of the other nine men in this city late that night and early yesterday.

Assistant United States District Attorney J. Arthur Adler admitted that while Secret Service agents assisted by the police of Newark and this city, had seized counterfeit notes of a face value of $3,000, no information had been obtained from the suspects regarding the identity of the counterfeiter.

"For a long time the Government suspected that bands of counterfeiters in Europe, particularly in Russia and Poland, had been turning out large quantities of bogus American bank notes," Mr. Adler said, "and were disposing of them through agents in the principal cities here. Some of those arraigned yesterday before Judge Thacher admitted their connection with the plot, but seemingly did not know who made the spurious bank notes or their main agents in the United States."

Assistant District Attorney Maxwell S. Mattuck, in charge of the criminal division of the prosecutor's office, announced that the evidence against the ten men would be presented today or tomorrow to the Federal Grand Jury. Quick trial would be sought, he said.

Small storekeepers have made many complaints recently that bogus notes had been offered them. The chance visit of Traffic Policeman Simms Tuesday afternoon to the candy store of George Tillian, in Broad Street, Newark, led to the arrest of the first of the alleged counterfeiting and, Bernie R. Prince, who gave the address of 167 West Eightieth Street, this city. Tillian, the Government officials said, was unable to change the $20 banknote Prince gave him and visited a near-by bank, where the counterfeit readily was recognized. When Tillian ran back and announced the banknote was bogus, Simms seized Prince.

James A. Palma, head of the Secret Service Division in this city, was notified and hurried over to Newark with James R. Shelhorse, one of his agents. They brought Prince here and lodged a charge of counterfeiting against him. Two agents were sent to his home, where they found Mrs. Prince. It was alleged these agents also found four spurious $20 banknotes on a table and two others between the leaves of a Bible. When Mrs. Prince was brought to Mr. Palma's office, the prisoner was alleged to have confessed that he had received the counterfeits from Tony Day of 25 First Avenue.

He also was alleged to have told of the eight other accused men. Day and Mike Baldo of 153 Ridge Street were arrested together. Salvatore and Carmela Stagnitta, brothers, were found at 90 Thompson Street. As the officials broke in, one of them said later, one of the brothers threatened them with a pistol as he attempted to escape through a window to a fire escape. In the same house the detectives arrested Louis Mignozzi, Arthur (Buster) Scheible of 615 East Twelfth Street; Allen Arnold, alias Morrow, of 256 West Forty-sixth Street, and James Grieci and Salvatore Provanzano, who refused their addresses, were apprehended subsequently.

According to Assistant District Attorney Maxwell S. Mattuck, in charge of the criminal division of the prosecutor's office, announced that the evidence against the ten men would be presented today or tomorrow to the Federal Grand Jury. Quick trial would be sought, he said.

French Defend Move to Deal With Britain Before Negotiating Debt Agreement Here

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 22.—Today's papers carry a Washington dispatch saying that the United States is closely watching the French debt negotiations with England because the American Government is not willing that France should treat England as a preferred creditor.

I am asked to emphasize the assertion that from the French point of view it is not fair to presume that because France is conducing debt talks with England she intends to treat England as a preferred creditor. It is argued here that the French debts to England and to the United States are not exactly in the same category, and that it is incorrect to suppose that the French action is anything but proper in seeking a prior settlement with London.

The difference in the two debts lies in the fact that while France stands to get a reduction from England she has as yet no such prospect from the American side. That being the case, the French think it but natural to try to arrange with England first, not only because such a process will give Paris a clear understanding of her responsibilities toward England, but also, doubtless, because the French think the example of England's concessions may have an effect upon the United States.

England has offered to accept from friend and foe on the Continent what she must pay the United States. Practically, this means that the allied debts to England will be reduced by the amount England gets from Germany on the reparations account. This system indicates the reduction of at least two-thirds of the French debt to Great Britain. Therefore, the French feel that the prospects of reaching an acceptable arrangement with the United States is not only not harmed, but really helped, by the prior arrangement in London.

It is insisted here that a prior settlement with England would not at all mean that the French intend to pay England and not pay America.

SUES FORD FOR $1,000,000.

Aaron Sapiro Charges Libel in Dearborn Paper's Market Articles.

DETROIT, Mich., April 22.—Damages of $1,000,000 were asked in a suit filed in United States District Court here today against Henry Ford and the Dearborn Publishing Company, which he owns. The action was brought by Aaron Sapiro, an attorney who has been connected prominently for many years with cooperative marketing organizations of farmers and fruit growers throughout the country.

Sapiro's suit charges that certain articles printed in The Dearborn Independent, a weekly newspaper published by Ford, have injured him as an attorney.

The petition quotes articles which it is averred appeared in The Dearborn Independent, accusing Sapiro of being one in "a conspiracy of Jewish bankers who seek to control the food markets of the world." It further quotes the publication as saying that the plaintiff is seeking to get control of the wheat, cotton, potato, hop, hay, tobacco, raisin and bean markets.

Sapiro's petition asserts that he has been active for fifteen years in building up marketing associations for agricultural products, that he has not served in any way except as his services were requested and that he has no knowledge of a conspiracy.

tended with these persons a performance at the Metropolitan Opera House. He admitted that there was an interval between the dinner and the opera, during which, he said, Colonel House prepared a number of letters of introduction for Mr. Wheeler's use in Europe. This was the day before Senator and Mrs. Wheeler sailed for Europe, and the day Mr. Hayes swore he met the Senator.

Wheeler and Slattery Near Clash.

Senator Wheeler took the witness chair at 11 o'clock this morning, and the cross-examination by District Attorney Slattery was just getting under way when at 5 o'clock this afternoon Judge Dietrich adjourned court. It looks now as if the examination will take up most of tomorrow's session.

At times while Senator Wheeler was testifying the bitterness of the feeling existing between himself and Mr. Slattery would crop out. Once the two men were warm friends. On one occasion today, when Mr. Wheeler accused Mr. Slattery of rifling the files of Gordon Campbell, it seemed that a real clash was ahead, but the Judge intervened.

In his direct examination of his accused colleague Senator Walsh sought to get into the record every question which the Government in its cross-examination could be expected to emphasize. He compelled the prosecution to hand him letters which had been found in the files of Gordon Campbell, read them into the record and then gave the witness the chance to explain them in his own way.

In the hour that preceded the calling of Senator Wheeler the defense put on several witnesses, among them William G. Feeley, who is Mr. Campbell's Washington lawyer; A. B. Meitzer of Butte, who was clerk of the Daugherty investigating committee; Colonel H. L. Willard, a retired army officer and a trustee of the Campbell syndicate, and Fred M. Munger of Lewistown, who was called for the purpose of impeaching the testimony of Clyde Glosser, former secretary to Campbell.

Mr. Meitzer declared that he was the man who introduced Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Hayes in 1924, and the meeting, he affirmed, was that of two who appeared never to have met before.

At Odds on Telephone Evidence.

Whether the trial will be adjourned two days to permit certain defense witnesses now on the way from Buffalo, New York and Washington to testify depends on the Government.

Senator Walsh says he will rest the case soon after the cross-examination is concluded if the Government will consent to the introduction of a telegraphic report from the Washington Bell Telephone Company to the effect that there is no record of any long distance telephone conversation having taken place on March 16, 1923, between Mr. Hayes and Edwin S. Booth, the former Solicitor of the Department of the Interior. Just now the Government is not inclined to grant this concession.

Mr. Hayes has sworn that on the date given Mr. Booth called him on the long distance and arranged for him to see Senator Wheeler at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Senator Wheeler was smiling as he took the witness chair. The courtroom was packed to capacity and outside another crowd, big enough to fill it a second time, tried to hear a word or two through the open doors. First Senator Walsh asked a few questions to fix Mr. Wheeler's status in the record, then he took up the Hayes testimony.

"Were you present on Monday when the witness Hayes testified?" he asked.

"I was," replied Mr. Wheeler, who started to continue his answer, but Senator Walsh halted him, asking:

"Did you hear his statement that he met you in the Waldorf-Astoria and if so, what have you to say?"

"I never met this man Hayes but once in my life," Mr. Wheeler replied. "I never met him in the Waldorf-Astoria.

The only time I ever met him was when he appeared before the Senate committee named to investigate ex-Attorney General Daugherty. The first time I ever heard his name was when it was mentioned in the course of the Daugherty investigation by a witness named Gorini, a bootlegger."

"Who introduced Hayes to you when he was called before the Committee?"

"I was introduced to him in the anteroom of the Committee by Mr. Meitzer, the clerk of the committee."

"Did you ever discuss with Hayes the affairs of Gordon Campbell?"

Details Movement on March 16.

"Now," said Senator Walsh, "I want you to tell this jury how you spent the day of March 16, 1923, the day you were in New York, and the day prior to your departure for Europe."

"I am not certain whether I left Washington in the afternoon or the evening of March 15," replied Senator Wheeler. "At any rate, I was in New York the sixteenth. I had decided some days prior to this to go to Europe and had wired Mrs. Wheeler who was in Butte, to join me in New York. She arrived in the morning of the sixteenth. It was necessary for her to do a lot of shopping, and I was with her the entire day. I recall that late in the afternoon some of her purchases had not been delivered and I went with her to Avedon's on Fifth Avenue—that is the name as I recall it—to make certain the deliveries, which included, among other things, a hat, were delivered that night. The store was about to close and did close. I am certain, while we were there.

"Returning to the Waldorf, we dressed, and at about 7:30 went in a taxicab to the home of Mrs. Griswold, where we dined.

"Others at the dinner were Colonel and Mrs. Edward M. House, Mrs. Harriman and a Colonel Stone of the army. I think two other persons were also present, but I do not recall their names at this time. Following dinner we attended the opera with the same party. Colonel House and I remained long enough for Colonel House to write some letters of introduction for me, after which we joined the others at the opera."

Soon after 9 o'clock the next morning, Senator Wheeler said, he left with Mrs. Wheeler for the pier, and sailed, he thought, about noon.

Denies Engagement With Hayes.

"What of the engagement that Mr. Hayes says he made for you? Inquired Senator Walsh.

"There was no such engagement. There is nothing to it," Wheeler replied.

"What can you say as to any conversation you ever had with Mr. Booth about Mr. Hayes?"

"I don't recall that Mr. Booth ever mentioned the name of the man to me. He mentioned some names in connection with the financing of Mr. Campbell and if he mentioned Mr. Hayes's name, it made no impression on me."

Senator Walsh switched to the affairs of Gordon Campbell. Senator Wheeler said that at the time, in January, 1925, when Tom Stout asked him to represent Mr. Campbell in the litigations pending in the courts of Montana, he had never met the man whose misfortunes are at the bottom of the whole Montana mess. His testimony as to his retention to represent Campbell was similar to the testimony given yesterday by Mr. Stout.

"Mr. Stout," said Senator Wheeler, "told me Mr. Campbell had a lot of trouble with his employes, his partners and others and he asked me to try the receivership case as well as other cases then pending, or about to be started, in the Montana courts. I told Mr. Stout I was leaving for Washington and I did not care to take on any new cases

"In the end, after it was stipulated that my employment was to be confined to cases pending in the State courts and that in my absence my partner, Mr. Baldwin, was to look after the business, I named $10,000 annually as the fee and asked for a first payment of $4,000. Shortly thereafter I agreed to take $2,000, one-half of which was paid to Mr. Baldwin. Subsequently there was one other payment of $2,000."

The witness told of his various trips to Great Falls which, he said, were principally for the purpose of getting the receivership case in shape. He attended a meeting of the Campbell stockholders where the receivership case was discussed and the financial status of the syndicate surveyed.

Says He Never Discussed Permits.

He also had many conferences with Mr. Beaulliu, who was Mr. Campbell's office lawyer, and several conferences with Mr. Campbell. At none of these conferences were Federal permits or titles referred to, the Senator declared.

"The statement that we discussed permits is as false as it is absurd," he added.

"Glosser, in his testimony," Senator Walsh interrupted, "said that you had asked him to send you data on the Phil Magowan permit."

"It is not true," Senator Wheeler answered. "For I never heard of that permit. As far as I can recollect that permit was never mentioned to me in my life. There was no discussion of permits. There was no occasion for it.

"The only time I ever heard a permit mentioned was when Mr. Campbell called me into his office and said he wanted me to hear a conversation he was having with Mr. Coleman of The Standard of California. The conversation was between Mr. Campbell and Mr. Coleman."

"What of the Zyrna testimony, the witness who says he overheard you say you would fix things up in Washington?"

"I don't recall ever having seen that man prior to his appearance on the witness stand at this trial. There was no truth in Zyrna's story."

Senator Wheeler said he remembered distinctly having met the witness Wertheimer in the Rainbow Hotel. Wertheimer testified that he had talked permits with Wheeler and that the latter had said everything would be all right.

The Senator said he was in Mr. Campbell's room when Mr. Wertheimer came in. But there was no business discussed at the time, he said, the gathering being purely of a social nature. So far as he knew, nothing was said about the organization of a $10,000,000 Campbell Consolidated Company and so far as he recalled, the word "permit" was not even mentioned while he was in the room.

Narrates Relations with Booth.

Continuing his narrative, Senator Wheeler told of his arrival in Washington a few days prior to March 4, 1923. He said he had been here something over a week when he called on Mr. Booth, who, he explained, was an old Montana friend. The first time he called, Mr. Booth was engaged. The second time, which was on or about March 13, he talked with him for an hour or more.

"Booth and I talked for some time about Montana and Montana people," said Mr. Wheeler. "In the course of the conversation I told him I had been retained by Gordon Campbell to represent him out there. I told him about Mr. and Mrs. Campbell's troubles, how he was desperately in need of financing, and how he was obsessed with the notion that the big oil companies were trying to drive him out of business.

"I asked Mr. Booth if he knew any one who might be interested and he replied he knew somebody who might be interested. He asked me the extent of Mr. Campbell's holdings and I replied that I did not know. Then it was that somebody said Mr. Nyce was in the building, and Mr. Nyce was called in by Mr. Booth, who told him of Mr. Campbell's difficulties.

"Mr. Nyce asked for a description of the property and the telegram asking for a list of and a description of the properties was, at Mr. Nyce's suggestion, wired to Mr. Campbell, who was in Great Falls. That was all there was to it. The date was March 13, and I did not see Mr. Booth again until the following June.

"Did you have any contract or agreement with Mr. Campbell the purpose of which was to interest some person or persons in the financing of his business?" asked Senator Walsh.

"I did not, and was sorry for Mr. Campbell and it was just a question of helping somebody," Senator Wheeler answered.

Then Senator Wheeler told of his introduction to Commissioner Spry of the Land Office. He said that he was in Mr. Spry's office but a minute or two and that there was no mention of any permits.

He said he was sure that Governor Spry was mistaken when he testified that Mr. Booth had, in that interview, mentioned the Montana permits.

Cross-Examination Grows Warm.

Taking up the cross-examination District Attorney Slattery wanted to know if Senator Wheeler knew that the complaint in the receivership case mentioned several Government permits.

Since he had read the complaint, he certainly must have known it, said Senator Wheeler. The purpose of the question was not disclosed for it is admitted that this case was fought and won in the Montana courts.

"Did Tom Stout mention to you these permits when he retained you to represent Mr. Campbell?" asked Mr. Slattery.

"I certainly do not recall that he ever did," replied Senator Wheeler.

Mr. Wheeler was leaning far forward in his chair and snapped his answers to Slattery's questions in machine gun fashion.

"Did you say to Campbell that you would fix the permits up when you got to Washington?" asked Mr. Slattery.

"I never said such a thing in my life. Such a conversation never took place," replied Senator Wheeler.

"Do you know Mr. Coleman of the Standard of California?"

"I do."

Senator Wheeler repeated the story about being called into Campbell's office to overhear a conversation. That conversation, he said, was between Mr. Campbell and Mr. Coleman and concerned a permit which was involved in a sale of acreage which Mr. Campbell had negotiated with the California Company.

"Mr. Coleman," said Senator Wheeler, "started to tell me something about a permit Mr. Campbell had said to his company and I was given to understand that they had reached an agreement, whereupon I did say to them that as they had agreed and there was no dispute they should have no trouble in the department. And I did mention Mr. Booth's name in this same connection."

"Did you tell Mr. Campbell you would inquire about it when you got to Washington?"

"I told him I would make the inquiry. I was not concerned in the case and I was simply acting as any Senator would act in the case of a constituent who made a similar request."

"So you did say you would look into it?" exclaimed Mr. Slattery.

"Why, certainly." Mr. Wheeler snapped back.

It was at this point Mr. Wheeler accused Mr. Slattery of rifling Mr. Campbell's files. Mr. Slattery denied the charge.

It was rumored tonight that the office of Mr. O'Leary of counsel for Senator Wheeler was entered and his files were ransacked Saturday night. The Department of Justice contingent attending the trial deny they did the ransacking.

Col. House Recalls Dinner Party.

When informed of Senator Wheeler's testimony, at his home, 104 East Sixty-eighth Street, here, last night, Colonel Edward M. House said:

"I remember dining with Senator Wheeler at a dinner party given by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman here in March of 1923 just before the Senator left for Europe. After dinner we went to the opera, I cannot, of course, place the exact date, but I am sure it was somewhere about March 16."

Senator Walsh had Senator Wheeler identify several letters which passed between Gordon Campbell and himself. They had been seized by the Department of Justice in the office of Mr. Campbell. They related to the cases in which Mr. Campbell was involved and were introduced for the purpose of showing that the employment of Senator Wheeler had to do only with litigation in the Montana courts.

BOOTH ATTACKS INDICTMENT.

Assails Presence of Four Officials Before Washington Grand Jury.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Edwin B. Booth, former Solicitor for the Department of the Interior and a former Assistant Attorney General, who was jointly indicted with Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana and Gordon Campbell, also of Montana, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the Government in connection with the leasing of Government oil and gas lands in Montana, made an attack on the indictment today in the Criminal Court here through his counsel, Colonel Jesse B. Roote of Butte, Mont., and Bertrand Emerson Jr. of Washington.

The attack consists of a demurrer and a plea in abatement. The plea is based on the alleged unlawful appearance of Colonel William J. Donovan, John S. Pratt, Robert P. Stewart and Oliver E. Pagen, assistants to the Attorney General, in the Grand Jury room while the investigation was going on. The plea says that the reasons why the appearance of these attorneys was unlawful will be explained to the Court when arguments on the plea are heard.

Mr. Booth also complains that if he committed any offense while a public officer he should have been indicted under a law denouncing malfeasance of public officers and not made a defendant in a conspiracy case and not improperly joined as a defendant with Senator Wheeler and Gordon Campbell as a co-conspirator.

The appearance of Mr. Pagen in the Grand Jury room in the cases involving the Fall-Doheny-Sinclair group caused Chief Justice Walter McCoy to quash the indictments. But it is pointed out that Congress did not enact any special legislation for investigation and prosecution in the Wheeler-Booth-Campbell case as it did with regard to the Fall-Doheny-Sinclair matter and that consequently the appearance of the Attorney General or his assistants, as complained of by Mr. Booth, was not specifically forbidden by a special law.

JOHANNESBURG READY TO WELCOME PRINCE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JOHANNESBURG, April 22.—Officials in close touch with the natives are confident the decision of the African National Congress to boycott the Prince of Wales during his visit will be ignored by the chiefs and their followers.

The Prince, they say, is certain to receive a magnificent welcome from the great bulk of the native peoples, whose loyalty is unquestionable, and it is probably irritation caused by the knowledge of this fact, it is said, that has been responsible for the attack made upon the chiefs at yesterday's meeting.

It is common knowledge that the loyalty and personal influence of the chiefs are the greatest obstacles in the way of the plans of the native agitators, who hope to undermine the chiefs' authority and usurp their functions.

All bodies interested in native welfare, except the African National Congress, will take part in the welcome. The Prince will have a guard of honor of native police and the royal party will be preceded by a procession of natives, suitably dressed and trained.

LAGOS, Nigeria, April 22 (Associated Press).—Concluding his memorable visit to Nigeria, during which he penetrated far into the interior and received the native chiefs, the Prince of Wales left Lagos on the battle cruiser Repulse this morning in continuation of his Southern voyage.

The Prince found his trip through Nigeria interesting and enjoyable, despite the great heat. Yesterday he again engaged in polo, playing six chukkers and scoring a goal for his side.

There was an impressive military display as he boarded the Repulse.

PASSENGERS DIFFER ON HOMERIC EFFORT

He was corroborated in all that he said by James J. Loeb, a diamond importer, 20 West Forty-eighth Street; Herman Brunner, a watch importer, of 93 Nassau Street; Henry E. Hart, an importer, of 452 Fifth Avenue, and Colonel Paul E. Alberti, a marine insurance underwriter, of 50 Pine Street.

Colonel Alberti said: "When we came alongside the sinking Japanese freighter, there were about 25 or 30 men clinging to the railing of the ship which was listing heavily. I could see them plainly through my binoculars. All had on life preservers.

"I saw one man in the water. We had come alongside the Japanese ship about 11:30 A. M., when we were closest. We protected her from the wind and from the heavy seas. There was a fairly smooth sea between us and the Japanese ship. I was standing on the stern deck. Many other passengers were out on deck watching the tragic spectacle. Most of the passengers were on Deck A.

All Had Life Preservers!

"We could see the poor devils, all having life preservers on and waiting to be rescued. But we did not shoot any lines across to them as I hoped they would. I understand the Homeric did not have any equipment for shooting lines. If any rafts had been let loose on lines—which could have been done without risking or sacrificing one man of the Homeric's crew, since the sea was too rough for boats—the sea would have carried the rafts toward the sinking boat.

"No heroic effort was made to rescue those men. Some of the passengers and crew volunteered to go overboard, but they were not permitted to make any attempt to rescue the men from the Japanese ship."

"Yes," said Mr. Loeb. "There was a college boy who volunteered to go overboard. Of course, we may all be wrong. We don't know nautical lore, but I agree with Colonel Alberti when he says that no heroic effort was made to save those poor devils. Last night we were all shot to pieces by this experience. It will always be a debatable question."

Mr. Hart said he concurred in everything that had been said by the other three, but he wished to make it clear that he thought the Captain of the Homeric did right when he did not send his men out in frail lifeboats in the tempestuous sea in which the Japanese freighter was foundering.

Liston L. Lewis of the law firm of Lewis & Delsey, 120 Broadway, said: "I was not impressed with the belief that the Homeric upheld the best traditions of the sea. The reason I make this statement is that I saw several men struggling in the water for some time after the Japanese ship capsized. They were struggling to save themselves."

Says Captain Was Right.

"When we backed up alongside the Japanese ship," said G. J. Heatherton, 563 Broome Street, New York City, "the water was covered with wreckage, and many of the passengers exclaimed from time to time, 'There's a man floating. I see a head!' and so on. As the wreckage drifted nearer to the stern of the Homeric we could see that some of the objects that looked like human heads were only sacks.

"I'll stick to it. Every move this man (Captain Roberts) made was the right move."

Mr. Heatherton was warmly supported in his praise of Captain Roberts by other passengers of the Homeric, among them V. Bliss of Scranton, Pa., who said:

"The Captain would have been a murderer if he had sent a boat out in that mountainous sea. Why, to get across from one side of the Homeric to the other you had to hold on to the railings with both hands. My wife was not able to cross from one side of the ship to the other."

S. A. Abderson of Buffalo said:

"When we backed up alongside the sinking ship there was a lot of wreckage afloat, and frequently I thought I could see a man's head. But as it came closer I found it was only driftwood. I believe that Captain Roberts did all he could in an extremely difficult situation."

"I was glad to be one of those who signed the testimonial to Captain Roberts," said S. Brandes of Antwerp. Everybody felt the same way I did, and they applauded the Captain when he entered the dining saloon at lunch. I believe that 50 per cent. of the first class passengers signed the testimonial."

Ralph Crews, a lawyer, 55 Wall Street, telling what he saw when the Homeric steamed closest to the sinking Japanese ship, said:

"When we first came alongside the Japanese ship, her steam was pouring from all sides, her engines were going and her pumps were working. All those things were still going when the Japanese ship was at a terrible list.

Boats Ready For Launching.

"I saw three of the Homeric's lifeboats ready to be lowered as we came alongside the Japanese ship. But when we backed up on the other side of the freighter, her pumps and everything else that was working suddenly stopped. The steam disappeared. She didn't seem to even have a life raft. Her davits were clear, and the obvious inference was she had tried to launch her own boats and didn't succeed.

"I don't see how anything could have been done. Everything was done that could be done. The sudden change that took place after we first came alongside the Japanese ship was inconceivable. The whole crew was along the rail and they began to go. They were washed off in groups as their capsized ship was swept by three gigantic waves. As the Japanese were washed off their ship we could see them swimming around for a minute, but they quickly disappeared. They were washed from their ship awfully fast. The Japanese ship was completely awash after she capsized. The Captain of the Homeric is entirely correct when he says he did not see any one to save, because they disappeared so fast after they were washed overboard."

Testimonial to Captain.

The testimonial to Captain Roberts and the names of the 123 passengers who signed it follow:

April 22, 1925.

Captain Roberts, S. S. Homeric:

We, the undersigned passengers of your steamer, desire to express our appreciation of your efforts yesterday in endeavoring to rescue the crew of the Raifuku Maru and to share your regret and sorrow in that the terrible conditions prevailing at the time rendered your efforts unavailing:

The Captain's Report.

The White Star Line sent a request by radio to Captain Roberts for a detailed account of his attempt to rescue the thirty-eight officers and members of the crew of the Japanese freighter, and his report, prepared before his ship arrived in port, follows:

At 5:47 A. M. (New York time) 21st April, in answer to W/T distress message from Chatham, Mass., regarding Raifuku Maru, course was altered toward the position given in the message, 111 miles distant. Speed was increased to the maximum speed possible in the prevailing weather: wind N. N. E., strong gale (9) and high sea.

W/T message was dispatched to the Raifuku Maru to use W-T as much as possible, and Homeric's course was altered in accordance with bearing of Raifuku Maru found by wireless direction finder.

At 10:50 A. M. sighted Raifuku Maru ahead, distant about 2 miles, visibility being low with sleet and driving spray. Speed was reduced and oil pumped outboard while approaching the Raifuku Maru to windward. Ship apparently had a list to starboard of about 60 degrees. Men were seen clinging to the rail. As Homeric got abreast of Raifuku Maru's stern, efforts were made to turn, so as to approach Raifuku Maru's lee side, these failed, and ship was backed toward Raifuku Maru's stern. When close to windward of wreck her keel could be seen when she lurched, and when nearing the lee quarter much small wreckage, but no life or boat, was seen. At 11:18 A. M. Raifuku Maru capsized, or settled down, while on her beam-ends; the sea entering top of funnel, while great seas broke over the ends of the ship. Homeric continued to pump oil outboard, with lifeboats ready for lowering, and stood by without seeing man or boat until Raifuku Maru sank at 11:56 A. M. Homeric again closed on the floating wreckage, but no life, or anything to support life, in that terrific sea, remained. The gale increased in force, and Homeric secured boats, and proceeded on the voyage.

To Captain Raifuku Maru:
Coming as fast as possible, twenty knots, now seventy miles from you. COMMANDER.
To Raifuku Maru:
We are forty-five miles from you, proceeding 20 knots. We are fitted with directional wireless. Keep your wireless going. COMMANDER.

"It was a very trying time," said Captain Roberts to newspaper men after the Homeric arrived at Quarantine. "We stood by until the Japanese ship disappeared. We were there about an hour.

"We steamed 111 miles west-by-north after picking her first S O S call. We twenty miles an hour through tremendous seas. We changed our course only slightly, and the detour did not cause us to lose much, because we were way east anyhow. We went about fifty miles north of our course.

"The weather was not very clear. It was raining and sleeting, and the atmosphere had the appearance of rain and snow. The spray made it difficult to see far. We sighted the Japanese ship when we were within two miles of her. Only a few men were aboard her when we got there. They were clinging to the railing of the ship."

Saw Half a Dozen Men.

Captain Roberts was asked how many men he saw aboard the Japanese ship, and after some hesitation he said he estimated that there were about half a dozen. He said he scanned the Japanese freighter through his glasses at intervals, but explained:

"I was busy on the bridge manoeuvring my ship and I did not spend as much time looking at the freighter probably as some of the passengers. The Raifuku Maru was immersed about the same amount at both ends when we got there and was listing about sixty degrees.

"When we came alongside we approached by the port bow. Members of the crew of the freighter were clinging to the rail. Small wreckage was drifting away from the Japanese ship. I could see parts of the superstructure, life preservers and other objects floating.

"When we got there we had three boats all ready for lowering. When the Japanese ship lurched the men who were clinging to the rail lost their grip. The seas were high and the wind was less than sixty miles northeast."

Captain Roberts said that there were no men struggling in the water between his ship and the Raifuku Maru when he approached the freighter, and in the twenty minutes he required to manoeuvre the Homeric around to the other side of the Raifuku Maru, he said, he did not see any one he could have rescued, so he did not lower a boat or raft. On manoeuvring to the leeward side of the Raifuku Maru he had full view of her decks, and there was no sign of life on board or in the sea.

He explained that he had been enabled to pick up the sinking freighter by means of a direction finder as long as the Raifuku Maru kept her wireless working. He said he picked up the first S O S call at 5:47 and then began his race through mountainous seas for five hours until he reached the Japanese ship at 10:55 o'clock.

"We didn't know our position and she didn't know her position," said Captain Roberts, "and we were able to get her direction only from her radio. We got radios from the Japanese freighter for quite a long time. When we got the last message we were forty-five miles from her. She was in pretty bad straits, as her last message read:

"'We are waiting for lifeboats.' She had given a list of 45 degrees before that—about three hours before we got to her. When she started on her final plunge she went over pretty well on her beam end and settled on an even keel. Water was pouring into her funnel when we arrived."

Mr. T. Tomlinson, of Doremus & Co., New York, said he and two other passengers saw the Raifuku Maru attempt to launch a lifeboat that capsized immediately and was smashed by the sea. He said he was satisfied that Captain Roberts had done everything humanly possible to save the Japanese ship. He said he never made a trip that was rougher, and that it was difficult for passengers to cross from one side of the Homeric to the other.

Lord Burghley, Cambridge hurdler, who accompanied the Pennsylvania relay team to the United States, said that Captain Roberts had made a magnificent effort to save the Japanese ship.

When the Homeric docked last night at 9:30 o'clock several officials of the White Star Line went aboard the ship and congratulated Captain Roberts on the effor

GIANTS BAN POLICE WHO 'CRASH' GATE

New York police captains, lieutenants, sergeants and detectives who wear the gold shields of the Police Department and who have been enabled thereby to cheer the Giants in the Polo Grounds for years must now pay for their entertainment just like other fans. Only patrolmen and detectives who are assigned to duty at the Polo Grounds will be admitted free hereafter, with a few exceptions.

J. J. Tierney, Secretary of the Giants, announced yesterday that the wearers of gold shields would be favored no longer merely because they display them at the gate. Too many policemen, it is said, have been "crashing" the Polo Grounds gate. Sometimes, it was also said, as many as 100 policemen and detectives off duty got into the grounds and took seats while cash customers, on whom it has been rumored the Polo Grounds depends, have had to be content with standing room.

Once last season, it was stated further, Commissioner Enright, who had been invited to see how his men patronized the sport, was surprised at the number enabled to do it with only a gold shield. The announcement yesterday followed a conference between Mr. Tierney, Inspector Van Keuren and Captain Edward Mulrooney of the Third Inspection District, where it was decided that only bona fide working policemen assigned to the spot would be admitted to the grounds, with the few exceptions.

"We intend to do the same thing as is being done in Brooklyn," said Mr. Tierney. "There a list of the names and shield numbers of the policemen entitled to admission is posted."

Consequently it is expected that the only policemen likely to be admitted free in the Polo Grounds will include only the Police Commissioner, the Deputy Police Commissioners, the Inspectors, Deputy Inspectors, Acting Inspectors, some Captains and Lieutenants, a few sergeants and maybe some detectives.

GIRL SLAYER ON TRIAL.

Women Hurt In Court Crush at New Haven—Singer Repentant.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 22.—A near-riot occurred when the courtroom doors were thrown open this morning to allow newspaper men to enter at the trial of Olympia Macri, charged with the murder of John Bagnano, whom she accused of being her betrayer. Several women were slightly injured as they fought to gain admittance to the chamber.

"I am sorry it ever happened," the young opera student said soon after she entered the courtroom. If I had it to do over again, it would be different," she sobbed.

A panel of 123 men was called but only one juror had been selected when court adjourned. Questions put to talesmen by the prisoner's attorney indicated that self-defense would be pleaded.

MAKE ANNUAL TOUR ALONG BROADWAY

One hundred members of the Broadway Association made their annual inspection of that thoroughfare yesterday, starting from the Hotel Astor at 11 o'clock in motor cars. Dr. John A. Harriss, Special Deputy Police Commissioner, was Chairman of the committee in charge of the tour.

The automobiles, preceded by a squad of motorcycle police, proceeded to Bowling Green, where a group photograph was taken. A second picture was made on the steps of City Hall, where Mayor Hylan greeted the party. After halting for five minutes at Columbus Circle, the members of the association continued uptown to 113th Street to visit the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. A welcome was extended by Bishop Manning.

Luncheon was served at Van Cortlandt Park, in the Mansion House. J. B. Vandever, attired as Father Knickerbocker, was greeted by Mayor Weisendanger of Yonkers, who wore a Colonial costume. A letter sent by Mayor Hylan was delivered to the Yonkers Chief Executive. There was a flag raising by the Boy Scouts, and President Boettger of the Yonkers Chamber of Commerce presented the keys of the city to President George L. Slawson of the Broadway Association.

Those in the party included Senator Robert N. Stanfield of Oregon, Jefferson de Mont Thompson, Park Commissioner Francis D. Gallatin, Park Commissioner Joseph P. Hennessey of the Bronx, Commissioner of Prisons Leon C. Weinstock and Commissioner of Correction Frederick A. Wallis.

CONFESSIONS ON SIRDAR.

Egyptian Admits Plot for Political Assassinations.

CAIRO, Egypt, April 22.—The judicial authorities have published what they state to be a summary of the confessions of some of the men accused in connection with the assassination last November of the Sirdar of Egypt, General Sir Lee Stack.

Abdel Fattah Anayat, one of the accused, is quoted as declaring that, following the failure of the conversations between the Egyptian and British Premiers in London on the Sudanese and other questions, he met with Dr. Shafik Mansur and Mahmud Ismail at Dr. Shafik's house, when it was decided to start a series of political murders with the Sirdar as the first victim.

The trio believed, he said, that the independence of Egypt could only be gained by the political murders. All the persons mentioned in Abdel's confession have been arrested.

Mahmud Rashid, a railway worker, is alleged to have confessed that he was a member of the "Society of Vengeance," and that Abdel spoke to him about the murder plans; that he lent his automobile, that he and Abdul drove to the scene of the outrage, waited until the assassination was accomplished, and then escaped with Ibrahim Musa, another of the accused.

The police this morning arrested Hag Ahmed, an employe of the railway workshops, at his home, and declare they found there a parcel containing a revolver and a quantity of "E type" ammunition. The police declare that while bullets of this type have been used in six political outrages during recent years, they had heretofore been unable to obtain any samples of them.

NEW ENGLAND MENU AT SPEECHLESS DINNER

Resolutions, 18 of Them, Supplant Oratory at Republican Club 'Town Meeting.'

The man who invented the New England dinner was honored last night. Nearly 500 members of the Republican Club of the Fifteenth Assembly District and their guests at the Hotel Majestic, Central Park West and Seventy-second Street, adopted a resolution of gratitude in memory of the unknown New England Savarin who was the first man to combine Boston baked beans and brown bread, balanced it off with corned beef and cabbage and to call the double meal "A" New England dinner.

It was a "speechless" dinner in spite of many temptations to be otherwise. These temptations were former Governor Charles S. Whitman, Samuel S. Koenig, Congressman Ogden L. Mills, Judge Frank J. Coleman, leader, and Mrs. John T. Pratt, associate leader of the Fifteenth District; Frederic Coudert, Samuel D. Berger, Supreme Court Justices Charles D. Donohue, Philip J. McCook and George V. Mullan, Courtland Nicoll and Gordon Knox Bell.

"Economy," referred to as "Cal Coolidge economy," was the keynote. Mr. Bell, President of the club, was "toastmaster." That was what they called him, but it was just a matter of habit. That's what they always call the man who presides at dinners.

The dinner was voted a complete success. The innovation of a "speechless" dinner pleased all the guests, even the habitual after-dinner speakers. But if the Dinner Committee economized on speeches it did not economize on entertainment and "refreshments." Nor did Ralph Folks, Chairman of the Resolutions Committee, economize on resolutions. He introduced eighteen of them.

Number 7 was: "Resolved that the stage coach of the days of John Adams was more comfortable and less dangerous than are the buses of the days of John F. Hylan". (Loud Republican laughter).

Skipping seven resolutions, here is Number 14: "Resolved that the building of subways is more important than the building of political air castles and that we favor candidates for Mayor who will make the dirt fly in New York rather than theatre fly at Palm Beach".

The resolutions were adopted after the guests had constituted themselves a town meeting. Dancing followed.

Everard Concern Not Brewers Now

The reports of the raid on Tuesday on the plant of the old Everard Brewery by prohibition agents, who suspected that beer was being brewed there, drew a statement yesterday from James Everard's Breweries, a corporation, that it had sold the plant last January and had no connection with or interest in the ownership of that property. The corporation of James Everard's Breweries is still in existence, but engaged in warehousing in other buildings owned by it, and not in brewing in any manner whatever, the statement said.

Sues Otto K. Liveright for Divorce.

Mrs. Bernardine Szold Liveright filed suit yesterday in the County Court for absolute divorce from Otto K. Liveright, author's representative and brother of Horace S. Liveright. They were married on Nov. 6, 1922, and lived at 126 East Nineteenth Street. In her complaint the plantiff charges misconduct, but no corespondent is named.

WINTER LEAVES MANY WOUNDED BEHIND

Counting Up The Casualties

As every one knows, Winter is the time when sickness is greatest and death rates are highest. This is due not only to acute diseases like pneumonia, but to organic diseases that follow in the wake of the infections of Winter. As Winter goes and spring approaches death rates fall and sickness rates fall and those of us who remain alive after the battle is over find ourselves in various conditions, just as do soldiers who have passed through an active and weakening campaign.

Now, just after the battle, is the time to count our casualties and investigate the damage done. There is particular need to look for damage to the vital organs of the body. Frequently grippe, pneumonia and repeated colds, leave their imprints on the lungs, the heart, the kidneys, and the nervous system.

Year after year the common cold is convicted as the most incorrigible and persistent offender against the health of men and women. Dr. Richard C. Cabot of Boston, one of the most eminent diagnosticians in the world, recently stated that perhaps the most important thing that could be done for the prolongation of human life would be the conquest of the common cold. Recently Dr. Charles H. May of Rochester, Minnesota, stated that persistent chronic or recurrent infections were what sapped the life of man, and that the final cause of death appearing in the death certificates was seldom the real cause.

The old tradition about taking spring medicine has some scientific warrant. It is not, however, that the spring brings to us any menace. Quite to the contrary. We are suffering from the attacks of the recent winter. Too often lassitude and debility are taken as a matter of course following some winter illness. It is wise to find out whether a slow convalescence is solely chargeable against the acute disease or is due to some secondary complication that requires skilled attention.

Many chronic degenerative diseases are due to persistent, insidious infection by various forms of bacteria. These bacteria find lodgment in diseased gums and tooth sockets, nasal cavities, tonsils and other localities favorable for the development of germ life. From these localities their poisons move out into the circulation and into the tissues, like submarines from a base of supply, and often attack the vital organs of the body, specially the heart, blood vessels and kidneys.

In reply to the question, "How shall I live to avoid these organic maladies?" the answer is a simple one: Get yourself critically examined at least once every year, either by your family physician or as a member of the Life Extension Institute; correct your physical defects and any sources of infection; adjust your diet, exercise, work, rest and play in accordance with your physical condition and cultivate a right mental attitude toward life.

If you are interested in a periodic health examination for yourself, or for any member of your family, or for any individual in your employ, communicate with the Life Extension Institute in New York City for complete information about such examinations and for free booklets on the prevention of disease and the extension of human life.

The health services of the Institute are available to both men and women through annual health memberships. These memberships cost a very nominal sum and cover a period of one year. Members of the Institute are not entitled to any medical treatment, but receive reports which if some form of medical attention is needed assist their family physician in making the final diagnosis and applying the necessary treatment for the correction of their physical defects. In addition, members of the Institute receive instructions on all phases of current personal hygiene, including eating, drinking, sleeping, working, playing, resting, exercise, posture, and correct living habits generally.

The Institute offers several different health services to the public, either at the Head Office of the Institute or in the subscriber's home town or city. There are separate departments for women and children at the Head Office, with both men and women examining physicians in attendance. SEE RADIO AS AID TO NEWSPAPERS

Publishers Approve Report Inclining to Wider Broadcasting by Publications.

PRESIDENT REVIEWS YEAR

The American Newspaper Publishers' Association, beginning its thirty-ninth annual meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday, approved the report of its Committee on Radio, which inclined to favor a more extensive use of radio broadcasting by newspapers. This followed the action of the members of The Associated Press, who earlier in the week came out for the broadcasting of "A.P." news of transcendent national and international importance to a limited extent.

If the belief is correct that people like to read the details of events with which they are already partly familiar, the A.N.P.A. report held, the broadcasting of news bulletins should help rather than retard the sale of newspapers.

The report read in part as follows:

"It has been variously estimated that there are a total of 25,000,000 listeners who operate their sets with varying degrees of regularity. A large majority of these radio fans rely on the newspapers of the nation to provide them with information regarding programs. It is news, and radio fans as a class are more nearly identical with newspaper readers than any other group. So long as there are broadcasting stations there will be this demand on the part of the public for program information, giving the hours of broadcast and the character of the programs rendered.

"The programs today are the backbone of every radio news department, whether radio editors will admit it or not. Every well functioning radio department, because of the public demand, is a service department. Readers expect to obtain not only news of this new art or science, whichever you choose to call it, through the columns of the paper, but also advice that will help them in the selection, construction and operation of radio receiving sets. They require that their questions be answered by men competent to give technical advice.

"In the early stages of radio the technical side was of the greatest importance; more important, even, than programs. The science was new to the lay public. It required much explanation. However, unless radio in coming years keeps the pace of the past year, the necessity for technical articles will diminish. But with the inventive genius of America turned loose in this field that time may be far off. In any event, we will always have with us the programs and the news of radio.

"The importance of the program columns can be illustrated by the experience of London newspapers, which have charged higher advertising rates for display ads on the program pages. The reader interest in radio advertising in the newspapers is very intense, as evidenced by the fact that it is quite common to note that many papers are publishing as much as 500,000 lines of radio advertising per year.

"When we consider broadcasting we get into a field full of problems not only for the newspaper owners of broadcasting stations but for the non-owners as well.

Find Interest Gaining.

"Among the 500-odd broadcasting stations thirty-one are owned by newspapers. This represents a shrinkage of about twenty newspaper stations during the past year. But there are at least fifty other newspapers which either own studios connected with broadcasting stations which they do not own or which put on or sponsor programs.

"There is evidence of continued interest of newspapers in broadcasting. There are many signs of an increase in this interest; one of which is the report that the owner of a chain of newspapers across the continent is planning the construction of four super-stations, which will place his entire organization within hearing distance of the entire population of the United States. This owner also plans to use the radio stations for transmission of news from one part of the country to another by means of a high-speed radio printer system which will permit secret sending and reception. It is likely that news for public consumption will also be broadcast since one of his newspapers is now furnishing a twenty-four-hour news bulletin service for listeners.

"The difference between radio and the printed page is that with the former there is no permanency. The listener must catch the message on the fly; but the reader can study, assimilate and preserve, if he desires, things of interest which he finds in the newspaper. There is a saying that people like best to read the things with which they are most familiar; that if a man's house burns he is more interested in the write-up than in any other event in the newspapers; that if he sees an accident on the street he will search the newspapers for a report of it. If this is a fact, bulletin service by radio will serve as a stimulus to circulation rather than a deterrent.

"When the tornado struck Southern Illinois and swept into Indiana nearly every broadcasting station in the Middle West flashed news of the calamity. Every radio listener knew of the tragedy before it could appear in print, but the following day newspapers in Chicago sold more papers than were sold any other day during the month of March."

The Advertising Phase.

While the use of radio was favorably regarded for advertising certain newspaper features, the report did not find that radio advertising was a serious menace to newspaper advertising offices. On this question the report went on:

"The venture of any broadcaster into the ether is for advertising purposes no matter if he be a newspaper, a manufacturer of radio equipment, a church or a college. The newspaper through broadcasting seeks to attract attention, to build prestige and to cultivate goodwill. Skillfully planned programs can emphasize its features and create a reader interest in those features. The manufacturer of radio equipment though he may go on the air primarily to furnish a raison d'être for selling his equipment is in reality broadcasting with a view to increasing sales of his product. Several members of the A. N. P. A. operating broadcasting stations have joined in the advertising program hook-ups, and one newspaper has entered into a tentative commercial local advertising program of its own which gives promise of paying the expense of operating the station without adding to the programs they now offer which have an advertising tie-up.

"Since the removal of the Government ban on broadcasting from the higher grade stations, advertising programs are becoming more and more dominant. The quality of advertising programs is usually good, but the same argument used in news for the printed page rather than impermanent ether waves may be used in the case of advertising. The direct result of radio advertising is still as intangible as the results from the experiment of broadcasting itself. The fact remains, however, that advertising by radio means a split in the advertising appropriation and hence less money for other mediums of advertising. Broadcast advertising, whether direct or indirect is expensive. One Chicago station charges $120 an hour for broadcasting programs presented by advertisers. The charge for broadcasting programs through a chain of seven stations is $1,500 an hour. None of these experiments by broadcasters have been claimed to be profitable.

"There seems to be no remedy to offer, for in the opinion of those who have studied the subject the situation will take care of itself. The radio public is showing greater discrimination with the improvement of radio sets which offer a greater selection than heretofore.

"Summing it up, broadcasting, especially by newspapers, is still an experiment, though in some cases it is proving a successful experiment. The possibilities of the experiment have by no means been exhausted. There is still a need for careful study and an opportunity for making broadcasting a valuable adjunct to newspapers. The fact that newspapers already have special sources and experience in dealing with similar problems of contact with the public in matters of education, entertainment and news, gives them an advantage in this field."

Reports of various other committees also were approved by yesterday's meeting. The Committee on Second Class Postage told of its fight against higher rates and for a reduction to the 1920 rates, and pointed out that the Postal Salary and Rate Increase bill, which President Coolidge signed in February, prevented any increase in rate during the present year.

The report said that the special joint subcommittee of Congress, created by the postal bill, was expected to begin its investigations in July for the purpose of reporting recommendations to the next Congress for a permanent schedule of postal rates.

"During the coming months and in the next Congress," the report went on, "your committee will renew its efforts to secure the adoption of the 1920 rates, and to that end urges the continued assistance not only of our State advisory committees but of all members of the association as well."

Distribution Is Discussed.

Denying that the newspapers were specially favored by existing rates, the report said:

"Although the word 'privilege' is in common use in connection with second class postage, we draw to your attention, for what it may be worth, the fact that second class postal rates, levied for second class service are no more 'privilege' than are lower rates for steerage accommodations a 'privilege.'

"One might as well refer to the steerage as the 'steerage privilege,' or to railway tickets as the 'railway privilege.' Second class is a service for which adequate rates are paid for the service rendered and is in no sense of the word a 'privilege.'"

Possible new methods of newspaper distribution, in case postal rates become exorbitant, were suggested by the report of the Committee on New Methods of Newspaper Distribution. The report said that the committee at a meeting in Chicago last January reached the following conclusions:

"That certain newspapers (among them The Indianapolis News) have made important progress in substituting their own office delivery for the present second class mail service. The Indianapolis News at the present time having established such service on more than sixty routes in its adjacent territory; certain other papers have inaugurated similar methods, but have not proceeded so far.

"That an effort should be made to bring about a change in the regulation of the Post Office Department prohibiting the use of rural free delivery boxes for newspapers carried by other than United States postal carriers when such boxes are purchased and set up by the patrons of the rural free delivery routes.

"That joint or cooperative agencies should be established by publishers for distribution of newspapers in surrounding territory, a practice which already prevails in certain localities in the Central and South West.

"With relation to the first conclusion," the report continued, "it is submitted that a most important economy may be secured by complete withdrawal from the mails of very important volumes of circulation, and that the service to subscribers now reached through second class mail, by news-dealer delivery through the shipment of disinterested and joint agents in towns served by groups of publishers could and should be able to effect suitable cooperative arrangements. Experiments in this direction have been undertaken by a large group of periodical publishers whereby they ship individual copies by baggage or freight to certain points in which they enlist the cooperation of newspaper carrier organizations to make delivery at a fixed price per copy.

"With relation to the second conclusion of the committee the matter was taken up with the Postmaster General on the ground that the R. F. D. boxes are private property owned by patrons on the R. F. D. routes, and that if such privilege were extended it would relieve the Post Office of a great amount of newspaper mail which it is claimed is carried at a loss. The position taken by the Postmaster General is that such a privilege is contrary to the regulations, but he also states that even in the absence of such regulation he believes it would be contrary to public policy.

"With reference to the third point, following a meeting of the Circulation Managers of Texas, in Dallas during December last, it was decided by that organization to make a three-months' trial of shipping papers to four points by express instead of by second-class mail, the papers to be shipped to a centrally located drug store at which subscribers might call. Owing to unexpected complications, however, this plan has not yet been put into effect, but probably will be in the near future.

"The St. Louis Globe-Democrat has reported to the committee the use of trucks, as rapidly as good roads development permits, and stated the cost of such runs to be from 75 cents to $1.50 per 100 pounds, according to the length of the run, the runs varying from 60 to 150 miles, and the trucks being handled by outside drivers. The Globe-Democrat also reported that they are using express and interurban service and railway baggage wherever possible and have withdrawn all possible shipments from the mails since 1917.

"The Chattanooga Times is also employing trucks as a means of distribution and it is believed that this method of delivery will result not only in a material saving but will also expedite delivery of newspapers to subscribers."

The Newsprint Situation.

The Paper Committee report suggested that the members of the association decide whether to take immediate steps to stimulate newsprint production in the Northwestern States and Alaska because of the proposed Canadian embargo on the export of pulpwood. It also quoted a resolution of the American Paper and Pulp Association charging that Canadian manufacturers were trying "to gain further control of our paper market." Action on the problem may be taken by the A. N. P. A. today or tomorrow.

A buyer's market still exists in newsprint and is expected to continue for many months, according to the report. Production and consumption figures for 1924 were reported as follows:

"United States and Canada, exclusive of Newfoundland, which has a production of approximately 65,000 tons, produced 2,623,975 tons, an increase of less than 3 per cent. over the preceding year. Of this total the United States produced slightly more than one-half.

"During February, 1925, Canada for the first time produced more newsprint than the United States. It is probable that during the present year Canadian production will exceed that of the United States.

"Imports from overseas amounted to 155,939 tons, or approximately 22 per cent. less than during 1923, and brought the total supply for the year to nearly 3,000,000 tons, or 28,000 tons more than during 1923.

"Monthly reports showing amount of newsprint consumed by 422 newspapers, which consumed more than one-half of the supply, indicate that from June to December, 1924, inclusive, there was increased consumption of approximately 5¼ per cent., as compared with the same months of 1923.

"Both production and consumption continue to increase. The first three months of 1925 show an increase in production of 4 per cent. over the same months of 1924, while consumption for the first two months of this year exceeded the corresponding months of last year by approximately 5 per cent."

The committee announced that it would make a fight at a hearing before the Treasury Department on May 5 to keep newsprint on the free list and to prevent tariff restrictions which might cut off the overseas supply.

A report by the Committee on National Forest Resources said that the McNary-Clarke law passed by Congress last year was a big step forward in the campaign for a national forestry policy to protect the forest resources of the country from depletion. It said that the week of April 24 to May 2, proclaimed by President Coolidge as American Forest Week, would be "an especially opportune time to inform public sentiment upon the necessity for greater State action in forestry matters, and particularly in the prevention of forest fires, 70 per cent. of which are of human origin."

Open Shop Report.

The Open Shop Committee reported that its work during 1924 had been along the lines of preventing strikes rather than in handling them after walkouts had taken place. It pointed out from statistics that union shops had only one apprentice to 15.5 men in their composing rooms, pressrooms and stereotyping departments, while open shops had one to 5.09 and non-union shops one to 5.6.

Commenting on the small number of apprentices in union shops, the report said: "If it were not for the outside offices there would not be enough printers in the country to supply the demand created through old age, death and forced retirement from the printing profession from other causes." The report said the solution of the problem lay in the establishment of printing trades schools. This movement, it went on, was gaining power and momentum.

The Committee on Printing Trades Schools reported on the financial support given to such schools, and urged the establishment of additional schools, especially in New England and Canada. Training of web pressmen, stereotypers and photo-engravers, as well as typographical men, was advocated. The endowment of schools by publishers was suggested.

A report of the Special Standing Committee described the attitude taken by the new officers of the International Typographical Union and the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union, the establishment of an engineering department by the pressmen's union and the progress of Arbitration Board meetings.

Reports were also submitted by the Committees on Arbitration Contracts, Traffic, Circulation Audits, Advertising Agents.

The President's Address.

S. E. Thomason of The Chicago Tribune, in his address as President of the A. N. P. A., reviewed the activities of the association and its directors during 1924. Discussing the reports of the various committees, Mr. Thomason said in part:

"Attempts to make radical increases in second class postal rates were brought about by the efforts of the postal employes to secure higher pay. The American Paper Manufacturers have actively engaged in an endeavor to impose new restrictions on the free importation of newsprint. Interested elements in Canada have been working to limit exportation of raw materials for newsprint, in a manner calculated to increase the manufacturing cost of American-made paper. In all these matters your Postal, Paper and Federal Laws Committees have successfully labored for the protection of your interests.

"Although no international arbitration agreement has been concluded with the typographical, the stereotypers' or mailers' unions, negotiations have recently been resumed toward that end. Your committee and directors have met during the year with the Directors of the Audit Bureau of Circulations for the purpose of bringing about an understanding with the governing body of that organization, which would better relations between newspaper members of the A. N. P. A. who are also members of the A. B. C. Trade schools have been fostered with the funds provided by your assessment for that purpose.

"The report of the Postal Committee sets forth in detail the work of the committee during the year. The appointment of a Congressional Joint Committee to hold hearings during the Summer, indicates that only the constant cooperation of our membership will enable the Postal Committee to accomplish the results needed for the protection of our industry.

"Through the efforts of its Import Committee, the American Pulp and Paper Association is making a well-organized effort to secure the adoption of a new Treasury Department definition of standard newsprint. The definition, if adopted, will impose on our membership an unquestioned increased cost of newsprint. To date the efforts of our committee have been successful in preventing the adoption of the offensive Treasury definition.

"In this connection it is well worth noting that had the proposed modification of the newsprint definition been adopted the importations during 1924 would have added approximately $2.50 a ton to the cost of all newsprint imported from Canada or abroad. Had the manager and Paper Committee of this association not been on the job, the efforts to secure adoption of the new definition might well have succeeded. No other agency protected the interests of American newspapers—large and small—in this case. Particularly involved were the interests of those papers using newsprint in sheets. Newsprint in sheets would have been made dutiable by the proposed definition.

"At the 1922 convention a committee was appointed to negotiate new international arbitration contracts with the several unions. The powers and authority of this committee have been continued at succeeding annual conventions. Limitations were imposed by the convention on the powers of this committee to negotiate. Subsequently the International union in convention imposed similar limitations on the powers of their officers and Executive Committee. The result has been to make negotiation virtually impossible.

"We submit to the convention the wisdom of delegating to the directors responsibility for the negotiation of international arbitration contracts—as responsibility for the negotiation of industrial activities is delegated to the directors. In our judgment a smaller committee, appointed by and answerable to the directors, working to carry out the conventions directions without limitations imposed in advance, can successfully negotiate new international contracts—and in no other way can it be done. No contract so negotiated should be effective until it is ratified by our membership."

The meeting adopted a resolution fully approving President Thomason's recommendation to delegate to the directors responsibility for the negotiation of the arbitration contracts.

Labor and printing trades problems were discussed at length during yesterday's session. Problems of advertising, circulation and mechanical departments, as well as the reports of the various committees, will be discussed at the sessions today and tomorrow. The election of officers will take place tomorrow.

SAYS UNITARIANS MUST REACH WORKING CLASS

The American Unitarian Association celebrated its 100th anniversary last night at a meeting in the Town Hall. Part of the proceedings were broadcast through station WJZ. The Rev Charles Francis Potter, pastor of the West Side Unitarian Church, who spoke on the next century of Unitarianism, said that the church faced four tasks.

The first of these, he said, was to bring the message of their religion closer to the working classes; the second was to make a closer alliance with the leading scientific workers; the third, to learn the importance of publicity to the growth of the denomination, and the fourth, to make Unitarian influence more strongly felt. "We need the spirit of '76," he declared, "and we need also to remember that what was radical in those days is conservative now."

Other speakers for the evening included the Rev. R. Nichol Cross, of London; Charles Bolte, President of the Metropolitan Conference; the Rev. Samuel Atkins Eliot, D. D., and Glenn Frank, editor of Century Magazine.

ASSOCIATED PRESS RE-ELECTS OFFICERS

TRIBUTE TO PREDECESSOR

New Official Greets Staff, Expressing Confidence in Its Future Achievements.

The Board of Directors of The Associated Press, following the annual meeting of members on Tuesday, re-elected its officers yesterday, as follows:

President, Frank B. Noyes, The Washington Star; First Vice President, E. H. Butler, The Buffalo (N. Y.) News; Second Vice President, C. P. J. Mooney, The Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial-Appeal; Secretary, Melville E. Stone; Treasurer, J. R. Youatt.

The Executive Committee of the board consists of Clark Howell, The Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution; Charles Hopkins Clark, The Hartford (Conn.) Courant; Elbert H. Baker, The Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer; Frank B. Noyes, The Washington Star; Adolph S. Ochs, The New York Times; E. Lansing Ray, The St. Louis (Mo.) Globe-Democrat, and Robert McLean, The Philadelphia Bulletin.

President Noyes issued an executive order officially designating Kent Cooper as general manager with full authority, effective yesterday. Mr. Cooper sent the following message over The Associated Press wires yesterday afternoon:

To the Staff in All Departments of The Associated Press:

In behalf of each of you I have extended to Mr. Martin cordial good wishes and assurances of our appreciation of the fine fellowship with him that it has been ours to enjoy.

At the same time I send to each of you an intimate fraternal and very personal greetings, confident that each will continue to do his part in the always forward-facing effort toward a greater Associated Press.

KENT COOPER,
General Manager.

Agriculture has emerged from its primitive state. It must therefore conform to those practices which have been found necessary to the success of other great industries. In all other fields of commerce, unrestricted, free and open competition in the marketing of products has been gradually disappearing.

How He Would Solve Problem.

Presenting his program for the solution of the farmers' problems, the speaker said:

"If we would avoid ruin, I see but one way out. The farmer, too, must organize for the purpose of marketing his products. Cooperative farm marketing associations are no longer an experiment. Wherever cooperatives have been employed, there you will find agriculture in its best estate. In those communities the farms are better improved and are kept in a higher state of cultivation and repair, and a true thrift and prosperity is likely to abound. As better community spirit has evolved, the farm has more nearly approached the ideal requirements of a home.

Cites Figures on Crops.

The speaker said that the Department of Agriculture's recent estimate of the value of farm crops for the last year had been misinterpreted in the Eastern financial centres as "proof that agriculture had come into its own." Although the estimate showed that the total value of farm crops for the year was $750,000,000 more than the year before, he went on, the situation was more complex and perplexing than appeared on the face of these figures.

"To illustrate," he said, "the corn crop was about 20 per cent. smaller than the crop of the preceding year. The total value, however, exceeded that of the preceding crop by almost $200,000,000. Every one knows that the quality of this year's crop was far below the quality of the preceding crop. Yet, under a marketing system which is claimed as one of the most noteworthy achievements of this commercial age, the smaller crop was worth more in the market than the larger and superior crop of the year before.

"Citing another example of price fluctuation injuries to the farmer under the present system, he said that butter dropped from 20 to 25 per cent. last year, when the production was 100,000,000 pounds more than the year before.

"This increase," he said, "was but a per cent. of the total annual production of butter in the United States. It created a surplus, however, on account of increased domestic consumption, of only 50,000,000 pounds, or 2½ per cent., as compared with the year before."

"And so," he continued, "I say this report from the Department of Agriculture discloses very perplexing facts. Now, I produce both corn and milk upon my farm. I feed the larger part of my corn in the form of silage to my cows. I sell it, therefore, in the form of milk. I receive considerably less for it than I did a year ago.

A Confusing Situation.

"And so these glowing figures of the increased value of the corn crop over which the financial writers of the great metropolitan dailies gloat do not comfort me much. I am indeed puzzled to know what to do. I have been taught that to produce sixty bushels of corn to the acre is a finer achievement than to produce forty-five. I like to see the milk pail brimming full with sweet pure milk. But when I see forty-five bushels of corn worth more than sixty bushels of corn, and when I see the milk pail but two-thirds full worth more than the brimming pail of another year I become confused and hardly know what to do.

"He cited another example in last year's cotton crop, when heavy rains followed a long drought in the Southwest.

"As a result," he said, "the Government, which before had estimated the crop at 12,400,000 bales, increased the estimate to 13,000,000 bales. This was an increase of less than 5 per cent. in the yield. And yet because of this estimated increase, the price declined in the market 20 per cent. This meant that the total crop of the larger estimate was worth less in the market by $300,000,000 than the crop by the lesser estimate.

"Something is wrong with our methods of marketing when the aggregate money value of a larger crop of a prime necessity is smaller than the value of a smaller crop. There are untold thousands of men and women and children who need more cotton to clothe them than is produced in the world today. To say, therefore, that 12,400,000 bales of cotton are worth more than 13,000,000 bales is to condemn a system of marketing which so measures value."

Other speakers were Mrs. Izetta Jewel Brown of West Virginia, who seconded the nomination of John W. Davis for President in the Democratic National Convention last year, and Ruth Goldberg, a newspaper comic artist. William F. Rogers of The Boston Transcript was Chairman. Arthur G. Staples of The Lewiston (Me.) Journal was toastmaster. The grand ballroom of the Waldorf and the mezzanine were crowded with about 1,000 persons, many of them women.

SEES IN MOTT HAVEN A NEW CITY CENTRE

PUTS LIMIT ON POPULATION

Says Economic Conditions Forbid Centralization of More Than 20,000,000 in One Area.

Thomas Adams, General Director of the Regional Plan of New York, set 20,000,000 persons as the limit that could be centralized in one area and produce under what he termed "sound economic conditions," in discussing the preliminary studies now being made at the City Planning Conference at the Hotel Pennsylvania last night. He also said that a transportation and cultural centre at Mott Haven was inevitable.

The metropolitan district, made up of parts of New York, Connecticut and New Jersey, comprised over 3,500,000 acres, Mr. Adams declared, and if only one-half of this area were occupied by dwellings it would accommodate 73,500,000 persons at the rate of forty-two to the acre.

"Even within twenty-five miles of Manhattan the land that is available for dwellings could accommodate about 50,000,000 persons," said Mr. Adams. "The probable increase of population during the next 100 years can be provided for with an even development having a density of 500 times less than the probable maximum. It is unlikely that more than 20,000,000 can be centralized in one area and produce under sound economic conditions, apart from the disadvantage of this great concentration on health.

"The development in the suburbs should be planned so as to promote more freedom of movement for traffic and healthy living conditions in the centre as well as in the outskirts. Rapid transit cannot solve the problem as long as it promotes those forms of decentralization that have the effect of clogging the centre at the same time that it spreads the city over wide areas.

New Centre at Mott Haven.

"In that section of Manhattan below Fifty-ninth Street 2,853,100 people travel daily. The fact that concentration up to a certain point is an advantage does not mean that congestion is an advantage. Congestion already has proceeded to a degree where economic factors are destroying much of the advantage of concentration.

"It seems inevitable that a great transportation business and cultural centre will grow up in the neighborhood of Mott Haven on the mainland, connected by bridges with New Jersey and Long Island, where new cities will grow up. Other centres will develop in Brooklyn and Queens.

"In New Jersey the gradual development of the Hackensack and Passaic Meadows will greatly accelerate growth on the west shore of the Hudson. Attention is being given to the planning of the meadows as a great industrial site. The highest commercial use of the waterfronts and the meadow areas can be obtained without loss of those amenities that are necessary for good appearance.

"Airplane landing places have to be planned before all the accessible land suitable for this purpose is covered by buildings. The proposals of the committee in regard to these places and in regard to the proper development of the East River islands are well developed. A plan is being worked out for the improvement of Central Park and the extension of recreation facilities in Manhattan Island."

Mr. Adams drew attention to what he said was the fact that, on the average, buildings are not higher in Manhattan than in Westminster in London. Out of a total of 97,902 buildings in Manhattan, he said that only 1,686 are more than ten stories and 9,005 are from seven to ten stories high, as against 87,211 six stories and less.

"The real problem of congestion is still to come when the average height rises above that which has ever prevailed in any other city," he said. "There is no reason to stop the erection of high buildings, but urgent reason for requiring that the space allotted to streets, parks and other open spaces be increased in proportion to building heights. The objection to high buildings in Manhattan and other cities is that they are out of scale with the open spaces near them."

Colonel William J. Wilgus, transportation expert, submitted suggestions made by him to the Regional Plan Committee for an improved system of transportation and rapid transit in the regional area. They include an outer belt railway and boulevard, and twin interconnecting railways and boulevards linking up Manhattan with Long Island and New Jersey.

At the luncheon meeting Clarence S. Stein, Chairman of the New York State Commission on Housing and Regional Planning, said he foresaw the end of New York City's growth and that such an end was inevitable whether more subways are built or not.

Water Supply Sets Limit.

"Your potential water supply is one thing that will set a limit on New York's growth," he said. "Already the city is reaching out a long distance for its water and some of it is being obtained by encroaching on that which should go elsewhere.

"City planning in the United States has been largely city patching. Most of our cities were laid out on the rectangular plan and growth has been around a congested centre. Industries have usually obtained the preferable sites, with the result that housing became of secondary importance. The result has been that when we looked about for recreational spots, land values had risen too high to permit of their use for such a purpose.

"We find that values in congested districts are too high to make zoning feasible. You can't cut new roads through a business district or widen existing streets without changing the value of abutting property. Then, too, such procedure does not solve the problem. More subways will not bring a solution. They will mean merely that new territory is opened up to pour its countless thousands into the congested centres of industry."

Major William N. Hensley, commanding officer at Mitchel Field, predicted that within twelve to twenty-five years workers would be flying from their homes in the country to work in New York and other large cities. He declared that New York City's great need was for a landing field, and pointed out that it took an hour and a half to reach town from the present one on Long Island. He suggested the utilization of the Battery and Craven's Point, N. J., for this purpose.

Thomas H. Reed, Director of the Department of Government at the University of Michigan, advocated the creation of a new governmental unit to coincide with regional planning. This force, he said, should not interfere with that of city or State, but should apply strictly to the work of orderly development.

Dr. Raymond Unwin, chief architect to the British Minister of Health, pointed out the need of decentralization and for the building of what he characterized as self-contained and independent towns. He advocated a policy of dealing with existing urban centres to check congestion and to restore order in place of the confusion he said haphazard growth has produced.

Forty foreign delegates attending the conference visited the near Bear Mountain Bridge across the Hudson yesterday. They also made an automobile tour of the Interstate Palisade Park system, including the Bear Mountain Park reservation.

HYLAN LAYS ATTACK TO 'MILK MONOPOLY'

In a letter addressed to Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, Commissioner of the Department of Health, Mayor John F. Hylan charged yesterday that a prominent State Republican officeholder, whom he did not name, was "behind the milk monopoly," and that the "cans of misleading information which Aron and Oggie have been dumping over have come from the milk monopoly which looks with kindly favor upon this Republican official."

The Mayor also suggested that the Commissioner ask for additional milk inspectors if he believes "it will help to keep down the price and keep up the quality of milk and cream."

Commenting upon the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst's "parting shot" and his subsequent departure to live at Lake Placid, Mayor Hylan referred to a historic incident in the career of Dr. Parkhurst a generation ago when that reformer was leading a crusade to obtain evidence wherewith to smash the corrupt alliance of the city police with vicious resorts.

Mayor Hylan's letter follows:

City of New York,
Office of the Mayor.
April 22, 1925.

Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, Health Commissioner.

Dear Commissioner: What a lot of milk experts have suddenly cropped up. In whose silo have Aron and Oggie Mills been hiding the last seven years?

I understand that a prominent Republican State officeholder is behind the milk monopoly, and that the cans of misleading information which Aron and Oggie have been dumping over have come from the milk monopoly which looks with kindly favor upon this Republican official. Do you know anything about this?

Too bad these traction sympathizers have not a little of the milk of human kindness in their souls. They have not been getting all the cream from special privilege they would like to during the last seven years and so they are willing to do almost anything to get another chance to romp in clover and to live on special profit from the people.

We can extend the milk area beyond the confines of the milk trust territory by employing a few more inspectors. If you believe that this additional force will help to keep down the price and keep up the quality of milk and cream, make the necessary application.

And did you read Dr. Parkhurst's parting shot before his departure? I would not say anything unkind or uncharitable about this man. Things are cleaner and better than they were in his heyday. Vice and gambling have been driven out by the police and decent people are very glad of the rebirth of New York. In closing up places of ill fame the police of this city during the past seven years have not found it necessary personally to indulge in that hilarious game of leapfrog. Today, Dr. Parkhurst could search high and low and yet he would not find a single place in which to indulge in that gay little pastime.

And now he is going to Lake Placid. That is fine. It should bring a sense of calm and quiet which is one of the best things for the later years of life. Would it not be a good thing if Dr. Parkhurst were to take along with him Oggie Mills and Harold Aron, the editor of the Monday Morning Meow, far from the city which is run to suit the plain people and not the carping critics and the self-seekers?

Very truly yours,
JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

CITY COLLEGE IS READY FOR POLICE ACADEMY

Enright Silent on Personnel of New Training School to Open Tomorrow.

Police Commissioner Enright would make no comment yesterday on the personnel to be appointed to direct the Police Academy which he has just organized by consolidating three training schools of the Police Department. However, it was still believed at Police Headquarters that Deputy Inspector John J. Noonan would be made commandant of the school, and that most of the instructors would be officers of the department hitherto engaged in training recruits and patrolmen.

The Police Academy will be opened tomorrow in the Commerce Building of the College of the City of New York, at Lexington Avenue and Twenty-third Street.

The College will act in a consulting capacity in drawing up the courses of study for the new police school, Dr. Frederick B. Robinson, dean of the School of Business and Civic Administration of the college, announced yesterday.

"The College of the City of New York, he said, "will be very glad to cooperate with the Police Department in allowing it space in college buildings, and also in giving advisory and teaching service. While the school will be wholly, of course, a matter of the Police Department and not a department of the college, the latter will act in an advisory capacity in arranging programs of study. Psychological tests, when needed, will be conducted by the college.

"The Education School of the college will cooperate by conducting teachers' training courses for the instructors of the new school. This cooperation between two great departments of the city, one collegiate in character, the other the greatest police organization in the country and perhaps in the world, is most satisfactory and encouraging. Commissioner Enright is to be congratulated upon his far-seeing policy of police training."

FIREMAN HELD IN BAIL IN AGED MAN'S DEATH

Arraigned in Jamaica court yesterday before Magistrate Conway on a charge of homicide, Hugh McSweeney, a fireman of Hook and Ladder Company 40, was held in $10,000 bail for examination on Friday. The affidavit on which McSweeney was arraigned charged that he "feloniously assaulted, willfully struck and killed" Leopold Kline, 72 years old, of 175 Beach 115th Street, Rockaway Beach, on Tuesday afternoon.

The police charge that McSweeney, while intoxicated, struck Mr. Kline in the face and also attacked Mrs. Kline when he entered their home in search of a man who had sold him a house.

Assistant Medical Examiner Dr. William H. Nammack performed an autopsy on the body of Kline yesterday in the presence of Assistant District Attorney Frank Higgins. The autopsy disclosed that death was due to heart disease, superinduced by the excitement caused by McSweeney's actions.

TOLERANCE MOVE BY THREE FAITHS

DELEGATES SEEM IN FAVOR

ATLANTIC CITY, April 22.—Establishment at Washington of an institute by Catholics, Protestants and Jews to promote social justice was advocated today at the quinquennial convention of the Grand Lodge, Independent Order of B'nai B'rith in the Ambassador Hotel.

The plan, which delegates declared probably would be put into effect, was outlined by the Rev. Dr. John W. Herring, Secretary of the Committee on Good-Will Between Jews and Christians of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

Dr. Herring asserted that Christianity was fighting for self-preservation, as a "faith divided within itself can never stand."

"Prejudice threatens the undoing of Christianity," he declared. "The spirit of American sportsmanship should occasion the breaking down of this prejudice. Christians need the Jews and the Jews need the Christians. Together they must move forward in civilization."

Dr. Herring stated that stories concerning the crucifixion of Christ by the Jews were unfair to the latter and created prejudice, resulting in "Christians perpetually crucifying the Jews."

Act Together in Business.

"Jews and Gentiles act together in business and in charitable endeavor," he went on. "They come together in civic bodies. Why not in religion?"

He proposed that the various faiths join in the founding and administration of an institution at the capital to further the work of creating good-will tolerance, understanding and cooperation between Christians and Jews. He also made a plea for non-sectarianism in schools and colleges.

A budget of $160,300 for the coming year was presented by Henry Monsky of Omaha, Chairman of the Finance Committee. Of this sum $25,000 would be used for educational work and $20,000 for aiding the Jews in Mexico.

Mr. Monsky recommended that since the various activities affected all Jewry, an appeal for support be made to Jews throughout the country, whether members of the order or not. Delegates declared this recommendation would be adopted.

Can't Admit Women Just Now.

The Grand Lodge by unanimous vote decided that it was not wise at this time to admit women as full members of the order, but advocated the formation of women's auxiliaries by the various district Grand Lodges.

A resolution urging the establishment of a national Bureau of Jewish Education was disapproved by the convention. Action on one endorsing the proposed World Court was deferred until to-morrow.

Adolf Kraus of Chicago, who has been President of the order for twenty years, received an ovation when a committee was named to prepare a resolution expressing the deep appreciation of the order for his work.

Captain Alex Aaronsohn, who distinguished himself with the British Army during the World War, spoke on Palestine.

METHODIST UNION VOTE STANDS 2,420 TO 241

27 of 83 Northern Conferences and 2 of 39 Southern Are Now Recorded on the Issue.

CHICAGO, April 22 (Associated Press).—Twenty-seven conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church have voted, 2,420 to 241, in favor of unification of the Methodist Episcopal Churches South and North, which have been separated for more than half a century, according to figures made available today by Dr. R. J. Wade, Secretary of the General Conference of the Northern Church.

Only two conferences of the Southern Church have voted on the proposition, the Cuban Conference having voted unanimous for unification, while the Baltimore Conference recently voted against it by a vote of 137 for and 141 against, according to advices received here. There are thirty-seven conferences in the Southern Church yet to take action.

In the Northern Church five Spring conferences and seventy-eight conferences which meet next Fall remain to be heard from. Of the twenty-seven conferences which have balloted, the vote of the Wyoming Conference of Pennsylvania, which acted on April 17, has not yet been received.

The vote by conferences of the Northern Church to date follows:

LIGGETT HOME ROBBED.

Burglars Get $50,000 in Jewels at Newton, Mass.

NEWTON, Mass., April 22.—Jewelry valued at approximately $50,000 was taken from the residence of Louis K. Liggett, millionaire druggist, by burglars who entered the house in an unknown manner last night, it was reported to the police today.

The mansion, one of the show places of the city, was robbed by burglars who worked so expertly and quietly that no damage was done, no one was disturbed and the police were left with an almost complete absence of fingerprints and other clues. Safes and vaults were emptied by the thieves.

Students Want Yale to Keep Woolley

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 22.—Edward M. Woolley, coach of the Yale dramatic team for fifteen years, who suddenly resigned yesterday, tonight denied that he will join the Harvard dramatic department Faculty. The Yale Daily News editorially deplored that Mr. Woolley was overlooked when the Yale department was reorganized by Professor George Pierce Baker, who will come to Yale from Harvard next Fall. Undergraduates who have been connected with the Dramatic Association for the last decade have started a petition requesting the Faculty to retain Woolley in the reorganized dramatic Faculty.

Board of Education Awaits Hearing on Injunction Set for Today.

REFER A PLAY PROJECT

Its hands tied by an injunction, the Board of Education took no definite action yesterday against Miss Lucille Nicol, District Superintendent in Queens, but adopted a resolution expressive of its intention to dismiss her summarily, on the ground that she does not possess the legal qualifications for the post. If the injunction is set aside today.

President George J. Ryan said that he would call a special session of the board immediately, if court action clears the way to go through with the plan for dismissing the teacher.

The plan to make playgrounds of the school grounds, under police supervision, during the Summer months, was referred to a special committee. Every member of the board expressed himself in favor of this proposal, which has been hanging fire for two years. It was estimated that it would cost between $60,000 and $100,000 to carry out the plan.

Upon the recommendation of Arthur S. Somers Miss Anna A. Short, a school principal, was appointed a district superintendent to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Margaret F. O'Connell. Resolutions were adopted upon the death on April 12 of William C. Allen, Principal of Public School 95, Brooklyn, and the death on April 14 of James A. Dugan, Principal of Public School 29, Brooklyn.

Frank Hankinson, District Superintendent, was assigned by the Board to Districts 47 and 48 and District Superintendent Cornelius D. Fleming was transferred to Districts 32 and 38. The appropriation of $33,232 in payment of land located on Avenues X, between West Ninth Street and East First Street, Brooklyn, was approved by the board.

Public School 121, Brooklyn, located on Kings Highway, near East Fifty-fifth Street, was ordered discontinued and the building and site turned over to the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund. The board ordered that the children, numbering only thirty-eight, be transported at public expense to Public School 135 at Linden Avenue and East Forty-eighth Street.

The appointment of eighty-six teachers of swimming in baths and pools in elementary and high schools, community and recreation centres for this Spring and Summer was approved. These teachers will be named and assigned immediately by Superintendent O'Shea.

Henry W. Fox was assigned as Principal of Public School 76, the Bronx. The board approved the resolution to close the public schools in Jamaica on June 4, the anniversary day of the schools there.

REA CITES INCOME RISE IN REPLY TO COUZENS

President of Pennsylvania Points Out That the Road's Revenue Has Gained Since 1920.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 22.—The steady increase in operating revenue of the Pennsylvania Railroad since control of the road was relinquished by the Government in 1920 was cited today by Samuel Rea in reply to an attack by Senator Couzens on the company's management.

The operating and physicial condition and the reliability of the passenger and freight service of the railroad at present are better than ever, Mr. Rea said.

Mr. Rea quoted from his annual report showing how an operating deficit incurred while the road was under Government control had been turned into large net earnings.

"The effect of the war has been fully set forth in your annual reports," the report stated, "but the lesson must not be forgotten that a system which in 1916 earned net railway operating income of over $102,000,000, and in 1917 $78,000,000, was returned in 1920 without net earnings and with an operating deficit. Under your management the year 1921, notwithstanding a severe depression, turned the large deficit of 1920 into $41,000,000 of net railway operating income for 1921; in 1922 it reached almost $80,000,000, even with a strike to overcome; in 1923 these net earnings were brought up to $88,000,000, and in 1924, notwithstanding the Presidential election, the net railway operating income earned was $84,000,000."

KILLED TESTING AUTO HE BUILT FOR RACING

BRENTWOOD, L. I., April 22.—Testing out a racing automobile which he had built himself, Frederick Hollis Wells, son of Major Arthur Wells of 220 Park Avenue, Newark, N. J., was instantly killed on the motor speedway between here and Central Islip today when he was thrown out of the car as it was traveling at a speed of eighty miles an hour.

Wells's neck was broken and the automobile wrecked when it hit two trees.

For the past three years Wells had competed in the 500-mile Memorial Day Race at the speedway in Indianapolis and built the machine, which he called "Wells's Hornet," to enter in this year's race.

He had the machine towed out to the speedway by Kenneth Brostman, a mechanic, and made two trial spins before the accident happened.

Brostman saw him thrown out of the automobile and with the assistance of two farmers brought him to Dr. William A. Ross's sanitarium here. Coroner Edwin S. Moore of Bay Shore took charge of the body.

Soviet Names Territory for Lenin.

MOSCOW, April 22.—"Vladimir Lenin Land" is the new name to be given to the large stretch of land on the eightieth parallel at 100 east longitude discovered by the Russian Arctic explorer, Velkeitzky, in 1913 and hitherto known as Nicholas II. Land. The Soviet Government plans to send an expedition to the islands under Professor A. Panegin to hoist the red flag and make surveys.

Polish Woman Senator Is Coming.

BREMEN, April 22.—Senator Josefa Szebeko, one of the leading women members of the Polish Parliament, and Misss. Marja Holder Egger and Jadwiga Makowiecka, leaders of the Polish feminist movement, sailed for the United States yesterday on the steamship President Harding. They will attend the convention of the International Council of Women in Washington next month.

Battling Your Way Into Town

It was a glorious trip. The setting sun proclaims the day about done.

And now the battle starts. It will be dark long before you reach home.

What a jam! You barely crawl along. You stop. You start. You creep ahead a few yards. Again you jam on the brakes.

Intersecting highways also are jammed with traffic. At every intersection again you wait, doggedly clutching the wheel in silent wrath.

At last, after literally fighting your way over the road, you swing into your own driveway.

Yes, it was a glorious trip, but—they logically look for their shop news and buying information in The Chicago Daily News, because they are accustomed to finding it there.

And it is there. Not the least of the journalistic services The Daily News renders the buyers of Chicago is the extent, variety and comprehensiveness of its advertising. Every day this advertising is in effect a directory and guide to everything offered for sale in any part of Chicago. The reader doesn't have to "borrow another paper" to find what is wanted. It is all advertised there—display and classified.

The Daily News is called "the department store of newspapers" because of the comprehensiveness of its service to its readers—in news, editorial features and advertising.

Its scope and variety of reader interest are paralleled by the scope and variety of its advertising, and its readers are responsive to both.

This statement of display advertising lineage for the month of March, 1925, is convincing evidence of The Chicago Daily News' leadership in the six-day field, particularly in the following important classifications:

EXPECT $4,000,000 FROM ESTATE TAX

STATUTE NOW IN EFFECT

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 22.—According to the estimate of Tax Department officials, the State Treasury will receive annually, under the new Estate Tax law which went into effect on April 2, $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 which otherwise would go to the Federal Government.

The Estate Tax law will be a new impost, in addition to the already existing death levy, known as the transfer tax. It will not involve any additional expenditure on those against whom it is assessed, however, because the State will allow as a credit against the State estate tax all estate, inheritance, legacy or succession taxes paid to any State or Territory, including this State.

The law affects only the estates of resident decedents. It provides for a graduated scale of rates varying from one-quarter of 1 per cent on the amount of net estates not in excess of $10,000 to 10 per cent. on amounts by which a net estate exceeds $10,000,000. The intervening rates are all on the excess over amounts running from $100,000 to $10,000,000. The Federal rates by similar progression range from 1 per cent. to 40 per cent.

The law was drafted by the State Tax Department to parallel the Federal Estate Tax law, with a view to enabling the State to take advantage of a provision in the Federal statute under which credits are allowed for death taxes paid to any State or Territory, although not to exceed 25 per cent. of the amount of the tax.

An examination of the transfer tax law by the officials disclosed that where the estate of a decedent is valued at more than $1,000,000 the death taxes imposed by New York and other States and territories may amount to less than 25 per cent. of the Federal estate tax assessed against it. General experience has been, however, that such death taxes seldom will be less than 25 per cent. of the Federal tax, where the estate is more than $5,000,000.

Tax officials thought it well worth while to take advantage of the Federal provision in order to increase the revenues of the State, especially as it would not involve an increase in any way of the tax burden. The total tax under the new law will not be any higher, while the State will gain something that the estate would be compelled to pay to the Federal Government and which would be a total loss to the State had the law not been enacted.

Changes have been provided for, also, in the law affecting the inheritance tax of non-resident decedents.

These changes will take effect on July 1. For the graduated rates of the present law has been substituted a flat rate of 2 per cent. on the property of non-residents in this State which has been transferred. Under this rate no deductions except incumbrances on real estate are allowed. The law carries alternate provision for 3 per cent. rate where other deductions are claimed. Tax officials, however, believe that deduction claims will be waived in interest of the lower rate in all but very few instances. The 2 per cent. rate is in accord with the rate fixed by several States imposing a flat rate.

Another feature of the new law is a provision for reciprocity, under which this State undertakes not to tax the personal property of non-resident decedents in cases where the State of residence does not impose a death tax on decedent New Yorkers. From 1911 to 1919 New York did not impose a transfer tax on the personal property of non-residents. This principle was abandoned only when it was found necessary "in self-defense," as one Tax Department official put it, as other States were not inclined to follow the example of the Empire State.

There is a growing sentiment among tax officials that death taxes on the intangible property of non-residents should be done away with and that the Federal estate tax, which was adopted as a war measure, should be repealed and this source of taxation be left exclusively to the States.

All the changes in the law affecting non-resident decedents were adopted to simplify determination of the amount and the payment of the tax on their estates. Another step in this direction was a provision under which the determination and collection of the non-resident decedent tax, under the old law a Surrogate's function, is transferred to the State Tax Department.

The 155th annual dinner of the St. George's Society of New York was held at the Waldorf-Astoria last night. Among those who attended were Sir Harry Gloster Armstrong, British Consul-General in New York, and Lady Armstrong. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Scott; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Evans; the Consul-General of the Netherlands; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. A. Marriott; L. E. Bernays; Captain J. Milne; Angus Fletcher, Stephen Lancaster, Mrs. Dinsmore, Miss May Moulton, Frederick Hudd, Consul-General of Norway; Mrs. Foy, Miss Pavry and Mrs. E. H. Watson.

L. I. TRAIN HITS AUTO; 1 DEAD, ANOTHER DYING

John Sidel, 52 years old, a nurseryman of Lindenhurst, L. I., was instantly killed at 12:45 o'clock this morning when the automobile he was driving across the tracks of the Long Island Railroad at Wellwood Avenue, near his home, was struck by the locomotive of a seven-car eastbound train, filled with theatregoers returning from this city.

In the car with Sidel was Joseph Schwitz, 40, proprietor of a tearoom on Montauk Highway, Lindenhurst. Schwitz received fractures of both legs and internal injuries and was removed in a critical condition to Southside Hospital at Bay Shore.

The locomotive struck the automobile in the middle and carried it four hundred feet before C. Martin, the engine driver, brought the train to a stop. Sidel was thrown against the upright crossing gate and Schwitz to the side of the road. The crossing gates are not operated after 10 o'clock at night.

SAYS BUSINESS IS "SOUND."

Bankers' Association Executive Committee Reports on Situation.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 22 (Associated Press).—Assurance that the business situation of the country is "fundamentally sound," although prosperity has not reached the heights which "it was expected in some quarters it would," was contained in a resolution adopted by the Executive Council of the American Bankers' Association here today. One hundred and fifty bankers, representing every State in the Union, make up the council.

A warning that more drastic measures are necessary to combat the wave of bank burglaries in the Middle West was given in the report of the association's Protective Committee, which declared "The roving army of desperadoes, flouting the law at every turn," shows a persistent growth that is "convincing proof that the dangers of the bandits threaten to become a permanent menace."

In commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the organization's history, the council voted its approval of a suggestion by the Committee on Anniversary Preparations that an endowment fund of not less than $50,000 be created to provide scholarships in the economic departments of various colleges and universities, and, if a sufficient amount is raised, for research work along economic lines. The fund is to be raised by voluntary subscriptions. Two subscriptions of $5,000 each already have been pledged, it was stated.

The estate of Robert A. Carter, Vice President of the Consolidated Gas Company, was appraised yesterday at $1,287,218, but because of debts of $467,286 and other deductions the net estate was only $760,812. The securities were worth $1,176,992, of which $1,172,250 was in 18,000 shares of common stock of the Consolidated. Mr. Carter also had $12,318 due him from the Brooklyn Union Gas Company for services. He owed $252,970 to the National City Bank for a loan and $130,000 to the New York Trust Company. He also owed Clark, Dodge & Co. $61,829.

A life interest in $42,331 went to the widow, Mrs. Helen R. Carter of 209 Seventy-second Street, Brooklyn, and a life interest in $252,633 each to Mr. Carter's son, Robert A. Carter, and his daughter, Helen R. Carter. His secretary, Elizabeth M. Marlowe of the Hotel Brevoort, received a life interest in $65,125, and Frances B. Anderson of Lenox, a friend, a life interest in $32,562. To another friend, Emily Louise Bostwick of 489 Ninth Street, Brooklyn, was left $5,000.

Mr. Carter died suddenly on Feb. 4, 1924, in his rooms at the Union League Club.

Coolidge Selects Tariff Board Member to Succeed Minister Jay.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—President Coolidge has selected William S. Culbertson of Kansas to succeed Peter A. Jay as Minister to Rumania. Mr. Jay soon will be transferred to Argentina.

Mr. Culbertson, who is Vice Chairman of the Tariff Commission, has not made known whether he will accept, nor have the usual formalities preceding a diplomatic appointment been concluded.

State Department officials hold the Rumanian post of high importance and have canvassed the names of numerous men to find one capable of maintaining American rights in the delicate situation obtaining there.

Air Ambulance Report Denied.

Reports that an airplane ambulance service, designed to rush emergency cases from incoming ocean liners at Quarantine to hospitals here, would be inaugurated by the Columbia University-Presbyterian Hospital Medical Centre upon the completion of its new home at 168th Street and Broadway were denied last night by Dean Suter, President of the Presbyterian Hospital. It was said that plans for the new buildings called for a landing platform for airplanes, but this was also denied.

PUT IN FALSE LIGHT, DEAN INGE ASSERTS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 22.—Dean William Ralph Inge of St. Paul's, London, admitted today that he was discouraged as well as gloomy. He feels that the presentation of his Lyman Beecher lectures at Yale to the people of America through the secular press has placed him in a false light.

"They are theological addresses to divinity students and to Connecticut clergymen," the Dean said, "and they are being printed and read as if they were for popular consumption. The American people, I fear, do not understand the situation."

Dean Inge has been besieged by a succession of all kinds of interviewers, especially flappers, when he expected clergymen representing religious journals, and he feels that, from a lecture standpoint, he is being swept from his moorings.

In his good-natured, accommodating way the Dean assisted a reporter yesterday by lending him his original and only book in which his addresses are written in long hand, and the reporter did not bring it back. The Dean seemed unlikely to begin his lecture on time this morning, but the book was traced to a newspaper office and was retrieved just in time.

"Can't you get the secular press to call off their dogs as far as presenting this theological course as lectures intended for the public?" the Dean asked today.

He resents, too, his gloom being treated in some quarters with flippant jocularity.

Dean Inge is making friends fast with official Yale and New Haven. He has talked in several exclusive clubs and dined with university and city officials whose consolation has been inadequate to recompensate him for being placed before the American public like a distorted moving picture.

The Dean gave two more of the Lyman Beecher course of lectures today, sketching the growth of the Christian Church through the feudal and the Calvinistic states. These he contrasted, the Barons as idle and the Calvinists as active.

Dean Inge termed idleness one of the greatest sins of the human race. The development of Calvinism marked the disappearance of this sin among the governing classes, he said. They thought idleness was the worst of sins and kept busy. The Calvinists never loafed. They were superior and their religious life was vastly superior to that of the feudal period.

"Calvinism," said the dean, "is different from all other forms of religion known, because it accepts the standards of capitalism and defends them."

The Dean sketched the projection of Calvinism through the life of the twentieth century, pointing out that a survival of it exists in the American, if not in the English, business man of today, who stints himself in his spending, and who is unable to really enjoy his hard earned money after he gives his entire life to earning it.

Dean Inge's lectures today followed the model of the historic Beecher course, which was established at Yale in memory of the father of Henry Ward Beecher, who was one of the foremost American theologians, although not as prominent from a secular viewpoint as his son, who attained American leadership in the pulpit.

JAILS 58 POLICEMEN AND "DRY" AGENTS

Court Also Inflicts Fines on Culprits in Cincinnati Graft Cases.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 22.—Cincinnati municipal policemen and village "dry" agents, who pleaded guilty to the charge of conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition law, were sentenced to prison terms ranging downward from eighteen months, coupled with fines of $2,000 to $50, in the United States District Court today.

The sentences by Judge Smith Hickenlooper brought a finale to the long drive of the Government to end grafting by Cincinnati policemen and neighboring village "dry" agents.

Sentences were passed on fifty-eight of the defendants, and one officer, who was unable to appear because of illness, will be sentenced before Monday.

All of the fifty-nine officers were indicted by the Special Federal Grand Jury that investigated violations of the National Prohibition law and the payment of "protection money" by bootleg and narcotic peddlers.

2 JURY ACQUITTALS CRITICIZED BY JUDGE

In the presence of a panel of talesmen, among them members of two juries which, in the preceding twenty-four hours, had repudiated the testimony of policemen and acquitted a negro and an ex-convict of felony charges, Judge Rosalsky yesterday, in General Sessions, criticized the juror who would give credence to the word of a criminal gainst that of a policeman.

The Judge's remarks were brought about by the plea of guilty of Theodore Gregory, 32 years old, of 206 East Forty-fourth Street, to an indictment charging him with feloniously having a pistol in his possession. The indictment was returned when it was found that Gregory had been convicted on four previous occasions of felony charges. He was remanded for sentence.

Judge Rosalsky, asserting that Gregory deserved commendation for admitting his guilt, said: "We are always ready to acclaim the heroism of our police. When a cry is made of fire or murder, our police officers valiantly fly in the face of danger, ready to make a rescue, to capture the fleeing felon and expose their lives for the safety of the citizens. But when a police officer appears as a witness against a crook, the jurors seem to give credence to the crook instead of the policeman. Such action on the part of jurors discourages honest policemen, and no arrests are made."

On Tuesday a jury in Judge Rosalky's court acquitted a negro after Policeman Bent had testified that the accused admitted a charge of burglary. A short time later a jury in Judge Allen's part of General Sessions acquitted William Kopp, an ex-convict with a record of three prison terms, who was charged with having four pistols in an apartment in West End Avenue. Detective Coleman said he arrested Kopp a few blocks from the apartment after the discovery of the pistols. Inspector Coughlin, head of the Detective Division, testified that Kopp admitted to him that he owned the four weapons and that he had paid a man $35 for them.

BANKERS IN HOSPITAL DRIVE

C. H. Sabin Heads Committee to Help Beekman St. Institution.

Charles H. Sabin, Chairman of the Guaranty Trust Company, was Chairman of a committee of ten Presidents and Vice Presidents of downtown banks which began canvassing banks and trust companies yesterday in the Beekman Street Hospital campaign for a $350,000 endowment fund.

Sub-committees of bankers and members of Stock Exchange houses are now assisting in the drive. The Bankers' Committee consists of Charles H. Sabin, Stephen Baker, James I. Bush, John H. Fulton, Harvey D. Gibson, Louis G. Kaufmann, Edwin G. Merrill, Samuel Sloan, Robert L. Smith and Herbert K. Twitchell.

Paul Ludwig Hans Anton von Beneckendorff und von Hindenburg, Field-Marshal of Germany, may be the next President of the German Republic as the outcome of the election to be held April 26th. This startling prediction is made by dozens of American newspapers, following the preliminary election on March 29th, when it was realized that another candidate would have to be found to supplant Dr. Karl Jarres, candidate of the German Nationalist party.

Would his election upset the negotiation of the security compact which was to insure the peace of Europe? Is it the secret hope of the Nationalists that he will pave the way for the nomination of some prince as his successor—until the former Crown Prince's eldest son is old enough to fight for the imperial throne? Or will the Field-Marshal, if elected, consider himself the Republican President of a Republican State? Will the forces which put through his nomination accept the Dawes plan? Will he build up the German Republic or reconstruct the old Empire? Can this right-hand man of the former Kaiser overcome his life-long training in his few remaining years? Is all that Germany has done thus far to restore peace and bring about self-government to be undone? These, remarks the Buffalo Evening Post, "are some of the questions that the whole civilized world is asking."

Some of these questions are answered in a striking news-article in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week, the April 25th number. The current of American newspaper opinion is clearly indicated. All of the possibilities are presented and American readers will see at a glance the present critical political situation in Germany. Other important news-articles in this week's number are: there is something essentially contemptible in gagging a man who is fighting for his character, his professional honor and standing, his very life. Bishop Brown, of all men in the Episcopal Church, at this particular crisis of all times in his career, should be given the freest and fullest opportunity to state his case. If the Bishop of New York will silence him the citizens of New York will not."

POLICE STEM RUSH TO HEAR DR. BROWN

At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Holmes announced that during the next address Bishop Brown had requested the indulgence of being allowed to retire and rest. He said he made the announcement lest the Bishop's leaving the platform be misconstrued and it be thought that at the last moment he had been requested not to speak. The audience, remembering events of last Sunday at St. Mark's, laughed and applauded.

Mr. Sharts, next speaker, said there were several reasons why the Bishop might not want to be present when he spoke.

"The Bishop, you know," he said, "loves everybody. But I as his lawyer do not love everybody. Some people I take on probation. There are some whose practices lately have looked rather shady. So I keep on probation, among others, Justice Vernon M. Davis and Bishop Manning."

He criticised Justice Davis's recent statement on Bishop Brown, which he said made it appear he had been convicted not on his religious beliefs but on his political and economic beliefs. He said he resented this imputation as a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

He attacked Bishop Manning for refusing to let Bishop Brown speak here and commented on the fact that Bishop Manning was collecting funds for the cathedral from all religions on the ground that it was a house of prayer for all the people.

"Out in my State," he said, "we have a statute which defines the crime of obtaining money under false pretenses. I judge by your expressions"—the audience was laughing and applauding—"that you have a similar one here. It brings the suggestion that Bishop Manning is lucky to have a friend like Justice Vernon M. Davis."

After Mr. Sharts had concluded, Bishop Brown returned to the platform. His entrance was accompanied by much applause, most of the audience standing. The Bishop read from the manuscript, sometimes faltering a little as he went along, but gaining strength toward the end. After opening with a reference to his trial, he continued:

Says Heresy Means Nothing.

"I have not defended myself in the customary way. I have admitted from the start that I am a heretic. Yes, in the sense in which the word was always used in the days when they burned people at the stake for deviating in some particular from the approved and established codification of literal belief, I am a heretic.

"But it has been my contention that, judged by such standards, everybody is a heretic today; or, to put the same idea in other words, the world has been swept into a period of scientific enlightenment which has robbed the word 'heresy' of any possible meaning.

"Science recognizes no such thing as heresy. Science recognizes only truth and error—or, to make a still finer distinction, the meaningful and the meaningless. If a statement is suspected of being erroneous, the scientific procedure is not to bring the statement before a tribunal, that arbitrary and authoritative judgment may be passed upon it, but to subject the statement to analysis and research, in which case whatever is true proves itself, whatever is false passes from the scene and whatever is still questionable is held for further investigation.

"The Church has never followed such a method. It has never thought of doing so. Even to propose such a scheme for separating the false and true shocks the theological mind into complete inaction. Modern learning, however, knows no other way; and it is the dilemma of the old churches that they are trying to function in a new age, in this scientific world, with certain theories as to the nature of truth which that world has long since discarded.

"I have tried, with all the resources at my command, to save the Church from this dilemma. I call all my judges to witness that I have not fought for Bishop Brown. I have had a larger aim in view. It matters little what happens to me. I have but a few more years to live at best, and my energies have waned. If I am retained in the House of Bishops there is very little, if anything, that I can contribute to its work. But the Church needs me to show the way of escape from the inhibitions which are rendering her so impotent in a world which sorely needs her religious service.

"There was no rancor in my so-called trials. To me the court room was not a judicial tribunal from which we were trying to wrest our rights. Rather, it was a school in which the counsel for the defense was the head teacher. Nineteen bishops attended that school, and while we cannot say that they are fit for graduation yet, we hope that some of them made considerable progress."

At a later point, after defining what the concept of God meant to him, Bishop Brown continued:

"But the bishops say that I have no God and that, therefore, I must be put out of the House. They say that I am an atheist. They say I must believe in the existence of a God with a human body given to Him by the Holy Spirit and the Virgin Mary, that its blood might be shed for the redemption of the world from the effects of the fall of a historic Adam and from the power of a conscious, personal devil.

"Now, I do not attack that concept of God and that plan of salvation. What I am attacking is the position of the Church which declares by its trial of me in this scientific age that its representatives must not seek a larger concept of God and a better plan of salvation. That position automatically excludes every scientifically minded modern man and woman from religious leadership.

"I used to hold that literal concept much more literally, I believe, than do some of the good brethren who have now voted for my expulsion from the ministry. But I grew out of it. There came a time in my personal evolution when the old conception of God and salvation was no longer tenable, and in that crisis only three courses were open to me:

"I could enlarge my concept, and say so.

"I might hang on to the old concept and commit spiritual suicide, as all must do who quit the search for greater truth.

"I might go on enlarging my concept of God but keeping my mouth discreetly closed, pretending to whom it might concern that I was just as literally orthodox as ever.

"Those were the three courses open to me. We might call them respectively heresy, stultification and hypocrisy. The only two courses which the Church would permit were those of stultification and hypocrisy.

"I admit that I might have resigned, and had Bishop Brown been the main issue in the case that might have been the logical thing for me to do. But I was not the issue. It was the Church that I loved which was the real issue in this case. What was to become of the Church, and how was it to continue functioning in this scientific age?

"For what had happened in my religious evolution had happened to great masses of people throughout our scientific world. The old supernaturalism as to the unique origin, history and destiny of man had to be abandoned; and a Church which should insist upon this utterly antiquated supernaturalism as its cardinal principle could have no further meaning to them.

"The Church could not hold such persons with a policy either of stultification or hypocrisy. The only basis upon which further cooperation could be possible would be that of frank recognition of the right to seek, find, follow and teach the truth."

Mr. James C. Dayton,
Publisher, N. Y. Evening Journal,
New York City.

Dear Sir:

In renewing our 100,000 line contract with the Evening Journal for 1925, it gives us pleasure to note that we exceeded this amount of space by nearly 50% in 1924, and presume we will do so again.

The past year has been a very successful one with us, and we feel sure that the Evening Journal has played its part in that success.

Very truly yours,
Louis M. Weiller
President
WEBER AND HEILBRONER

LW:SS

The growth of this famous men's wear firm can be seen in the increasing number of Weber and Heilbroner stores in various sections of the city.

Weber and Heilbroner today are one of New York's best known Men's Wear firms—with thirteen stores in Manhattan, Brooklyn and Newark. Yet, twenty-eight years ago there was only one Weber and Heilbroner store and it was at Third Avenue and 54th Street.

Weber and Heilbroner's present yearly business volume of many million dollars is the best commercial proof of the soundness of the merchandising and advertising policy that has developed this firm from one store to a place among the leaders of New York Men's Wear trade.

Weber and Heilbroner have used the Evening Journal for more than ten years. Starting with less than 5,000 lines in 1914 in the days of their well-known "The Man in the Tower" copy, Weber and Heilbroner today place more than 140,000 lines of their advertising yearly in the New York Evening Journal.

During all these years this paper has enabled Weber and Heilbroner to reach half the New York evening newspaper field at one cost and without duplication. Its readers have proved responsive to whatever priced merchandise Weber and Heilbroner feature—whether suits at $40 or $85; overcoats up to $110; Manhattan shirts at $3.50 or $10; Knapp-felt hats at $6 to $10.

This range of price indicates a most substantial purchasing power on the part of the men among the Journal's 2,000,000 daily readers.

SEES CITY TRAFFIC ALL UNDERGROUND

STREETS BUILT IN TIERS

H. W. Corbett Says New York of Future Will Be a "Gargantuan Conception."

Fifty years hence automobile traffic will have entirely disappeared from the surface thoroughfares of New York City and people will be shot through tubes like merchandise, according to a prediction made yesterday by Harvey W. Corbett, Chairman of the luncheon meeting of the convention of the American Institute of Architects at the Roosevelt.

"New York will be vast and the growth of all our large cities will probably be such that they will extend for 60 or 75 miles," Mr. Corbett said. "New York will be a Titanic city half a mile high, probably tiered in gigantic terraces; a Gargantuan pyramidal conception, fit for a race of giants; 60 miles across, and conducting its traffic through tubes and on movable platforms and escalating galleries.

"Horizontally moving rooms will be as familiar as the vertically running elevator is today and there will be stairs in plenty, so that there will be no danger of the man of fifty years hence losing the power of locomotion. Indeed, in order to facilitate traffic and to make movement possible at all, there will be plenty of walking to be done. But people will be shot fifty miles in tubes in thirty minutes, like parcels.

"The herding instinct of man to congregate in cities grows stronger. The concentration of the business and commerce of the world in great cities like New York makes it imperative that its workers be accommodated. The evolution of the city is pointing toward more astounding developments every day. We have already seen the city take shapes that a few years ago were characterized as 'absurd, fantastical, impossible' when architectural drawings of them were made public."

Would Give Draftsmen Credit.

Hundreds of draftsmen from practically every architect's office in the city were guests at the luncheon. The afternoon program was devoted to the advocacy of closer relationship between the architects and the men who translate their ideas into working drawings.

It was explained by Mr. Corbett that although building contractors and architects received full credit for their work, this was not the case with the draftsmen, who frequently contributed suggestions of enormous practical value in great undertakings. All draftsmen, Mr. Corbett said, were potential architects, and the institute desired to encourage their recognition and express appreciation of their work.

Kenneth M. Murchison, who was introduced as the "Charles M. Schwab of the architectural profession," said he hoped that all draftsmen would draw hard and draw fast, and in time draw good salaries.

Hugh Ferris, who makes drawings which visualize the building plans of architects, expressed the belief that there were "profound questions as to how buildings look, act and are."

"As George Du Maurier declared in his novel 'Trilby,'" said Mr. Ferris, "an artist never comprehends a face until he has drawn it. It is the same with the planning of a building."

The Committee on Public Works recommended the establishment of a Government agency to take the form of a division of the Interior Department, devoted to public works. In the event of failure to secure the establishment of a Public Works Division, the committee reported that it was prepared to recommend an enlargement of the functions of the Public Building Commission.

"It is possible," the report said, "that no legislation will be passed covering either reorganization or expansion of the Public Buildings Commission, and that an appropriation bill will be based on the bill which failed of passage in the Sixty-eighth Congress. Should this condition arise, your committee recommends that the institute should propose such amendments to the bill as will eliminate the obstacles which caused its defeat, while preserving those elements which the institute believes of vital importance."

More Art Teachers Needed.

The report of the Committee on Education said that because of the marked growth of art instruction in the colleges there has been revealed a decided shortage of properly equipped art teachers.

"It appears," the report continued, "that the growth of art teaching will be greatly retarded unless some means are quickly provided for increasing the number of art teachers who are properly qualified for college work.

"After investigation your Chairman found that in connection with such institutions as the Chicago Art Institute and the Metropolitan of New York a department could be added in each case at relatively little expense which could produce just the kind of teachers desired."

Thomas B. Kimball, Chairman of the Committee on War Memorials, recommended that it be discharged because he said there seemed to be little need for its continuance.

"The Chairman of the committee seeks to discover a comforting thought," Mr. Kimball said, "in the fact that the craze for permanent records of the war is passing before it has found much permanent expression. May we find in this phase of our present experience some promise of the passing of war itself and some hope for that brotherhood of man which is one of America's proudest suggestions, and which can never materialize until war is a thing of the past? May we not even look forward to some form of monument that shall be erected not to the memory of war but to its everlasting oblivion?"

The Exposition of Architecture and the Allied Arts at the Grand Central Palace was open to the public during the afternoon and evening. A meeting of the National Council of Architectural Registration Boards was held at the Roosevelt during the afternoon. A tea for the wives of the visiting architects was given by the Junior League at 133 East Sixty-first Street at 5 o'clock and there was a theatre party at the Music Box Theatre in the evening.

A plan to relieve traffic congestion on Fifth Avenue between Thirty-fourth and Fifty-ninth Streets will be presented to the convention at the Grand Central Palace this afternoon by Harry Allen Jacobs, winner of the Prix de Rome. His scheme embraces the utilization of concrete terraces and will cost about $2,000,000.

Saturday is to be school children's day at the exposition. More than 100,000 school tickets have been distributed among colleges and high schools in New York and New Jersey.

During the remainder of the exposition representatives of the Small Homes Service Bureau will advise prospective home planners and buyers daily between 4:30 and 8:30 P. M.

Coolidge May Speak in Maine.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—President Coolidge indicated today to Governor Ralph Brewster of Maine, a caller at the White House, that he would attend, if possible, a conference of State Governors at Poland Springs, Me., on June 28. The President will be in New England at that time, as he plans to go to Swampscott, Mass., for a vacation early in the Summer.

COPYRIGHT TRUCE OBTAINED BY BLOOM

HUME HEADS COMMITTEE

Differences Between Radio Group and Composers to Be Threshed Out by Subcommittees.

Representative Sol Bloom, Chairman of the subcommittee of the Committee on Patents of the lower house of Congress, succeeded yesterday, with the assistance of Will H. Hays, in getting the organizations which desire an improved copyright law to agree to discuss their differences in an amicable manner and prepare a report setting forth the requirements they wish to have drafted into a bill to be introduced at the next session. The first meeting of the subcommittee, held at the Bar Association, in Forty-fourth Street, brought out representatives of more than twenty organizations, including composers, authors, radio broadcasters, artists, theatrical and picture interests, magazine publishers and book publishers.

Mr. Hays, as President of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributers' Association of America, told the gathering that the movie industry earnestly desired a fair and adequate copyright law, as the present act was sorely in need of revision.

Nathan Burkan, attorney for the Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, discussing the quarrel between musical composers and the radio and graphophone interests, said his group objected to the discrimination against it in the existing copyright act, but added that, in view of the recent Federal Court of Appeals decision, the composers were perfectly content with the present radio law. Frederic W. Hume, Secretary of the National Publishers' Association, championed the authors and composers.

Mr. Hays then suggested that all of the societies represented be regarded as a committee of the whole and that various subcommittees be formed of those having disputes as to rights and endeavor to work out a harmonious plan. All of these smaller committees would report to the general committee, which would go before the Subcommittee on Patents to help it draft the new Copyright bill. It was indicated that the Perkins bill, which failed of passage at the last Congress, would be used as the basis of argument, as its main features met with general approval.

Mr. Hays proposed that the different organizations should each have one representative on these committees, but in cases where it would be necessary to meet with other committees, different representatives might be selected for different meetings.

Ellis Parker Butler, speaking for the Authors' League of America, was afraid the authors, if limited to a single representative among so many bodies, would be outvoted on decisions regarding particular differences.

"There will be no voting in these committee meetings," explained Chairman Bloom. "The object is to get a working force, and any member may present a minority report to the general committee and it will receive equal consideration. The main object is to reduce the differences."

Mr. Hays's plan prevailed, and Frederic W. Hume was unanimously elected Chairman. He announced that he would name the committee representatives and apportion them among their different sections and the first meetings would be held within a week or two.

Among those present was Thorvold Solberg, Register of Copyrights, Library of Congress, who drafted the Perkins bill.

BURGLAR EXAMINES REPORT ON SKELLY

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., April 22.—A burglary which, the police here believe, had for its purpose an examination of an official copy of the autopsy report prepared following the murder of Patrolman James Skelly here last October, was disclosed here today by Edward F. Lane, pathologist at the New Britain General Hospital. Gerald Chapman was recently found guilty of shooting Skelly and was sentenced to hang in June.

Mr. Lane reported to the police today that his house had been entered Sunday night and that his official records and papers had been ransacked. The Skelly report, which was covered by several reports of a recent date, was found on top of the packet of documents and looked as if it had been handled and carefully examined, according to Mr. Lane.

Mr. Lane and Dr. Waterman Lyon performed the autopsy on the body of Patrolman Skelly after he had been shot last October, and while Mr. Lane filed the original report at the New Britain General Hospital, he kept a carbon copy with other similar reports in his desk.

Search for fingerprints indicated that the intruder had worn gloves. None of the papers was taken.

A desk drawer had been opened and a sum of money had been ignored by the visitor, and while the buffet drawers and the china closet in the dining room had been opened, the silver and cut glass were not touched.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Brooklyn Polytechnic Branch of the American Institute of Chemical Engineering will hold its annual dinner, Friday, at the Chemists' Club, 52 East Forty-first Street.

The annual reunion of the Veterans Corps of the Sixty-ninth Regiment will be held in the armory tonight. The program will be broadcast by WFBH.

The fourth annual reunion of former active members of Evacuation Hospital 6 will be held on Saturday night at Noel's Restaurant, 208 West Seventy-first Street.

Ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman will speak on "Is New York Getting Better or Worse?" next Sunday afternoon at the West Side Y. M. C. A., 318 West Fifty-seventh Street.

Dean Frank H. Sommer of the Law Department of New York University will be the guest of honor at a dinner of the Manhattan Single Tax Club tomorrow night at the Machinery Club, 50 Church Street.

Arrangements have been made for an international concert to be given at Town Hall on April 29 by the Foreign Language Information Service, to portray the cultural contributions of America's immigrant groups to her national life.

The United States Army band, known as "Pershing's Own," will give a concert at Prospect Park next Monday afternoon. Special permission for the appearance was obtained from the War Department by Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall.

The fourth annual exhibition of advertising art, under the auspices of the Art Directors' Club, will be held at the Art Centre, 65 West Fifty-sixth Street, from April 27 to May 14.

The Child Labor Committee, 105 East Twenty-second Street, has issued an appeal to provide scholarships for poor children compelled to contribute to the family support and thus neglect school.

The Brooklyn Citizens Patriotic Committee and the American Legion of Kings County, will hold their fifth annual American Rally next Sunday afternoon at the band stand in Prospect Park. There will be a parade of patriotic and civic organizations.

Mrs. Sidney C. Borg will preside at the Organization Conference Luncheon, to be held at 12:30 P. M. today at the Ambassador, under the auspices of the Women's Division of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, of which she is Chairman.

SUES TO RECOVER CITY ISLAND LAND

WAS SOLD FIRST IN 1836

Property Originally Was Part of Public Domain—Now Held by Home Owners and Shippers.

The State of New York filed a complaint naming seventy-two individuals and sixteen corporations yesterday in the Bronx Supreme Court as the first step in a legal action to recover title to more than 100 acres of waterfront property of City Island.

The papers, prepared in the office of Attorney General Ottinger, and dated April 21, were filed by Irving S. Carmer of the Attorney General's office. The property in question was part of the public domain at the organization of New York State in 1777, and was acquired in 1836 by Ethan J. Hunter in a deed "purporting to give title to all lands from the high water mark, 400 feet into Long Island Sound."

The State alleges that the lands in question were taken out of the public domain for a purpose other than public benefit and that their disposal to private interests was unauthorized by law. The lands, now held by private home owners, shipping and realty interests, include a strip 400 feet below the high water mark, and with the exception of a small stretch at the north end of the Island, the entire easterly City Island. Property owners on the mainland are not affected.

The present occupants of the property derive title from this deed, and the complaint of the Attorney General contends that the State Legislature exceeded its authority in ordering the land sold at public auction in 1826.

The corporations mentioned as defendants in the complaint are City Island Land and Dock Company, Island Yacht Club, City Island Homes, Inc.; B. F. Wood, Inc.; Hillbright Corporation, City Island Beach Company, Inc.; Minnieford Realty Corporation, Broad Channel Corporation, Bankers Trust Company, Dollar Savings Bank of the City of New York, Robert Jacob, Inc.; Zenith Bathing Pavilion and the County Collector of the City of New York. Other firms named were the Columbia Oval Corporation of Delaware, Pabst Corporation of Wisconsin and Ratsey & Lapthorn of Great Britain.

None of the defendants mentioned had received copies of the complaint and all were unable to state what action would be taken. Robert Jacob, Pilot Street, who has maintained a shipyard on City Island for more than thirty years, said that he had heard rumors of the State's action eight or nine months ago, but had dismissed it as a rumor.

DISCUSS LABOR MERGER.

Committees of the Building Trades Council affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and the New York Building Trades Council, formerly presided over by Robert P. Brindell, met the Executive Council of the A. F. of L.'s Building Trades Department at the Hotel Aberdeen yesterday.

The committees reported that they had made progress on the plan to merge the two councils and were asked to report again next month to the Building Trades Department at federation headquarters in Washington.

WOMEN VOTERS CLOSE RICHMOND CONVENTION

RICHMOND, Va., April 22.—Ending the sixth annual convention here of the National League of Women Voters, the General Council of the league met this morning, when the seven days' work of the convention was reviewed.

It is assumed that the council discussed suggestions for the next convention city, but Miss Belle Sherwin, the president, announced that this question would be taken up at the July meeting of the Board of Directors. It is thought the convention next year will be taken to a Western or a Mid-western city.

A cablegram read at the meeting announced that the Tenth Annual Congress of the Women's Suffrage Alliance would be held in Paris in 1926, probably during Easter week.

The Special Committee for study of immigration problems presented its report, recommending that for the present, "neither board nor league attempt to reach a conclusion with reference to a national immigration policy as expressed by Acts of Congress."

The Board of Directors made a report urging that, for a more general understanding of the program and a more effective support of emphasized measures, State leagues should direct an extensive series of schools related to the program.

Among the topics to be studied in these schools is the world and its uses for peace.

Several hundred delegates took the all-day pilgrimage to Williamsburg, Jamestown and Yorktown, taking luncheon at William and Mary College and returning to Richmond tonight in time to get their trains for West, North and South.

ROB PAWN-SHOP IN DAYLIGHT

Five Thieves by Clever Ruses Get From $10,000 to $25,000 Loot.

A daring daylight robbery in Brooklyn was successfully carried out yesterday morning when five armed men held up three clerks and three customers in the pawn-shop belonging to the estate of Morris H. Kodel, at 964 Fulton Street, and escaped with between $10,000 and $25,000 in cash and jewelry. The holdup occurred about 10 o'clock when the streets were well filled with people. So methodically did the bandits work that suspicion was not aroused when they came out and got into a waiting automobile.

Louis Matis, the manager, and two assistants were in the shop. Five men entered, displayed revolvers and ordered them into a rear room. While two stood guard, the others leisurely gathered up the valuables. One of the bandits took off his coat to give the appearance of being employed there and, going to the show window, took the best of the goods on display. The safe was open and from it a robber took $500 in cash. He overlooked a quantity of diamonds and about $1,000 in bills.

The Grand Avenue police station was notified at once and an alarm was sent out. From the description of the bandits and their method the police believe the gang is the same that held up a branch of the Prudential Life Insurance Company at Nostrand Avenue and Herkimer Street about a month ago and got away with $7,000.

Andania to Land Master, Ill.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 22.—A radio message received here today from the Cunard liner Andania announced that the vessel would put in here this afternoon to land Captain Brown, who is seriously ill. No details were given. The Andania, sailed from New York Saturday for Liverpool.

YOUNGER BRINDELL NOW STRIKE LEADER

INCREASED PAY DEMANDED

Strikers' Places to Be Filled Soon, and Tunnel Will Be in Use in the Fall, Say Contractors.

Robert Brindell Jr., son of the convicted labor "czar," is acting as an assistant business agent of Local 63 of the Compressed Air and Foundation Workers' Union, which went on strike on the New York-New Jersey Vehicular Tunnel Tuesday.

Brindell, a man in his late twenties, appeared at the New York entrance of the tunnel about a month ago, with Joseph Moran, business agent of the Compressed Air Workers' Union. He and Moran discussed the grievances of the men with a representative of Booth & Flinn, the contractors.

Moran and Brindell appeared at the tunnel yesterday and issued a statement on behalf of the 180 men who walked out Tuesday, demanding an increase from $5 to $7.50 and $8 a day. They said they believed the "sandhogs" were entitled to higher wages because of the difficulties of their work.

Michael Quinn, superintendent for the contractors, said the engineers, carpenters and other mechanics remained on the job and did not go out in sympathy with the "sandhogs," who struck because their wages were reduced from that of compressed air workers to laborers when they no longer worked under air pressure.

The superintendent said that in a day or two all the striking places would be filled. The tunnel is expected to be in operation by the Fall, officials of the contracting firm said yesterday. Policemen continued to patrol both entrances of the tunnel yesterday.

Man's First Drug Store. Its Use In Reducing the Death Rate Among Comparatively Young Men.

Dr. Paul Haerti, Professor of Balneology at the University of Bavaria, said, on his recent visit to this country, in response to the invitation of Governor Smith, and the State Conservation Commissioner to survey the mineral springs at Saratoga, he was most impressed by the high death rate among comparatively young men who "under proper medical treatment might have lived fifteen to twenty years longer."

"Especially New Yorkers," declared Dr. Haerti, "who in their business actually live two years in twelve months' time, ought to profit more largely from their health-giving springs."

He then mentioned several prominent men who had died recently and said: "If I diagnose their cases correctly, they were the victims of diseased kidneys, arterio-sclerosis, or heart trouble, and the unfortunate thing is all these diseases are amenable to treatment."

Springs were man's first drug stores. Under the supervision of the State of New York the Saratoga State Waters Corporation offers the three following famous waters:

Geyser—Sparkling Table Water. Refreshing and Healthful. This delightfully flavored water is one of the best aids to digestion. It is a well-known treatment for rheumatism and gout, good for heartburn, and corrects all acid conditions of the system.

When taken after meals it is a reliable diuretic. Its helpfulness also in various kinds of heart, kidney and liver diseases has been well demonstrated.

Hathorn—Sparkling Cathartic Water. Should be taken before breakfast. One pint is usually a trustworthy laxative. This sparkling water is useful in all disorders caused by constipation, and is especially valuable in the treatment of gastritis, dyspepsia, jaundice and catarrh of the intestines.

Coesa—Mildly Laxative Water (Sparkling). Should be taken half an hour before breakfast. Milder than the Hathorn. This water is also an antacid and diuretic, and is particularly valuable for gall stones.

Your physician will know just which water you should use. Your grocer will deliver them by the case. Also sold by druggists, hotels, clubs and restaurants by the bottle.

A few weeks' regular use of either of these three famous waters will restore the system, give new tone and build you up. As Dr. Haerti says, "The science of balneology is not properly understood in the United States." In Europe the employment of spring waters for both internal and external bathing as adjuncts to other cure and treatment produces most startling and satisfactory results. Give Nature a chance with Nature's best waters—the waters of Saratoga.

Send for booklet describing these three waters and their particular purpose in meeting various health conditions.

Chesterfield's popularity was won on taste alone

Put a ring around that word —and don't forget it!

Taste! That one word explains Chesterfield's enormous popularity. "They satisfy," because they contain the richest, mellowest tobaccos that money can buy. And they're mild, because these tobaccos are blended in just the right proportions for taste and aroma. It's a blend of unique character and it can't be copied!

COOLIDGE SEES YANKS ROUTED BY SENATORS

KELLOGG RAISES THE FLAG

Mrs. Coolidge, Mellon, Davis, New and Sargent Also Present as Season in Capital Opens.

JOHNSON STILL SUPREME

Holds Hugmen to 7 Hits, While Teammates Drive Shocker Out of the Box in Fifth.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23—The Senators came back to Washington today, riding on a landslide. President Coolidge, who returned last November in much the same fashion, threw out the baseball which signified the opening of another dizzy season on the Potomac. Secretary of State Kellogg ran the national colors up the flagpole; Walter Johnson pitched, the famous Marine Band played light airs and 35,000 wild-eyed capital fans sat in the stand.

Under these circumstances it would be a distinct pleasure to report that the Yankees played rings around the world's champions. It would be delightful to record how, in this setting, the hated New Yorkers outhit, outfielded and outpitched the local boys, played with magnificent snap and dash, earned salvos of applause from the hostile crowd and cast a cloud of gloom over the opening day ceremonies.

As a matter of fact, the Yankees did none of these things. They lost to the home champions by the resounding margin of 10 to 1, couldn't hit Walter Johnson for even a little bit and gave the President no cause for alarm as to the state of baseball in the District of Columbia.

Yanks Look Very Bad.

The Yankees have rarely looked worse than they did today, and the Senators rarely better. As a result, the Washington folks tonight rate the Yankees one degree below a Congressman and can't see any reason why the local team shouldn't waltz on to another title. Perhaps it was the strange phenomenon of the sun which dazzled the Yanks. They aren't used to playing in bright, golden sunshine.

It was a gorgeous opening day. Two bands, a big detachment of soldiers, marines and sailors, 2000 cadets men and a brigade of celebrities from the official circles of Washington, combined to make it a gaudy opening. Washington is the only city in either league which can toss a President's ceremonial first ball and a Cabinet member parade out to centre field and pull up the flag.

The gates opened at noon and Mr. Coolidge was on hand promptly at 3:15, which gave him fifteen minutes to get ready for his act of flinging a brand new pill in the general direction of the diamond. He seemed nervous, but trained to the minute. The Senators on the field wore heavy sweaters against the weather, but the Chief Executive refused the protection of even a light overcoat, and appeared in a dark blue suit and a brown hat.

With him, as he emerged from the runway leading from beneath the grand stand, were Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary Kellogg, Secretary Andrew W. Mellon, Attorney General Sargent and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Sanders. While the Marine Band, signalled by a fat and frantic police sergeant, struck up "Hail to the Chief," the President posed for what looked like a million pictures. Clark Griffith paid his respects to the distinguished guests and presented Manager Stanley Harris.

President's Aim Perfect.

It was after the two teams, the two bands and the troops had marched out to centre field to raise the flag that Mr. Coolidge was called on to pry the lid off officially. He took a preliminary wind-up for the benefit of the camera men and let fly. His control was almost perfect and his fast one had a hop on it that showed the President has been devoting some time to this part of his official duties. The ball went shoulder high to Walter Johnson who was waiting for it on the field.

During the game Mr. Coolidge kept a score card but Mrs. Coolidge kept the score. He rarely cheered and maintained an impassive face even when the Senators were scoring flocks of runs. In the seventh pastime he committed a faux pas by standing up in the visiting half of the inning.

Whether or not he was conscious of this social error on the part of a Washington rooter is not known, but Mrs. Coolidge was alive to the situation and tugged vigorously at his coat while she told him it was not the time to stand up. The President merely looked down at her and with an expression on his face strangely familiar to husbands when they are being corrected by their wives in public, he mumbled something not audible at a distance and remained standing.

Seeing that her suggestion had gone for nothing, Mrs. Coolidge, her face beaming, stood also. This required the others, including the Secret Service men, to do likewise. Of course, when the Washington's half of the seventh arrived the President and the guests in his box again stood up as a means of wishing luck to the home team.

Other Notables Attend.

Other notables were present in the grand stand. Among them were Postmaster General New, Secretary of Labor Davis, Speaker Longworth, the Belgian Ambassador, Assistant Secretary of State Grew and Representative Cooper, the insurgent Republican leader from Wisconsin.

Lured on by real baseball weather, the fans came out early to cheer the old players and look over the new additions. The crush was so terrific that not enough people got in to fill all the seats. There were so many official dignitaries that members of Congress were stumbling over each other. The Government closed up shop and went out and ate peanuts and chewed on frankfurters.

The fans cheered Walter Johnson every time he twitched his little finger. Johnson is the fellow who passed out of baseball last October, accompanied by obituaries. He is so aged that his husky son practiced with the Senators before game time. During the Winter it looked as if he were lost to the Senators forever, and so today the capital folks got a huge thrill just out of seeing him there.

He was there, too. Take it from the Yanks, he was there. He let the New York aliens down with seven hits and one run, struck out four and still seemed to be working under wraps. There is yet many a good ball game up the sleeve of the Big Train, the Kansas cyclone, whose fast ball used to be hard and not seen.

Shocker Driven to Cover.

Urban Shocker, who beat the Senators in the New York opening, lasted four and a fraction innings under the capital gunfire this afternoon. At the time of departure he had been nicked for five runs and the Yanks possessed exactly none. Ray Francis, miserably supported, batted for five more runs in his short stay and this brought Young Henry Johnson, the 19-year-old Floridian marvel, to the mound at the start of the seventh.

Master Henry struck out three in two innings and was a vast improvement over his predecessors. If Miller Huggins had only thought of him earlier he may, might or could have been saved.

The fun continued when Rice singled to centre, scoring Leibold and sending Harris to third. Shocker, however, recovered his bearings and got out of trouble without further run scoring. Goslin popped to Ward, Rice was out stealing and Bluege flied to Combs.

More climbing out of bottomless pits for Shocker in the second. Peck walked and Ruel bunted safely, Shocker sitting down suddenly after getting the ball. Peck scored on Johnson's hit to centre, but the excitement ended right there, the next three expiring rapidly and painlessly.

Goslin and Judge Triple.

Goslin knocked the ball against the left field fence to open the third and Judge slapped the pill against the right field wall immediately afterward. This pair of triples accounted for one run and a man on third, but Shocker again settled down in miraculous style.

After Bluege had beat out a hit to Dugan and Peck had flied to Scott, Ruel lined a bid for a hit to Long Robert Meusel charged over and made a snappy gloved hand catch, then tossed to Shanks. Judge wandered loosely from third and was exterminated at the plate.

In the fifth Rice's single, Goslin's double and Bluege's hit brought Southpaw Francis dashing to the Yankee's rescue. Southpaw Francis was afflicted with a sudden rash of wildness in the sixth. He walked McNeely, Rice and Judge and hit Harris. These, mixed in with a sacrifice fly and a two bagger by the ancient Peckinpaugh, added four tallies to the juicy Washington totals.

The sixth saw the lone Yankee run. Combs led off with a single to Judge and made second safely on the latter's wild chuck to first. Meusel flung a double to left, scoring Combs, but Pennig, Pipp and Shanks were unproductive. This was about as near as the Yanks got to a man-sized rally.

PHILLIES TRIUMPH OVER ROBINS, 8-7

TIERNEY DRIVES OUT HOMER

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—The Phillies played their first game of the season on their home lot this afternoon and defeated the Robins by a score of 8 to 7. The contest was a free-hitting affair, the Robins making seventeen safe blows off four members of Arthur Fletcher's pitching staff and the Phillies collecting twelve safeties off Burleigh Grimes, who pitched his first game of the new campaign. The Robins made four errors in the field, two of which were contributed by Grimes, and they played an important part in his defeat.

In the early frames the Phillies did not have any trouble scoring off the Robins' high-salaried moist-ball pitcher. They picked up one run in each of the first four frames, and in the fifth sent two men over the plate. In the seventh three extra-base hits produced what proved to be the winning tallies.

Harold Carlson started for the Phillies and went along well until the eighth, when the visitors became dangerous and threatened to overcome their opponents' early advantage. Carlson was chased off the slab in the eighth, and Knight, Hubbell and Betts followed him into the contest.

Cotton Tierney started a rally in the eighth, when he led off by hitting into the left field bleachers for a home run. Taylor was retired, but Grimes renewed the rally with a single. High forced Grimes, and a double by Mitchell scored High. Wheat singled and Mitchell crossed the plate. Knight was then brought in from the bullpen and retired the side without further trouble.

However, after Johnston led off in the ninth with a single, Hubbell went to the rescue of Knight. Two infield outs put Johnston on third, whence he scored on a single by Grimes, the pitcher's fourth hit. High continued the attack with a double, and then Betts took Hubbell's place. Tom Griffith batted for Mitchell and was passed, filling the bases. It was up to Wheat to deliver the hit needed to prolong the contest, but the best he could do was raise a fly which Harper pulled down in left field.

Jack Fournier was eligible to play this afternoon, and he was back at first base. Johnston, who had covered the bag while Fournier was in exile, was sent to right field in place of Dick Cox. Uncle Robbie also made another infield change. He benched Milton Stock because of light batting and Cotton Tierney was assigned to cover third base.

Ideal weather prevailed for the opening and a crowd of about 15,000 turned out for the game. Among the spectators were Mayor Kendrick, General Smedley D. Butler, Director of Public Safety, and John Heydler, President of the National League. Mayor Kendrick threw out the first ball.

RUTH MUST REBUILD.

Yankees' Star Batsman Will Be "100 Per Cent. Sound" After Rest.

When Babe Ruth comes out of the hospital, where he has been confined since returning from a disastrous training trip in the sunny South, he will be "100 per cent. sound again." This was the ultimatum yesterday of those who are in charge of the Babe's welfare at St. Vincent's Hospital. Loudly as the Babe may cry for freedom, he must wait for his release upon the return of health. A week to ten days more of inactivity is the estimate of those in attendance.

It was said yesterday that the Yankees' star batsman was improving steadily in every way and that what was most needed now was a complete rest and a rebuilding of his strength. Even though Ruth may be released from the hospital within ten days, it is improbable that he will be able to swing a bat again for two weeks. While the enforced idleness is building up the Babe's constitution and the diet which is still served him is tending to keep him down to playing weight, his great strength is also being sapped by lack of exercise, and he must build that part up himself after he gets out of the hospital.

Nurmi to Race Indians May 7.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., April 22.—Paavo Nurmi, the Finnish Flash, will match his skill against six picked runners of the Hopi and Zuni Indian tribes, noted for their speed and endurance, in Albuquerque on May 7, it was announced today. The race will be run over a distance of five miles on the University of New Mexico's quarter-mile cinder track.

433,000 Saw Major League Inaugurals This Year; 200,000 Present Yesterday

Approximately 200,000 persons attended the opening games played in eight cities of the two major leagues yesterday, thereby bringing the attendance total for all the major league inaugurals this year to close to a half million. The attendance figures for the eight opening games played a week ago reached 233,000, resulting in a grand total of 433,000 for the sixteen inaugural contests.

The two leagues drew almost on a par yesterday with the two New York clubs playing before the biggest crowds in each circuit. A crowd of 35,000 saw the Giants open at the Polo Grounds against the Braves, while the same number attended the first game in Washington between the Yanks and Senators. The day's total attendance in the American League was 102,000, while the National League mark reached 98,000.

Next to the two games in which the two New York clubs appeared those in Pittsburgh and Chicago drew the next largest attendance figures. A crowd of 30,000 saw the Pirates open their season at home against the Cubs, while a gathering of similar proportions welcomed Manager Eddie Collins and his White Sox to Chicago in their first league game of the year on their home grounds against the Detroit Tigers. In Cleveland 22,000, the largest crowd ever to attend an opening game on Dunn Field, were on hand to greet Tris Speaker's Indians who battled the St. Louis Browns as part of the inaugural ceremonies.

The attendance at each of the eight opening games played yesterday in the two major leagues follows:

CARROLL HALTS ELI RALLY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 22.—The Holy Cross nine defeated Yale here this afternoon by a score of 6 to 2, getting five runs in the opening inning and clinching the contest. Yale threatened just once, in the seventh, when Peloquin weakened, passed batters and filled the bags and gave the Ells a chance to make trouble. However, the game was saved for the Purple when their star, Carroll, replaced Peloquin at this juncture and proceeded to strike out Neale, Kline and Wear in rapid succession.

Holy Cross stepped out in the first inning and by the aid of four hits off Holabird and wild throws by Lindley and Kline sent five runs across the plate. Thereafter Holabird pitched effectively, allowing just one more tally, but the damage had been done. Yale missed a chance to score in the seventh, running and failed to take advantage of the eight passes issued by Peloquin.

A crowd of about 6,000 saw the contest.

GAME CLINCHED IN SIXTH

City College opposed New York University in a hard-fought contest at Lewisohn Stadium yesterday and the Violet nine came away with first honors. The score was 4 to 0. Torpe and Josephson, star twirlers of the two nines, faced each other on the mound and engaged in an interesting pitching duel. The Violet pitcher was supported in better fashion and this factor decided things in his favor.

Of the four runs scored by N. Y. U. one was earned. The others were helped across by four Lavender errors, two of which occured in the outfield. The winning team, on the other hand, gave Torpe excellent support and helped him extricate himself from several uncomfortable situations.

N. Y. U. chalked up the first run of the game in the third inning. With one out Stanley singled and stole second but was wiped off the paths when Ingram grounded to Slotkin, who threw to Morasco at third. Ingram stole second, and after Wolters had fouled out Davis dumped a bunt in front of the plate. Hadesblatt fielded the ball but threw past first and Ingram tallied. Davis was caught trying for third on the play.

The rest of the scoring of the game was done in the sixth inning. Wolters was presented with a base when Match dropped his easy fly. Davis singled, Francis was hit by a pitched ball and the bases were full. Lincoln singled, but the ball went through Centrefield Reiser's legs and all three runs scored. Further damage was prevented when Lincoln was caught trying to gain third on the play.

ARMY IS BEATEN BY LAFAYETTE, 11-2

WEST POINT, N. Y., April 22.—Lafayette slugged its way to victory over the Army today, 11 to 2. Except for the defeat by the Giants over a week ago, it was Army's first setback and came after five straight victories.

Roosma was hit hard throughout. For that matter all the Army pitchers were easy for the Easternians. Ernst, besides catching a fine game, hit a pair of homers, a double and a single in five trips to the plate. He also scored four runs. Halstead kept Army's hitters off until the eighth, when they got to him for three runs and four hits. It was a loosely fielded contest.

CLINTON H. S. WINS ON SINGER'S TRIPLE

CURTIS DEFEATS COMMERCE

Combines Hits With Errors to Tally 7 in Third Inning and Win, 10-5—Other School Results.

A triple by Singer in the last inning sent home the run that gave the De Witt Clinton High School baseball team a victory of 5 to 4 over Textile High School yesterday in their seven-inning game at Dyckman Oval. Textile, fighting an uphill battle from the start, had scored two runs in the sixth inning, which tied the score.

Spiro, Textile pitcher, though reached for nine hits, increased his season's strikeout record to forty-one, fanning seven. A home-run drive in the first inning by Goldstein was the most conspicuous part of the Textile offensive.

The score by innings:

De Witt Clinton	1	3	0	0	1	0	0	0	5	9	2

Batteries—Siegel, Rosner, Mazola and Singer; Spiro and Pitts, McQueen.

One inning proved enough to give the Curtis High School nine a victory yesterday over the High School of Commerce at the Catholic Protectory Oval. This was the third, in which Curtis combined hits with enough Commerce errors to register seven runs. The score was 10 to 5. A home-run drive by Henigan with two on in the sixth gave Commerce three runs.

Adelphi Academy's nine had an easy time defeating the Boys' H. S. representatives yesterday in a five-inning game at Adelphi Field, Brooklyn, by the score of 9 to 2. A cluster of five runs in the second inning gave Adelphi a commanding lead.

The score by innings:

Adelphi	1	5	0	0	3	9	8	1

Horace Mann School opened its season yesterday with a victory over the Dwight School nine in a seven-inning game played at Horace Mann Field. The score was 6 to 2. Heydt, the Horace Mann pitcher, struck out seven, while Callahan, who pitched part of the game for Dwight, fanned ten rivals.

JOY SMOKE VICTOR IN THE DELAWARE

Pays $29.10 for $2 Ticket and Wins by a Length From Ten Minutes at Havre de Grace.

THE BAT TAKES BAYVIEW

H. P. Whitney's Colt Beats Edisto by a Nose in Stretch Battle In Purse Event.

Special to The New York Times.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 22.—H. P. Whitney's Joy Smoke, a long shot that paid $29.10, carried off the money in the Delaware Handicap, which featured the card this afternoon. The four-year-old son of Sir Martin and Sweet Briar, in light under 104 pounds, ran the race in the fast time of 1:49 4-5, only two-fifths of a second slower than the track record for the distance. Williams had the mount and the winner earned $1,300 for his owner.

Only seven accepted the issue in the handicap, in which the Liljane Stable's speedy gelding Sunsini was made the public choice. The field was away well and in the first half mile Joy Smoke raced down Red Wingfield. He drew away entering the stretch, but Williams had to ride to maintain his advantage and bring the gelding home a length in front of the Glen Riddle Farm's Ten Minutes.

Ten Minutes followed the leaders on the inside in the early running. He was forced back into last place turning out of the backstretch, moved up steadily when clear and was wearing the winner down at the end. Sunsini was blocked rounding the first turn, rallied steadily until entering the stretch, where he weakened. The others were not dangerous. The fractional times of the race were as follows: 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 4-5, 1:36 3-5, 1:42 4-5.

Four Derby eligibles that are not likely to go to the post in the Kentucky classic next month were among the nine which ran for the Bayview Purse, a six-furlong dash restricted to the three-year-olds. One of them was the winner, Harry Payne Whitney's The Bat coming under the wire to take the money by a nose from the Seagram Stable's Edisto, the winner was the second choice, paying $7.10.

LONDON, April 22 (Associated Press).—From observing the participants at Ranelagh today one got the idea that the female of the golf species is becoming more mannish than the male. Many of the competitors wore their hair almost as short as boys and they played hatless. Their golf jackets are being cut more and more like men's coats, while golf skirts seem to be shrinking day by day.

MISS COLLETT PLAYS IN ENGLAND TODAY

LONDON, April 22 (Associated Press).—Miss Glenna Collett, former American golf champion, here to make a try for Britain's highest golfing honors, will make her début in British competitive play tomorrow at the fashionable Ranelagh Club. She will take part in an invitation medal play tournament for which the most prominent British women golfers are entered.

The meeting began today with eighteen holes of medal play, but there will be separate prizes for the best cards turned in tomorrow. Miss Collett, who got her feet back on land only last Monday on arriving from America, decided not to compete today. Instead she played a practice game round with a friend elsewhere.

The Ranelagh course is only 4,158 yards long and dead level most of the way, with no rough worthy of the name. It is not considered much of a test even for mediocre players, but the course is on the ground of the Ranelagh Club, one of the wealthiest and most fashionable in England, where golf is a mere side line for society people, who pay more attention to polo, racquets, dancing and seeing and being seen. Its Spring golf meeting for women is an old-established feature on the social calendar and all the best feminine golfers of the land gladly accept invitations to take part in it.

The scratch score of the Ranelagh course is only 87. Miss Joyce Wethered did it in a medal play without playing her best, and a lesser known player, Miss E. Gaultey, turned in a card of 71. Ten of the eighteen holes measure less than 250 yards and are therefore reached from the tee by the longest women drivers. Among other woman stars with whom Miss Collett will have an opportunity to compare cards tomorrow will be Miss Cecil Leitch, her sister, Edith, and Miss Doris Chambers.

If the weather continues as it has since Miss Collett's arrival she should soon be acclimatized, for both yesterday and today the sky was almost cloudless and the sun shone brightly. Some of the entrants wore silk blouses instead of the heavy woolens with which golfers usually protect themselves against the rigors of England's Spring and Summer.

GREEK BACHELOR WINS THE CITY-SUBURBAN

Captures Epsom Classic at Odds of 25 to 1—Parth, Sansovino and Tapin Also Ran.

EPSOM, England, April 22 (Associated Press).—Greek Bachelor, by Bachelor's Double, out of Mitylene, won the City and Suburban Handicap, feature of today's Epsom program. Mademoiselle M. was second and D'Orsay third. Eighteen ran. A. K. Macomber's Parth and the Derby winner Sansovino were in the list of also rans.

Mademoiselle M. took the lead at the start, followed by Condover, Greek Bachelor, D'Orsay and Tapin, the last named, winner of the Lincolnshire, getting a poor start. In the final sprint Greek Bachelor challenged and took the lead just before he crossed the line. The winner is owned by S. Wootton.

Greek Bachelor won by a half length, with a length and a half between Mademoiselle M. and D'Orsay. Tapin, the favorite, ran fourth. The betting was: Greek Bachelor, 25 to 1 against; Mademoiselle M., 50 to 1, and D'Orsay, 10 to 1 against.

SENIORS' GOLF DATES SET.

Title Tourney Will Be Played at Apawamis Sept. 15-18.

Fronts present appearances the United States Seniors' Golf Association will hold its annual tournament over a four-day period which will not conflict with any other golf event. The date set for the 1925 championship of this remarkable organization is Sept. 15-18 and the course that of the Apawamis Club at Rye. Owing to the rapid growth of the association within recent years it has been necessary to divide the field into halves, one-half playing over the first two days and the other half over the last two. The winner is the player who returns the low gross score for the thirty-six holes of play.

AMBER CREST WINS AT BROOKLYN SHOW

BREAK O' DAY IS SECOND

Amber Crest returned to the scene of his former conquests last night and gained additional prestige in the thirty-third annual horse show of the Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club at Prospect Park Plaza. The beautiful chestnut gelding, belonging to Mortimer B. Fuller of Scranton, Pa., captured the first important cup in the fixture when he took the President's Trophy, offered by Thomas L. Leeming for saddle horses, docked or undocked.

Not in years have show followers looked upon a more beautiful specimen of horse flesh than this gelding, which made its bow before the Brooklyn show two years ago, creating something of a sensation as he swept through class after class. Last year Amber Crest repeated his success and won the President's Trophy, so that his victory last night was a repetition of last year's success, which was even greater than that of 1923.

Another large crowd, almost the equal in size of the first night gathering, which filled the riding club to capacity, attended the judging last night. It is safe to say that a large number of spectators were attracted by the initial appearance of Amber Crest and also by the fact that the President's Trophy was to be awarded. Among the entries in the class was George C. Crouch's bronze King, which had some success in the National Horse Show last year and was expected to furnish Amber Crest with plenty of opposition.

Another contender was Break o' Day, formerly Rin-Tin-Tin, the seven-year-old bay gelding belonging to Mrs. Vincent S. Mulford of Montclair, N. J. Break o' Day took second award, while Bronze King had to be content with third prize. The victory of Amber Crest was a popular one, as he was to be expected. Brooklyn horse lovers have come to look upon the handsome gelding almost as their own.

The conditions of the class required the horses to be shown right and left lead on canter; to back freely and stand quietly, the rider to mount and dismount. Judgment was to be passed upon their quality, manners, paces and conformation. The gaits required were walk, trot and canter. The size of the horse was not considered by the judges in making their award.

Amber Crest went through his paces in pretty fashion, responding so quickly at almost to anticipate the guiding hand of his rider. In quality, manners and conformation he had no equal in the ring.

The awards:

Class 67, Jumpers (best performance over jumps at 4 feet 6 inches)—Won by Daly Farm's gr. g. Ballymacshane; S. C. Pirie's blk. g. Black Dixon, second; Michael J. Devaney's br. g. Sandy, third. 369th Field Artillery's b. h. Chaser, fourth.

CANNEFAX TAKES TWO.

Keeps Cue League Lead by Beating Hall, 50-47 and 50-41.

Robert L. Cannefax, world's three-cushion champion, continued to hold the lead in the National Championship Three-Cushion League yesterday when he won the first two games of his series with Allen Hall of Chicago at the Strand Academy. Both contests were close and in each Cannefax won in forty-eight innings. The score of the afternoon game was 50 to 47 and in the evening Cannefax won at 50 to 41.

Holland Plans Erection of "Olympic City" To Replace Stadium for Games in 1928

AMSTERDAM, April 22.—The committee which is planning the Olympic Games for 1928 is already hard at work here in a house placed at its disposal by the municipality. It is arranging to erect the necessary buildings on the grounds of the Nederlandsepark Sports Company, where the "Olympic City" will arise. The present stadium in the sports ground will be replaced by a more suitable structure. While supplementary stadia will be added.

As soon as the elections are over a Government bill will be submitted to Parliament providing for a subsidy of 1,000,000 florins which, with another 1,000,000 provided by Amsterdam, will be used in equal proportions on construction work and organization of the games. A national subscription will also be opened to obtain further funds. Should the Government fail by any chance not be passed the committee will ask the government for its support in the organization of a lottery to obtain the necessary funds. Baron Schimmelpenninck van der Oye van Hoevelaken has been elected President in succession to Baron van Tuyll van Serooskerken. The new President pledges himself to do everything in his power to insure the 1928 Olympic Games being held here.

The defeat of Yale's intercollegiate champion water polo team and a last moment victory by Joseph Farley in the New York A. C. title swim at 500 yards were features of the monthly water carnival in the 75-foot pool of the Mercury Swim organization last night. The score in the water polo game was 36 to 14.

The 500-yard club championship proved a stirring contest. Oberman Ross, national long-distance title holder, led comfortably until the last lap. Then Farley came along with a great spring and just nipped him at the line, winning in 6:36 2-5. Henry Giebel was third.

A sealed handicap swim at 100 yards free drew a great entry and required a dozen heats. All contenders started from scratch, were timed individually, then their allowances deducted. Harold Florence of the Boys' Club returned the fastest performance, 0:58, he failed to place in the awards. Hall Cushman of the Zinnoth S. S., recent of 15 seconds, won the event with a swim in 1:02 2-5.

The summaries:

500-Yard Swim (N. Y. A. C. championship)—Won by Joseph Farley; Clarence Ross, second; Henry Giebel, third. Time—6:36 2-5.

75-Yard Medley Swim (N. Y. A. C. Juniors)—won by Joseph Ruddy Jr.; Frank Dolan, second; Hugo Ricca, third. Time—0:53 7-10. 220-Yard Swim (N. Y. A. C. Juniors)—Won by Raymond Ruddy; Edward Dolan, second; no third. Time—0:38 4-5.

25-Yard Swim (N. Y. A. C. midget)—Won by Donald Grady; Robert Stewart, second; Lawrence Norton, third. Time—0:17 1-5.

100-Yard Swim (seated handicap)—Won by Hall Cushman; Joseph Farley, second; Max Vogt, Boys' Club (15 seconds), second; John Sprague, Holy Name A. C. (12 seconds), third. Time—1:02 4-5.

TIGER CREW MAKE-UP IS STILL IN DOUBT

PRINCETON, N. J., April 22 (Associated Press).—After a month of outdoor practice the make-up of the Princeton varsity crew is still in doubt. Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, director of rowing, and his assistant, Charles Logg, have been working with three crews, but the results of races held during the past two weeks have completely upset the seatings of the Orange and Black eights and further contests will be necessary before the coaches decide definitely who will row in the varsity boat on May 2, when the Navy will be opposed on Lake Carnegie.

The season started with fair prospects. The Orange boat, the name applied to the first varsity, was made up of the same oarsmen who showed well last Fall and it seemed that the personnel of the first crew was fairly certain. However, an injury to Joel Heimrath altered the combination and from then on shifts were frequent, although usually confined to one or two positions in the boat.

Practice races were inaugurated two weeks ago, and in the first brush of the season over the full course the Orange boat was badly beaten by the Black crew, which had just been promoted from the third varsity. The first three crews remained here last week during the Easter recess and another race was held, with the Black eight again victorious.

As a result the Black crew was advanced to first varsity, except for four men, who were retained from the old Orange boat. Platz and Smith were promoted to the first shell after a meteoric rise in a week from the third boat, while Aitken, freshman stroke last year, set the pace for the first crew. The present Black boat is composed of Williams, formerly at No. 2 in the varsity shell; two men from the old Black eight and five men from the former third crew. Forrest and Magee have been dropped from the first to the third boat, while Deemer, Thorne and McConihe a week ago were seated in the second boat.

Orange—Bow, Captain Dyer, 2, Platz; 3, Hall; 4, Van Gytenbeek; 5, Clark; 6, Smith; 7, Goodman; stroke, Aitken; coxswain, Flynn.

Black—Bow, Lentz, 2, Brewer; 3, Colting; 4, Stillman; 5, Cooke; 6, Van Horne; 7, Williams; stroke, Buffum; coxswain, Cook.

Third—Bow, Street, 2, Ballantine, 3, Deemer; 4, McConihe; 5, Forrest; 6, Magee; 7, Metcalfe; stroke, Thorne; coxswain, Kennedy.

Columbia's varsity tennis team defeated the University of Pennsylvania by a score of 5 to 1 yesterday afternoon in the first college home match of the season at the New York Tennis Club's courts. The Blue and White won three of the four singles and took both doubles. Captain Jerry Lang and Richard Marshall showed the best form. They won their matches in straight sets, allowing their opponents to break through for only one game in each set. Lang defeated Coburn, and Marshall was the winner over Reeves in the doubles. Lang and Marshall were pitted against their singles rivals, the Columbia combination triumphed in straight sets by scores of 6-2, 6-2.

SINGLES.

Lang, Columbia, defeated Coburn, Penn, 6—1, 6—1; Marshall, Columbia, defeated Reeves, Penn, 6—2, 6—4; Gain, Columbia, defeated Ellis, Penn, 6—1, 6—3; Stone, Penn, defeated Case, Columbia, 9—7, 6—2.

DOUBLES.

Lang and Marshall, Columbia, defeated Reeves and Coburn, Penn, 6—2, 6—2; Case and Gain, Columbia, defeated Stone and Ellis, Penn, 6—4, 6—4.

BERNSTEIN IS WINNER.

Gets Decision Over Tony Palmer—Harmon Stops Jack Palmer.

Jack Bernstein, Yonkers lightweight, returned to the ring at the New Manhattan S. C. last night and before a capacity crowd carried off the decision over Tony Palmer of the East Side, in their ten-round bout which was the final number of a card featured by three ten-round bouts. Bernstein outclassed his rival in every department and won by a clean margin. Through the last four rounds the Yonkers lad battered his rival all over the ring in a furious offensive. Bernstein weighed 132 pounds and Palmer 136.

Willie Harmon, East Side welterweight championship challenger, added Jack Palmer of Philadelphia to his list of vanquished rivals in another feature scheduled for ten rounds. After battering his rival severely about the face and body through the first round, Harmon crashed over a terrific right in the second session and Palmer was counted out by Referee Jack O'Sullivan in 1 minute and 15 seconds after the second session began.

A GOVERNOR UNAFRAID.

In signing the bill to make an end of Mayor HYLAN'S pet project of a combined freight and passenger tunnel to Staten Island, Governor SMITH has dashed to the ground many prophecies. Some said that he would manage to dodge responsibility by taking refuge in a doubt concerning the constitutionality of the bill as it passed the Legislature. Others wise in their own conceit that they knew all about the politics of the business had been saying that the Governor would never dare to antagonize the Mayor so openly, what with a municipal campaign coming on and the question of Governor SMITH'S leadership of the Democratic Party in New York so directly involved. But the result shows that the Governor put all these matters aside. He patiently heard the advocates and the opponents of the bill, collected all the material bearing upon the question before him, studied it conscientiously and then made up his own mind what was the right thing to do. Nor did he act without being ready to give conclusive reasons for his decision.

Such was his conception of his official duty. All the talk about the dangerous political consequences, about the folly of risking a breach with the Mayor, and facing a challenge to his own leadership, he evidently regarded as having nothing to do with the case. Whatever else may be said about Governor SMITH, no one can accuse him of a lack of directness and of courage. And even those who disagree with his action on the Tunnel bill will confess, with Hosea Biglow, that they "du like a man, thet ain't afeared."

IMPERILED AGRICULTURE.

It is with a sentence that should stir the nation that ex-Governor LOWDEN began his address last night: "Our agriculture is decaying and we seem unable to grasp the fact." Since 1920 the farmer would have been better off as a farmhand. No longer are farmers tearing down barns to build bigger; new barns and fences and farmhouses are rare. Abandoned farms are found now in nearly every State as a quarter of a century ago, before the coming of the Summer residents, they were found in New England solely or chiefly. The colleges and universities are crowded, but the agricultural schools are dwindling in attendance. It is a depressing picture, and despite all the optimistic interviews of financiers, encouraging magazine articles and ingenious index numbers to the contrary, Governor LOWDEN insists, it is a true one. Before there can be constructive improvement there must be a recognition and brave facing of the serious situation. It is not only "serious"; the ablest farm economists agree that it is almost "desperate."

This is due, in their estimate, to the great disparity between the prices of the things that the farmer has to sell and of those that he has to buy. Sheer necessity, growth of population and its greater demands, will bring about some adjustment in a long period of time; but under such a laissez-faire attitude there will be disastrous consequences, perilous to the people as a whole. The problem is stated concretely in the Governor's own experience as a farmer out in Northern Illinois:

> Now, I produce both corn and milk upon my farm. I feed the larger part of my corn in the form of silage to my cows. I sell it, therefore, in the form of milk. I receive considerably less for it than I did a year ago. And so these glowing figures of the increased value of the corn crop, over which the financial writers of the great metropolitan dailies gloat, do not comfort me much. I am indeed puzzled to know what to do. I have been taught that to produce sixty bushels of corn to the acre is a finer achievement than to produce forty-five. I like to see the milk pail brimming full with sweet, pure milk. But when I see forty-five bushels of corn worth more than sixty bushels of corn, and when I see the milk pail but two-thirds full worth more than the brimming pail of another year, I become confused and hardly know what to do.

He cites like experiences of others with other crops and concludes that something is wrong with our methods of marketing when the aggregate money value of a larger crop of a prime necessity is smaller than the value of the smaller crop.

What can be done to lessen the disparity referred to and hasten an adjustment before the worst has come? Mr. LOWDEN'S answer is that agriculture must conform to the practices found necessary to the success of other great industries. Organize! Not that farmers are to adopt a corporate form of organization and operate farms through corporate management. It would be a menace to our social structure if farmers were "to surrender their individualism in this way." But organize for the marketing of products "at a price which will enable them to live and go on producing." Cooperative marketing is not an experiment either abroad or at home. Some associations have failed, but the mortality is no greater than among business organizations, and the prospect is that such associations, benefiting by their experience, will "occupy the entire field."

This conscious constructive effort is, to this experienced and distinguished farmer who knows also the ways of industry and business and the concerns of a commonwealth as well, the only way out of the present depressing state of agriculture. It is the only way of achieving not only a "balanced agriculture," but also a balanced national prosperity. For in the last resort the prosperity and happiness of the country at large rest upon the shoulders of the farmer, as the earth did, in the ancient myth, upon the shoulders of Atlas. But the relationship spoken of is no myth, as also, according to former Governor LOWDEN, the desperate state of the farmer is not.

HOPE THROUGH THE LEAGUE.

In the hurly-burly attending the coming into power of a new Ministry in France little attention was given to its declarations concerning foreign policy. Premier PAINLEVÉ outlined this in general terms, but it remained for the new Foreign Minister, M. BRIAND, to make the thing precise. He declared that the policy which he intended to pursue could be summed up in these words: "The League of Nations taking into its charge security and peace based on disarmament." This implies a real continuity in French foreign policy. BRIAND is consistent with himself, as he was when head of the Government, and he is also in agreement with the course pursued by HERRIOT. The latter even accepted the Geneva Protocol on behalf of France. About this, M. BRIAND said nothing. The reason is plain, since the protocol, by its own terms, will have ceased to be in existence when the Assembly of the League meets in the Autumn. It specifically provided that if the necessary number of ratifications had not been received by that time it could not come into effect. That situation has been brought about by the refusal of the British Government to accept the protocol as it stood. But this does not mean that there may not be efforts at Geneva to recast it so as to bring it into a more satisfactory form, particularly in the matter of the sanctions to be applied against a nation found to be an aggressor.

On the same day with the announcement by M. BRIAND, the British Ambassador to the United States made an address to the English Speaking Union in which he expressed sentiments of a similar tenor. Sir ESME HOWARD also believes that the chief hope of lasting peace in Europe lies in the League of Nations, and the agencies which may be made use of under its direction or in full accord with it. He specifies the various security agreements now under discussion as containing the largest immediate promise. Such treaties would not in the least be in contravention of the League Covenant. They would be pacts of non-aggression and of mutual defense against an aggressor nation. The objects thus sought being wholly in harmony with the ends aimed at by the League of Nations, they should not only be permitted by the League but actually encouraged by it. The great goal of disarmament, after security has been established, lies at the end of the road by the side of which the League of Nations stands as a sign-post.

ARCHITECTURAL PLANS.

Visitors at the Exposition of Architecture and the Allied Arts may be reminded of POE'S companion pictures of the grandiose Domain of Arnheim and the miniature perfection of Landor's Cottage. The nineteenth century contrast is now outdone. Over against the "regional" plans for the future of the great cities of Europe and the Americas in which Arnheim's romantic fastness would be a vanishing detail stands the "Small House Exhibit" of little homes ranging downward to the suburban bungalow. There are wainscoted rooms in which the least detail dates from a single decade of the sixteenth century, and there are "improvements" so newfangled as to justify the publicity man's challenge: "You think your home is modern, but you'll be surprised at the Grand Central Palace."

It is the regional plans that chiefly challenge attention—and battle it. The future of London and Manchester, of Paris, Rio Janeiro and the City of Mexico, is delineated in blotches of color which a marginal key explains, but only to the eye that is already familiar with local topography. It is plain, however, that cities will no longer be permitted to sprawl over the landscape. Railway systems and industrial areas are to have a coordinated development together with the residential districts. There are to be broad arteries for facilitating traffic and outlying parks and parkways. Residents of Greater New York will find airplane photographs pieced together so accurate and distinct that each observer can find his own street and number—and at the same time gain a new sense of his relation to the city as a whole. One plan shows the marginal boulevard around Manhattan of which many have dreamed for so long. There is a drawing of what City Hall Park will look like when the Court House and the Postoffice have been done away with and a new approach fashioned for Brooklyn Bridge. The cupoled belfry of City Hall nestles at the foot of the soaring Municipal Building, itself similarly crowned, and each gains by the contrast as it does by the freer perspective. In spite of great obstacles, many still love this city, but only those who study the plans for its re-formation can really know it.

Yet it is the small houses that come nearest home to the multitude. One is hung over the edge of a cliff, like an eyrie, with no front yard and garden save the spreading valley below. Another, on its half-acre plot, is sunk in the depths of an impenetrable forest. But most of them, in our traditional manner, have front porches overlooking the sidewalk, clipped lawns and no unneighborly barriers except low hedges or boundary trees. And, as if this were not sufficiently sociable, each neighborhood has its community centre. Among the visitors half a dozen languages are spoken, for the occasion has attracted city planners and architects from the leading countries of both hemispheres. But the purpose of the exhibition will have been served if we discover just what we think of ourselves.

A FRENCH INVASION.

At last the invasion of England by the French, so much dreaded in the time of NAPOLEON I, and productive of such amusing tremors at one period of the reign of NAPOLEON III, has come. French dressmakers take their models to London. They exhibit them in cafés and dance clubs. They comfort their clients with cocktails. They bring them to the right tempo with jazz. They show them frocks that are a vision and a desire and send them home on approval. In case of sale, they fit and make alterations in them there. And pot in cafés and cabarets only—parents of most evils—are these alien artists found. Some are sheltered in hotels. Worst of all, "society ladies" ask them to their houses; and some of these offenders, as the Secretary of the London Employers' Association writes, "are the wives of our leading public men," and while the husband is professing "his concern about unemployment" from the political platform his wife "is fostering foreign trade at the expense of our own employers and workers."

This is a serious charge, and letters from "British Dressmaker" and employers are pouring in on the press. Will not the Government, more or less platonically devoted to protection, protect the British dressmaking industry from these marauders? Shall work be taken from the British workers, who, through collective bargaining of their unions, get reasonable wages and conditions of employment, payment for overtime and holidays, and given to underpaid Parisians, executing the orders so easily obtained in London? The British employers make no objection to a French firm which has an establishment in London and pays rates and taxes as a British firm would; but this business of getting orders, to be filled abroad, by means of temporary foreign exhibitors, ensconced in hotels, cafés, houses of "distinguished hostesses" and free of "overhead" and taxes, must be stopped.

What would happen to an English dressmaker who tried to take gowns into France? She would have to pay a whale of a duty. It is likely enough that she would see "a very large portion of her collection turned out onto some dirty bench at the Customs and ruined." Apparently this is more than a teapot tempest, for the Inland Revenue officials are resolved to collect from the invading foreign dressmaking firms income tax on their English business; but that would deal with only one part of a situation that includes rents, wages, collective bargaining, unemployment, "work for the British worker" and "business for the British employer." As usual, woman is the cause of all this woe. Surely there must be enough British dressmakers doing business under French names in London to supply "French gowns" for British women; but Paris is full of English tailors, and it is vain to resist the magic of foreign names, though they so often cover natives.

If it be said that France, famed in all great arts, is, or was, in dressmaking supreme, at least the conservative London ladies should remember their principles. Besides, there has lately been a "symposium" in Paris on "chic." The weightiest, if not the majority, opinion seems to hold that the clothes don't make the wearer "chic." The wearer makes the clothes and the whole appearance and personality "chic."

SPRING POLITICS IN CHINA.

Dr. SUN YAT-SEN was overtaken by death while he was participating in the reunion conference at Peking, where he divided honors with Marshal FENG and CHANG TSO-LIN. When FENG, the "Christian General," deserted his Commander-in-Chief, WU PEI-FU, last year in most unchristianlike fashion and made himself master of Peking, his ostensible reason was that the country was tired of fighting and that the restoration of Chinese unity must be brought about by conference. On the face of things the process is making headway. The preliminary conference has now been dissolved after summoning an elective citizens' conference to draft a new Constitution for China in cooperation with a commission to be appointed by the Peking Government.

The outlook for a truly representative constituent assembly is not of the brightest, according to our Peking correspondent. The separate provinces are under the control of the Military Governors, and the provincial delegates will in all probability represent the Tuchuns. They will have to work with a central commission appointed by Marshal FENG or whoever may happen to be in control of the capital at the moment. Our correspondent bluntly describes the constitutional problem as of no practical importance whatever. "The only issue before the country today is who of the militarists is to be the top dog." From other sources it is reported that preparations for the usual Spring war are under way, but no one can as yet predict what this season's fashion will be in the way of military alliances. Among the probabilities is a combination between the two ancient enemies, CHANG TSO-LIN and WU PEI-FU, against Marshal FENG. The last named has been requisitioning railway material and automobiles, and the dissolution of the reunion conference may turn out to be the signal for the reentry of the armies into the field.

A casus belli is never lacking. Just as the war between CHANG and WU began last year when the two took opposite sides in the fight between the Governors of Chekiang and Kiangsu, there is now an opportunity in the interior Province of Honan. A characteristic picture of China is supplied in the following summary of the Honan situation:

> General HU, the lieutenant of the "Christian General" FENG, administered a severe defeat to General KAN, who refused to obey the Peking Government's order to move out of Honan, where he found good pickings, and to General LIU, the Military Governor of Shensi, who had gone to help KAN. The Civil Governor of Shensi will not allow the defeated forces to re-enter Shensi.

This is obviously a reproduction of the medieval Europe of the feudal barons, with the "Republic of China" in a more helpless position than used to be that of the monarch against his arrogant vassals. It is an ironic comment on the new nationalism in China, with its jealousy of "foreign" domination and its growing feeling against Christian influences as part of the foreign "menace." Medieval Europe gradually emerged out of chaos through the establishment of the monarchy as "top dog" against the feudal barons. Chinese unity must apparently be vindicated through the emergence of a great military leader able to bring the provincial Generals to heel. If that military leader should at the same time be a friend to republican ideas, as WU PEI-FU was believed to be, the course of political evolution in China may be hastened.

EXAMINING IMMIGRANTS ABROAD.

With the theory expounded by Secretary DAVIS that provision should be made for examining and weeding out immigrants abroad all must be in accord. On the face of it there is no better way to avoid subjecting prospective immigrants to the hardships of a voyage across the ocean only to face possible deportation. But it presupposes a large increase in the staff of the American Consulates and would necessitate recruiting a large force of medical and other inspectors able and willing to live in foreign countries. This system, properly carried out, would be much more expensive than the present one of concentrating medical and other examinations at Ellis Island and other points of debarkation, and would offer more opportunities for favoritism. Furthermore, the supervision of this work would present much greater difficulties owing to decentralization.

Aside from the inconveniences of the present system to potential immigrants, it has been claimed that it places an undue responsibility on the steamship companies. They bear the brunt of the examining costs, for under the law they are charged with the expense of returning to Europe any one who is deported for not measuring up to the health requirements. As a matter of fact, the steamship companies relieve the Government of much detailed work in connection with the data demanded of all aliens coming to this country. Although the companies perform this work in order to comply with the law and in order to avoid penalties, much of it should, in theory, fall upon the Government.

The essential thing is to do everything possible to humanize the administration of the immigration law. The new measure shows many improvements over previous legislation. But it will undoubtedly need revision of technical details as experience reveals cases in which it has obviously failed to carry out the intent of the framers. The separation of members of families is still possible under certain unforeseen contingencies, but this, as well as the number of deportations for failure to pass the necessary tests, is less of a problem now than before.

In addressing the Daughters of the American Revolution on Monday President COOLIDGE took occasion to reaffirm his belief in the necessity for the immigration restriction policy. Like Secretary DAVIS, however, he has always been concerned about improving the administration of the law. The changes which the Secretary of Labor advocates are far-reaching, necessitating close cooperation between various departments of the Government. Already the burden imposed on the Consuls by the immigration visa requirements has greatly added to the labors of that branch of the foreign service. If adequate establishments for the examination of applicants are also to be maintained—as in theory should certainly be done—the staffs of Government representatives abroad will be large and costly. This is particularly true in those countries sending annually large quotas to the United States.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Fine Plan if It Is Well Executed.

While the idea of a school for policemen is not new, there nevertheless is something of novelty in the plans for such a school now announced by Commissioner ENRIGHT. He is going to combine the several agencies for the instruction of recruits in their duties, but in addition there is to be a systematic effort to give the older men on the force added knowledge of what to do and how to do it.

This undertaking, one can be sure, will be viewed askance by the men on the force who think they already possess all there is of police wisdom, and they will talk—when sure not to be overheard by their superior officers, and especially by the Commissioner—exactly as have veterans in many trades and professions when it first was proposed to teach in schools what they had acquired through experience in "doing it."

In days not yet forgotten even doctors and lawyers talked that way, denying, or at any rate doubting, the possibility of gaining practical skill otherwise than as they had done it. But technical and vocational schools have multiplied steadily in recent years, and though the graduates of some of them have a good deal of silent antagonism to encounter when they begin work among those otherwise trained, yet it now is fairly well recognized by all with open minds that something of almost anything can be more quickly, if not better, learned in schools than out of them. The school is a short cut to a point a considerable distance along the road where experience was once the guide, and theory, if sound, does help practice.

The success of the new police school will depend on many things—chiefly, of course, on the kind of teachers or professors it gets, and good ones will not be so easy to find. It is a hopeful sign that Commissioner ENRIGHT admits that valuable help toward police efficiency may be obtained from persons who never did any police work—psychologists, for instance—and one notices gladly and not for the first time that he does not share the Mayor's often expressed contempt for experts.

His Hopes Will Be Disappointed.

Possibly Mayor HYLAN expects too much from his new "Director of the Bureau of Publicity for the City Administration." The title is longer than those worn by other seekers for free newspaper space, but Mr. JENKINS will be grouped with all the other members of his large tribe by the city editors, and the "copy" he offers them will be scanned with considerably more dubious eyes than would have been the same facts brought in through the regular journalistic channels.

Invariably the "press agent" is suspected of having an "ulterior purpose"—of having at least two such purposes, one of them being that of proving his worth to his employer by getting the desired publicity. Never, therefore, is the judgment of the press agent as to the value of his offering taken for anything except what it is, and if the Mayor thinks that his Mr. JENKINS has any "influence" with the papers—that he is going to have printed in them anything that they would not have secured for themselves and printed anyway—then he is going to be terribly disappointed.

One notices that Mr. JENKINS has had and therefore presumably will have in the future, other tasks to perform than those customarily allotted to the press agent. He now is credited with being the "co-author" with the Mayor of that remarkable book, "Seven Years of Progress," because of which, as the papers failed to reprint it in full, the Mayor has been confirmed in his queer belief that the papers are conducting against him a conspiracy of silence. This admission of co-authorship was rather dangerous, for it will embolden the cynical to say about the Mayor's speeches and letters that there are "ghosts" behind the scenes who turn out such things to order.

They Hurried, but Were Too Late.

Another tragedy of the sea that resembles at all closely the sinking with all on board of the Japanese steamer Raifuku Maru cannot be remembered. Many a ship has sailed from port to meet her fate in some such way, with no more history for her or her company than at first "Missing" and then "Given up as lost." In this case, however, the closing scene was watched in cruel helplessness by the men on the Homeric and other vessels who had answered the call for help as seafarers always do and had arrived only in time to see the doomed vessel go down.

The waves were running too high to permit the launching of small boats, but it seems strange that there was nothing on the Raifuku Maru that would have kept at least a few of her crew afloat for the short time required to throw them a line and draw them to safety. Presumably further information will clear up this mystery.

Evidently it was the shifting of the cargo, combined with a storm of exceptional severity, that caused the disaster. Grain in bulk is recognized as a dangerous lading, even when stowed with the utmost care and skill. The Japanese are good sailors, and all that can be said in this case is that the precautions they took were not sufficient to resist such a tossing as their ship received when the North Atlantic was at its terrible worst.

The dispatches sent out by the Japanese wireless operator show that the desperateness of the situation had been realized for hours, and it is characteristic of Japanese manners that he found time to put the word "please" in one of his appeals for haste. The radio for once failed to bring about a rescue, though it did send all the ships in a wide expanse of ocean hurrying in response to the call for help.

The Times in Wells College.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On one occasion I heard an English scholar of international reputation, an old friend of Lafcadio Hearn's by the way, compare the progress of man to that of a cart on a bad road. It is pulled out of a rut with great difficulty and falls into another at the first opportunity. The simile often recurs to me when I am reading THE NEW YORK TIMES, for I feel the constant pull upward. Not being a newspaper man, I do not know how great your temptation may be to increase circulation by catering to those that are content to remain in the rut, but whatever be its forces, let me implore you to resist even unto death, or at least until it is unquestionably proved that the American people are not yet sufficiently educated to appreciate what you are doing.

When I first subscribed to THE NEW YORK TIMES twenty-five years ago it was one of the good American dailies, with, as I then thought, the best foreign service of any of them. Since then it has become one of the good daily newspapers of the world, keeping pace, as was right, with the change in America's participation in foreign affairs, and with the unification of the whole world, occasioned by our modern discoveries and inventions.

It is a matter of pride, as well as of solid satisfaction, that we have in our midst one of the really few good dailies to which we may turn with confidence, knowing that we will find the news of the world well sifted by a staff of men widely and variously informed in regard to the history of our civilization, interested in all that pertains to the higher interests of humanity and expressing themselves in graceful and correct English prose.

We are also very proud that we have in the Library of Wells College a complete file of THE NEW YORK TIMES from its very first number until yesterday, lacking only two numbers which we have long sought in vain.

The Renaissance in Architecture.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

John M. Lyle's letter in today's Times on the Renaissance in Architecture in America was most interesting and timely, and brought out facts so dominant in the present trend in architecture that they can hardly escape the eye of even the layman.

Surely, America was architecturally dead for a period of nearly one hundred years, and it is only in the last twenty-five years that any definite efforts have been made to escape the conventional "Schrecklichkeit" which we see in such relics as brownstone high-stoop houses in the cities, and so-called "palatial residences" built in the country. There are also many examples of this lack of artistic sense in our old public buildings, as, for instance, in the Park Row Postoffice Building and several other public monstrosities.

It is inconceivable that with at least three thousand years of architectural development to draw from the American architect should have lapsed in imagination and creative ability. It is quite true that the Centennial Exhibition brought forth a burst of glory involving conventional Greek orders coupled with impossible red brick construction.

There are still examples of some of the Centennial "State cottages" in existence. Of course, it must be remembered that these were built in the age of stuffed canary birds under glass domes, "Rogers groups" and "leg-of-mutton sleeves," so that naturally the effects of an era of bad taste should find expression in wooden gimcracks and gingerbread on buildings.

We Americans should be profoundly grateful to the new school of architects who are now making possible "The City Beautiful." It is a pleasure to know that their patient study and constructive efforts are slowly, but surely, bearing fruit.

"Kinder Gorming."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"A Reader," whose letter you printed in yesterday's TIMES, under the title of "Kinder Gorming" may be interested to know that Wright's Provincial Dictionary gives to gorming the definition "awkward" as used in Leicestershire, England. "Kinder" is, of course, "kind of" or "somewhat."

CHARLES E. STRATTON.

THE RIVER—NIGHT AND MORNING.

She is a siren in the dusk
That flows about her like a gown
Of rich, mysterious stuff,
Leaving her swaying shoulders smooth
And bare—whereon the tuneful lights
Lie soft . . .
The night is caught within her eyes:
The half-born night all heavy with allure;
Through her dark hair the wind moves
Like the breath of many eyes
Hers is the night. The cities on her shores
Look on amused, immune:
They know her ways—her charming of the night
Until it lies a garment subtly worn
Where'er she moves,
Its beauty (strong, defiant on a moor)
A dimpled girl the morning shakes of her,
As free of wiles and glances as a boy;
Even a smudgy brow where crusty smoke lies low
The morning gives;
And chubby hands that pull her eyelids back
Are weighted barges shuffling at her shore.
While gray, unsoothing whistles call her sharp
Till she awakes, a pout between her cheeks,
Rebellion in her eyes . . .
For she will be a lady—after dark.

MARION LOCKWOOD.

PROTEST POSTAL RATES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The charge that the Post Office Department by its interpretation of the new parcel post rates is adopting a course which may go far to undermine that branch of the postal service was made today by the American Farm Bureau Federation through its Washington representative, E. B. Reid. The bureau has been told also that large mail order houses are planning to remove their catalogues from the mails, and contends that such a development would further react against the parcel post system.

In general, the charge made by the bureau is that the main burden in the changes in the postal rates is being laid upon the farming communities, either directly or indirectly. The bureau calls attention to the recent ruling which requires all parcel post shipments of baby chicks to bear a twenty-five cent special handling charge, contending that this has been ordered "without legal basis," and that it opens up the way for arbitrary increases of 50 to 100 per cent. in the carrying charges on a considerable percentage of the parcel post business.

"In fact, when taken in conjunction with other recent developments," said Mr. Reid, "there is reason to fear that the entire parcel post business is being undermined. Shippers of baby chicks are the first group directly hit by this new ruling. But this seems likely to be only a starter.

"The new postal rate law says that whenever in addition to the postage as provided there shall be affixed to any parcel of mail matter of the fourth class postage of the value of 25 cents with the words 'special handling' written or printed upon the wrapper, such parcel shall receive the same expeditious handling, transportation and delivery accorded to mail matter of the first class.

"The law makes it plain that this charge is to be optional with the shipper. The Post Office Department says that since special handling is given baby chick shipments all shipments must bear the extra twenty-five-cent charge. Many local shippers do not require that service, and object to this big arbitrary increase in rates.

"If extra charges are justified, the department should proceed through the means provided by the law, namely, by application to the Interstate Commerce Commission for increases to cover actual costs," says Mr. Reid.

"While this special charge has as yet been made obligatory only on shipments of baby chicks, yet in effect it is now demanded on all sorts of perishable articles. Formerly such articles as cut flowers, plants, fresh meats, soft fruits, ice cream, &c., were sent forward on the first train; now, unless bearing the special handling stamps, they will be held up a day in most cases, or until full carloads of parcel post can be made up.

"Should this charge principle be extended to include 'fragile' articles, as is being considered, this would be equivalent to a huge increase in rates on a large percentage of the parcel post business."

HEADS PEKING DIPLOMATS.

Soviet Envoy Is Made Dean of Diplomatic Corps.

PEKING, April 22 (Associated Press). The Diplomatic Corps today recognized the right of L. M. Karakhan, the Russian Ambassador, to be the Dean of the Corps by reason of his ambassadorial rank. All others here are rated as Ministers.

The Soviet Ambassador was named dean with one reservation: that he may represent the Diplomatic Corps as dean only at ceremonial affairs.

Due to the peculiar grouping of powers represented at Peking on matters of international interest, and the added fact that four of the eight so-called protocol powers have not recognized Russia, the question of the custody of the Diplomatic Corps' archives, always held by the dean, presents difficulties which remain unsolved. For the present the archives remain in custody of the Italian Minister, Cerruti, who has been senior diplomat since the departure of the retiring United States Minister, Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman.

It was intimated today that the corps will resolve itself into definite groups, based upon business interests, each group to be headed by the senior diplomat of the respective powers concerned.

NAVY UNIT QUITS HONDURAS.

Cruiser Denver Remains Off Shore After Withdrawing Landing Party.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The landing detachment of 165 officers and men from the light cruiser Denver was withdrawn yesterday from Ceiba, Honduras, following the arrival of Honduran Government troops to reinforce the units at the port.

The Denver will remain off shore at Ceiba to offer protection to Americans and other foreigners in the event they are again placed in danger by revolutionary activities.

Dispatches from Consul Waller at Ceiba today reported a battle on the outskirts of Ceiba Monday night in which the Honduran Federal troops defeated revolutionists. A message from Ceiba yesterday said it was thought the revolutionists near Ceiba would be completely dispersed in a short time.

Captain Jeffers of the Denver sent the detachment ashore Monday morning, at the urgent request of President Barrhona of Honduras and local authorities at Ceiba, to protect foreign lives and property.

D. A. R. DISCUSSES ECONOMY

Retrenchment May Interfere With $2,000,000 Home Plans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The question of building a $2,000,000 auditorium for the Daughters of the American Revolution, which the society voted a year ago to consider at the present session, was deferred today until Friday, when the Treasurer, Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, will be ready to answer questions regarding the estimated cost.

That 50 per cent. of the voting delegates favor the expansion of its quarters was indicated yesterday, but the spirit of retrenchment which appeared in today's meeting suggests that the plans offered by the committee appointed a year ago may not be accepted.

An amendment to the by-laws was carried today to increase the dues of the members at large from $2 to $3.

NEW BRITISH FOOD CONTROL

Plan to Create Department With Wide Powers Is Reported.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 22.—The Morning Post says that drastic proposals are likely to be made by the Royal Commission on Food Prices in its interim report on bread and meat.

Among other things, it said that a great new Department of State was contemplated, with a highly paid Chairman and including many representatives of other Government departments. It is understood the new department would have wider powers to examine shopkeepers' books, supervise shopkeepers' methods of trade and even would become interested financially in the import trade.

MACHADO PRAISES AMERICAN JUSTICE

SUGGESTS TREATY REVISION

The recent action of the United States in relinquishing in favor of Cuba the American claim on the Isle of Pines was hailed as a fresh evidence of this country's good faith and justice toward Cuba in a speech by General Gerardo Machado, President-elect of Cuba, at a dinner tendered to him by a large body of representative New Yorkers at the Hotel Astor last night. General Machado suggested a revision of the treaty with Cuba, saying that it now slightly favored the United States.

The ancient friendship between the United States and the island to the south, their military cooperation in 1906, Cuba's declaration of war on Germany within twenty-four hours of the American declaration and other high points in their joint history were celebrated by speakers who included Martin W. Littleton, Dr. John H. Finley, Dwight W. Morrow and Major Gen. Charles W. Summerall. The speeches were broadcast by WOR and were relayed south by telephone and radio to be broadcast throughout Cuba from a Havana station.

President-elect Machado said in passing that the general belief that Cuba could increase its sugar crop indefinitely was incorrect.

Sugar Output at Maximum.

"Our country has attained," he said, "almost its maximum production of this crop. Not all the lands in Cuba are suitable for the cultivation of sugar cane with sufficient economic returns. Moreover, among the lands under cultivation many of them are in a state of exhaustion for the further growing of cane, and it will be necessary to devote them to other crops. American producers, therefore, cannot fear an increase, which is impossible or well-nigh so, of Cuba's output, and this fact will contribute to bring about a better interpenetration of interests on all sides."

The President-elect said in part:

"The recent action of the great American nation in recognizing, by the vote of an overwhelming majority of its Senate, Cuba's sovereignty over the Isle of Pines is a new and evident proof of its purpose to deal justly with its sister nations of this continent, both great and small, in order to maintain good-will among them and that the incomparable benefits of peace may be more and more fruitful. I avail myself of the fresh opportunity which is offered me on this occasion to reiterate our gratitude to the American people.

"I wish to say, gentlemen, before anything else, that my visit to the United States is not simply for pleasure or rest. It has two principal objects: to personally greet, as I have done, the great American people in the person of your honorable President, Mr. Calvin Coolidge, and to become acquainted, as exactly as I can, with the possibilities for intensifying, even more than they are at present, the interchange of our products and the reciprocal advantages to be derived therefrom.

"Two countries, whose commerce with each other amounted to $711,441,000 in 1919 and $1,310,245,000 in 1920, should feel satisfied at the development of some of their common efforts. At the same time, they should be zealous guardians of the results which have been obtained, and should endeavor to find the best means of maintaining, for their reciprocal benefit, this brilliant commercial position.

"It might be argued that the immense value of the merchandise exchanged in those years was a result of the economic consequences of the World War, but it is nevertheless an indisputable fact that since 1902, the year of the establishment of the Republic of Cuba, the volume of its total commerce with the United States has been constantly on the increase and has grown from a little more than $74,000,000 at that time to $500,000,000 in 1924. You will pardon me, I know, if I say that the facts herein set forth would seem to show that the treaty while advantageous for both peoples has been more so for the United States than for Cuba. This fact has never produced on the part of the people of Cuba the slightest complaint, but it seems opportune to suggest the idea of arriving at a harmonious adjustment insuring to both parties now reciprocal advantages, if it were possible to attain them through a friendly agreement.

Plans Great Improvements.

"The Government of Cuba under my Administration contemplates the carrying out of great material improvements. The largest sums possible will be devoted to extending the means of communication, and particularly public roads. The building of the central highway will be undertaken, and thereby the principal centres of population and production will be placed in ready intercommunication, but this will be done without subjecting the credit of the nation to unjustified and unnecessarily onerous obligations.

"The payment of the interests and sinking funds of the public debt will be considered preferred and sacred obligations, which there will be no failure to meet at any time or for any reason, sustained as they are by the credit and good faith of the nation.

"I am going to close, gentlemen, by offering a respectful homage to the memory of the Americans who gave up their lives to assist Cuba in achieving its independence; to the great President, William McKinley; to one of the great heroes of our history, who is likewise one of yours, Theodore Roosevelt, the great statesman, brave and gallant, the New Yorker, who has best represented the high qualities of your race. We also remember in affection and gratitude Generals Brooke and Wood, who left behind them, as capable and upright administrators, an example difficult to follow and impossible to surpass; and Alexis Frye, for whom the teaching profession of Cuba conserves a devotion and a veneration which are imperishable; and still many others who served Cuba and who also honored their own country as the illustrious Ambassador of the United States in Cuba, his Excellency Major Gen. Enoch H. Crowder. At the same time I close with a toast for the increasing prosperity of this nation, which is evidenced in such an extraordinary degree in this marvelous city, and for the highest development of the spirit of democracy, of liberty and of justice, on the basis of which this nation was founded and has been sustained by an uninterrupted succession of great men."

Differences Inevitable, He Says.

R. B. STRASSBURGERS GIVE DANCE AT RITZ

ELABORATE FLORAL DISPLAY

Dinner Hosts Before Event Include Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Robertson for Muriel Vanderbilt and Fiance.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Beaver Strassburger, formerly of this city and now living at Normandy Farm, Gwynedd Valley, Pa., gave a large dance last night in the main ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton, which was one of the events of the late season. Mr. and Mrs. Strassburger passed the Winter in Palm Beach, as had also many of their guests at last night. Mrs. Strassburger is the former Miss May M. Bourne, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Bourne of this city and Indian Neck Hall, Oakdale, L. I. The approaches to the ballroom were decorated with palms, roses, hydrangeas, forsythia and other Spring flowers, which also formed the embellishment of the ballroom.

Supper tables were placed around the sides of the ballroom, each one having a centre piece of orchids. Three orchestras played for dancing which was continuous.

Several dinners were given in advance of the dance, one of them by Mr. and Mrs. T. Markoe Robertson at their home, 45 East Sixty-second Street, for Miss Muriel Vanderbilt and her fiancé, Frederic Cameron Church Jr. Others giving dinners were Mrs. Raymond T. Baker, Mrs. Turnbull Oelrichs, Mr. and Mrs. Anson McCook Beard and Mr. and Mrs. Hal de Saint Phalle.

There were several hundred guests for the dance, many coming from out of town. Among them were the Marquis and Marquise Melchoir de Polignac, Viscount Jacques de Sibour, Count de Sibour, Mr. and Mrs. Dewees Dilworth, Mrs. Harmanus B. Duryea, Mrs. John R. Drexel Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Paulding Fosdick, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Frelinghuysen, James A. Gerard, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Gerry, Robert Goelet, Mrs. Robert Grosvenor, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore P. GEORGE WESLEY WILSON.

Prominent Civic Worker in Brooklyn Dies in His 76th Year.

George Wesley Wilson, a former Republican Assemblyman from Brooklyn and prominent in the borough's civic affairs, died on Tuesday night at his home, 43d East Twenty-eighth Street, Brooklyn. He was in his seventy-sixth year. Mr. Wilson was born in Brooklyn and attended Waukegan Academy, Waukegan, Ill. He was elected to the Assembly from the old Fourteenth Assembly District in 1896 and served one term in the Legislature, which also included the Borough President Joseph A. Guider and the late Charles H. Ebbets.

Mr. Wilson introduced a bill providing for the building of the first section of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Science Museum and also originated the bill establishing the Brooklyn College of Pharmacy. Mr. Wilson was one of the leaders in the Jamaica Bay improvement project and also took a prominent part in the fight for a new rapid transit system for Brooklyn, which culminated in the adoption of the dual subway plan.

He was a member of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, the Vanderveer Taxpayers and Flatbush Taxpayers Associations, the New York State Waterways League, Midwood Council, R. A., the Masons and the Oddfellows. He is survived by his wife, Elizabeth Smallwood Wilson, whom he married in 1870, and four sons, Ralph, Steward S., Reuben, Deputy Attorney General of New York State, and Seth Low Wilson, former Assistant District Attorney. The funeral services will be held at the Vanderveer Park Methodist Episcopal Church, Glenwood Road and East Thirty-first Street, Brooklyn, this evening.

A. J. PROVOST DIES AT 91.

Veteran Lawyer Introduced Lincoln to New York Legislature in 1861.

Andrew J. Provost, one of the oldest lawyers in Brooklyn and former Assemblyman at Albany, died yesterday at his home, 403 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn. He was in his ninety-second year. Mr. Provost was born in this city and was a descendant of David Provost, who settled in Manhattan in 1624. He attended the Williston Seminary, and after studying law in the office of Theodore Jackson was admitted to the bar in 1856.

Mr. Provost was at one time active in Democratic political circles, and while a member of the New York Legislature he introduced Horace Greeley and also Abraham Lincoln when the latter came through Albany in 1861 on his way to the inauguration at the White House. Mr. Provost was at that time the youngest member of the committee which entertained Abraham Lincoln at Albany.

He was formerly for five years President of the Board of Education of Queens County. He was a member of the Long Island Historical Society, the Holland Society, the St. Nicholas Society, Altair Lodge, F. and A. M.; Morton Commandery, K. T., and a former Grand Commander of Cerneau Consistory. Mr. Provost is survived by a daughter, Mrs. J. Harris Balston, and two sons, Andrew J. and William D. Provost.

M. J. DEGNON DIES; BUILDER OF BRIDGES

BUILT PART OF SUBWAYS

Michael J. Degnon, prominent for many years as a builder of bridges, subways, railroads and terminals, died Tuesday evening in his home, 80 Beverly Road, Kew Gardens, Queens. Mr. Degnon was 67 years old.

He was born in Painesville, Ohio, but spent most of his early life in Cleveland and vicinity, where he received his education and entered the contracting business. After he had completed a large amount of contracting work in the Middle West he came to New York in 1897. His first commission here was that of erecting the Williamsburg Bridge, after which he built the Cape Cod Canal.

As President of the Degnon Contracting Company, the Degnon Realty and Terminal Improvement Company, the Degnon Terminal Railroad Corporation, the Roosevelt Jackson Avenue Land Corporation and a number of subsidiary concerns, he built a large part of the original Interborough subway, many sections of the later subways and the Belmont or Steinway tunnel. He also erected the elevated extension to the Bridge Plaza in Queens.

Mr. Degnon was one of the leading developers of Long Island City and Queens and was in a considerable measure responsible for having the B. M. T. tunnel built across the East River from Sixtieth Street, Manhattan, to Long Island City.

In addition to his many business attachments Mr. Degnon was prominently identified with a large number of organizations, including the Catholic Club, Manhattan Club, St. Patrick's Society of Queens, National Democratic Club, the Jamaica Board of Trade, Oakland Golf Club and the Chamber of Commerce of Queens. Of the latter organization he was also a director.

The contractor's last significant achievement was the reclamation of the meadow land lying between Corona and Flushing, over which the Corona Division of the Queensboro subway at the present time is being extended from Alburtis Avenue to Main Street, Flushing, L. I. A large part of this property, which extended to Jackson Avenue and Flushing Bay, was sold last year at public auction.

Throughout his life in New York Mr. Degnon had an unshaken faith in the development of the industrial section of Queens. This faith was shown in 1922 when he added an additional million square feet of ground to the Degnon Terminal in Long Island City, making it extend over an area of 8,000,000 square feet. This terminal, being centrally located and easily accessible, made it an important connecting link between the distributers and consumers of New York and provided the city with an industrial district less than eight minutes distant from Forty-second Street.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock in the Church of Our Lady Queen of Martyrs, Forest Hills. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery.

George F. Stump.

George F. Stump, assistant general freight agent of the Long Island Railroad, with which he had been connected since 1895, died yesterday morning in St. Vincent's Hospital, Manhattan. Mr. Stump had just returned to New York on a steamer from the South, where he had spent four months recuperating from a long illness. He was in his forty-seventh year. Mr. Stump was born in this city and during his long connection with the Long Island Railroad had served in various positions in the traffic department, being appointed assistant general freight agent in 1916. He was a member of the Traffic Club of New York, the Long Island Railroad Veteran Employes' Association and the Tarpon Club of Florida. He lived in Rockville Centre, L. I., and left a wife.

Charles John Smith.

Charles John Smith, Treasurer and director of the Commercial Pacific Cable Company, died yesterday from pneumonia at his home in Arlington, N. J. He was 60 years old. Prior to his employment with the cable company he was associated with the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company and the Commercial Cable Company for many years. He was born in Coventry, England, and came to this country when a young man.

HIRSHFIELD REPORT CONDEMNS WALLIS

Commissioner Asks That All but $25,000 Be Placed With a Responsible Committee.

In his report to the Mayor, filed yesterday after an investigation of the Department of Correction, which was carried on last Winter, Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield condemned as "indefensible and a flagrant abuse of authority" expenditures made by Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis of the Department of Correction from the prison inmates' commissary fund. Some of the expenditures criticized included the purchase of a clothes marking machine and ten radio receiving sets for the entertainment of the prisoners.

The Commissioner of Accounts also recommended that custody of all surplus in excess of the revolving fund of $25,000 necessary to carry on the business of the correctional institutions be transferred to a responsible committee.

"It is evident," the report declares, "that some disposition of the existing large surplus in the inmates' commissary fund must be made, and I submit that there are agencies in the city Government better equipped to handle this matter than any voluntary Board of Trustees appointed by Commissioner Wallis could do. There is, as stated before, the Department of Public Welfare, the Board of Child Welfare, the Mayor's Committee of Women, of which Mrs. Hearst is Chairman, and the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, all doing welfare work and alleviating the condition of the poor and needy, and all equipped for that work."

The report charges that the "original purpose of selling stores to the inmates at the lowest possible prices," has not been carried out by Commissioner Wallis; that the cash surplus "accrued far in excess of any legitimate requirement," and that the prisoners have been charged too much for their necessities. The fund surplus, he declares, has grown from $10,440.91 in 1917 to $148,195.61 in 1924. In view of this Commissioner Hirshfield recommended that the commissary price list "be at once revised."

The expenditures for which the Commissioner of Correction is criticized, made during 1923 and 1924, include a $3,000 salary paid to his "unofficial secretary," Charles C. Hughes, who was appointed on Oct. 1, 1924; machinery, vocational school equipment for prisoners, radio receiving sets, entertainment of prisoners and other facilities about the prisons.

Charges Are Urged.

"1. That the sum of $125,000 be placed in the hands of a committee appointed by the Mayor to administer this money in accordance with my aforestated suggestions.

"2. That the commissary price list be at once revised and hereafter from time to time, to the end that the returns shall coincide as nearly as possible with the necessary cost of operation.

"3. That all surplus in excess of the revolving fund of $25,000 necessary to carry on the business, shall be transferred to the committee recommended in Paragraph 1, and not be dissipated as this fund has been before."

Besides these recommendations, Commissioner Hirshfield said he believed the Department of Correction should "exert all efforts to manage the city's correctional institutions properly and stop criminals taking French leave whenever they choose."

"I believe the first thing Commissioner Wallis should do before going about making speeches and making impractical proposals," the report says, "is to reduce the prices of the merchandise the commissaries sell to the lowest possible figure, limiting the profits to the actual requirements of the commissary."

After paying all legitimate expenses of conducting the commissary, the report states, the net profit from the commissary fund for 1924 was $32,624.63, as compared with $27,166.27 in 1923. These two years during which Mr. Wallis has been in office were contrasted with the $16,654.85 profit in 1918 and $8,851.73 during five months in 1917. The list of profits, however, indicates that profits for 1921 reached $34,999.61, or more than $2,000 greater than in 1924.

Regarding the purchase of radio sets, the report says: "What practical use these radios will serve in punishing criminals and uplifting their morals none but a professional reformer and uplifter can tell. I cannot do so."

Commissioner Wallis Replies.

Commissioner Wallis said last night:

"The commissary fund of $150,000 which I found when I came into the Department administered by a board of trustees composed of the most representative citizens. They are professional and business men and welfare workers representing the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths. No committee that Mr. Hirshfield could name could even equal the board that administers this fund

"I have had this fund converted into New York City 4½ per cent. bonds, with instructions that the fund never should be touched during my administration, and that the interest be used for the welfare of prisoners and their families, but only upon the recommendation of their religious representatives on the board and with the unanimous approval of the trustees.

"This fund is audited monthly by paid certified accountants. In the last few months I have so enlarged the board that the very organizations that are suggested are now serving on it. The trustee of the fund is the cashier of one of the most representative banks in New York."

FIRE IN FIFTH AVENUE.

Sixty persons were driven to the street from the building once occupied by Delmonico's at Fifth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, and traffic at the avenue was delayed for fifteen minutes yesterday by a fire which started in an unexplained manner in a pile of rubbish in the hall on the first floor.

The persons in the building were in the Forest Hills Gardens real estate office on the first floor, the exhibition room of Marian Spore's "spiritualistic paintings" on the second floor and in a golf school on the third floor.

Crowds on the sidewalk made their exit and the work of the firemen difficult. Miss Spore refused to leave until she had covered her paintings, which might have been damaged by smoke, and by the time she had concluded her work the fire was extinguished.

STEAL SILK WORTH $20,000.

Robbers who entered the fourth floor of 28 West Thirty-eighth Street early yesterday, by ascending the fire escape and forcing a window from a coping a foot wide, stole $20,000 worth of silk from L. H. Bandeau & Co. The robbers are believed to have carried the goods down four flights of stairs to an automobile in which they drove away without being seen.

The robbery was discovered by one of the members of the firm at 8 A. M. The police found that a safe in the office of Jesse Newman on the same floor had been ripped open but nothing of value was stolen there.

Mrs. James L. Laidlaw Much Better.

The condition of Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, well-known political leader here, who is convalescing in Fifth Avenue Hospital from an operation for appendicitis, was very much improved according to a report from her bedside last night.

"Thee knows I love thee so much"

the little laddie said to his Quaker mother, whom he was asking for another cookie "like yesterday's."

His mother said to him:

"Benny, I fear thy love is only cupboard-love, when thee comes to tell me of it and get another cookie."

This is poor Reuben who says the same thing. If those who love us do so only for what is in our cupboards to give them, we are to be pitied and not envied.

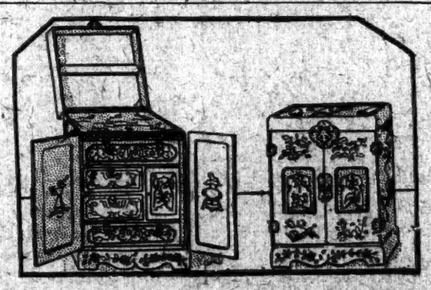
IN THE FAR EAST SHOP



A Pair of Black Lacquer Chests

From the Imperial Palace at Pekin

The Far East Shop has just received from China a pair of richly inlaid black lacquer jewel chests of the Chien Lung period, formerly belonging to the Imperial Summer Palace at Pekin. They are objects of most intricate and exquisite design and workmanship, and the pair would make a wedding gift of incomparable beauty—a loveliness one could not in a lifetime cease to delight in.

Both ends of each cabinet are inlaid with birds and flowering branches of pale rose mother-of-pearl. Even the back is sprigged with pearl blossoms and from the flowering tree on the top hangs an inlaid lantern of carved jade, over flower jars and other objects of vari-colored jade. Two pearl inlaid panels on the front are enclosed in frames of the most lovely turquoise-blue Ming cloisonne. And this is but half the story! For when the doors, with their delicately wrought clasps, are opened and the top lifted, another world of beauty is disclosed within. Each door on the inner side is inlaid with an ornament of carved wood, and each of the four drawers has a front panel of old blue and white porcelain, while the little cupboard is adorned with the Ming cloisonne. And on the inner top small fishes of iridescent pearl are swimming on the surface of polished lacquer.

The cabinets have three sets of locks to guard the precious things one may keep in them. And they themselves seem more like objects brought from fairyland than anything this sober world could have produced. $500 the pair.

FIX SURVEY TERMS FOR ST. LAWRENCE

PROJECT OF $300,000,000

Joint Board Will Report on Army Plan to Dig 25-Foot Channel Between Locks.

ONE BIG DAM SUGGESTED

Natural Water Levels Are Also to Be Considered in Inquiry Which Begins at Once.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Final agreement has been reached by the United States and Canada as to the proposed joint action for the improvement of the St. Lawrence River between Montreal and Lake Ontario, in order to provide access to the Great Lakes for maritime commerce and to develop water power in both countries.

The estimated expenditure would be $300,000,000. The outcome depends largely upon the report of the joint board of engineers. The report is due not later than April 30, 1926.

Secretary Kellogg today announced the successful conclusion of the diplomatic negotiations begun in 1921, following the recommendation of the International Joint Commission that the development of the St. Lawrence for navigation and for power be referred to a Joint Board of Engineers representing the two Governments. At the same time it became known that the joint board would begin its labors at once and probably would be ready to report before the next session of Congress ends.

The board has been directed to report upon the practicability of the plan presented in the report of an army board submitted on June 24, 1924, and to advise whether that plan provides to the best advantage, at this time and ultimately, for the development of the project. In this report it was estimated that a channel in the St. Lawrence River between locks, with a depth of twenty-five feet, would cost $250,000,000.

The joint board is requested to report what alternative schemes, if any, would be better adapted.

Among the alternative plans under consideration is one which involves the building of lateral canals at certain points along the St. Lawrence River in order that vessels may avoid rapids. Indications are that if the two Governments enter upon the improvement contemplated, they will build only one big power dam, as it is held that the productivity of the St. Lawrence in this regard is far beyond present demands.

Secretary Hoover, who is Chairman of the Executive Advisory Committee that will act with the American section of the Board of Engineers, expressed great satisfaction today over the matter. He expressed the hope that it would lead to actual work of construction, and directed attention to the fact that this investigation will parallel an inquiry by Congress as to the feasibility of a deep waterway from the Great Lakes to the Hudson River.

In the instructions to the board these questions are asked:

"Should the estimates of cost be revised, and if so, what are the revised estimates of cost, having regard to alternative schemes?

"In order to assist either Government to allocate the amounts chargeable to navigation and power, what would be the respective estimated costs for improving the river for navigation alone and for power alone?

"To what extent may water levels in the St. Lawrence River at and below Montreal, as well as the river and Lake levels generally, be affected by the execution of the project?

"To what extent and in what manner are the natural water levels in the St. Lawrence River and on the lakes affected by diversions authorized by license by either Canada or the United States, from or in the St. Lawrence River watershed?

"By what measures could the water levels or navigable depths affected by the diversions at various points on the lakes be restored and what would be the cost thereof?"

Paragraph seven says:

"Having regard of economy of construction and maintenance, expedition of construction and efficiency of operation—

"(A) Which of the works should be constructed under the technical supervision of an international board and what other works, if any, might advantageously be constructed under such supervision?

"(B) Which of the works should be maintained and operated by an international board and what other works, if any, might advantageously be so maintained and operated?"

Information is also sought as to what, if any, readjustments in the location of the international boundary are necessary.

The engineering work about to be undertaken on the St. Lawrence for both Governments will be in charge of a board of six members, three Americans and three Canadians. The American representatives are Brig. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, Assistant Chief of Army Engineers; Colonel William Kelly, Chief Engineer, Federal Power Commission, and Lieut. Col. G. F. Pillsbury, all of the Army Corps of Engineers. The Canadian members are Duncan W. McLachlan of the Department of Railways and Canals; Oliver P. Lefebvre, Chief Engineer of the Quebec Streams Commission, and Brig. Gen. Charles Hamilton Mitchell of Toronto.

Secretary Kellogg today made public a mass of diplomatic correspondence with Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador, acting for Canada, including the note of Secretary Kellogg on March 17, 1925. In it reference is made to the refusal of the United States to refer to the joint board questions relating to diversions of water for power at Niagara and the diversions from Lake Michigan for sanitation purposes at Chicago. The question of diversions at these points will come up for future consideration.

Closes Six More Pittsburgh Mines.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 22.—The Pittsburgh Coal Company today announced it had closed six of its big mines, the Dickson, Montour No. 9, the Black Diamond on the Monongahela River near Donora, the Channion near McDonald, the Moon Run and the Somers at Monessen. Only twelve of the company's fifty-four mines are left in operation. In a letter to employes T. M. Dodson, Vice President in charge of operation, stated the company could no longer afford to operate at a loss and that the mines would not be reopened until something was done by the men to help meet the competition of non union labor. The miners' union has refused to consider negotiations for a new wage scale at lower wages.

Pays Last of $200,000 Fine For Fraud on Ontario Bonds

TORONTO, April 22.—Aemilius Jarvis Sr., convicted of conspiracy to defraud the Province of Ontario in the sale of duty-free Provincial bonds, today paid to the registrar of the Supreme Court, through his counsel, the fine of $50,000 imposed on March 23 by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

The payment of the fine will release Jarvis from the jail farm, where he has been held since his conviction in the Assize Court last October. Jarvis paid $140,000 to the Province as restitution March 7.

Jarvis and Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer, were convicted of the conspiracy charge Oct. 24 last. Smith is now in Portsmouth Penitentiary doing a three-year sentence. Smith was fined $100,000 by the Supreme Court, but none of the amount has been paid.

ALLEN HITS RULING ON HIS LABOR COURT

Kansas Industrial Tribunal as Badly Injured as Can Be and Still Live, He Says.

FOR ST. LAWRENCE CANAL

Former Governor Calls New York Provincial in Plea at Kiwanis Luncheon Here.

The recent Supreme Court decision which stripped the Kansas Industrial Court of its powers to enforce compulsory arbitration between capital and labor was characterized as short-sighted and reactionary by former Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas, sponsor of the court, at a Kiwanis luncheon yesterday at the McAlpin.

"By that decision the Industrial Court of Kansas was as badly injured as it could possibly be and still live," declared the former Governor. "It leaves both the wrongs of the employer and of the laborer neglected, but the thing is, it has taken away from the laboring man the only weapon he had."

Mr. Allen scored newspapers in the East which had represented the Supreme Court's report as being a victory for liberalism. "Under it the workers who are picketing may be adjudged as in a conspiracy against the public and are punishable accordingly," he said. "Men who agree to stop work are punishable as being guilty of the same offense. Although it would permit another coal strike or another packing strike to be handled in the same way as prior to the decision, it has deprived the laboring man of his right to impartial adjudication of his grievances."

Speaking of the proposed St. Lawrence Canal, by means of which Great Lakes shipping would have direct access to the Atlantic Ocean, the Governor scored the attitude of New Yorkers.

"The provincialism and the greed of two cities, New York and Montreal, is all that is delaying this great undertaking," he said. "Montreal objects because she is the premier port for the marketing of the surplus food products of the Middle West. Bringing the Atlantic to Chicago, Detroit and Duluth will mean millions to those sections, but it would not mean so much for Montreal. On the other hand, it would profit New York immensely, for what is good for the 43,000,000 of people around the Great Lakes, Canadian and American, is good for New York, the metropolis.

"New York is forty years behind the time in transportational facilities. When you get a carload from the Middle West as far as Trenton, N. J., you have got it only half way to New York. A carload of wheat in Buffalo, moreover, is 600 miles nearer Europe than a carload of wheat in New York, for the St. Lawrence is on the way to Liverpool, while New York is out of the way."

The former Governor said that he would prove that the canal, which would entail the digging of thirty-three miles of channel along the St. Lawrence and the construction of six locks, requiring in all an estimated expenditure of $260,000,000, "would not cost the taxpayer a cent."

"By constructing these locks you are going to make available 1,400,000 horsepower through hydroelectric installation," he said. "This immense output will be available to industry at a rate much cheaper than any power now available. This would pay the overhead expense of operating the canal."

LAUTERBACH, LAWYER, PENNILESS AT DEATH

The estate of Ferdinand R. Minrath, who was surviving partner in the law firm of Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson after the death of Edward Lauterbach, was appraised yesterday at $484,083. The report shows that Lauterbach, who died March 4, 1923, a few weeks prior to the death of Mr. Minrath, was insolvent, and that his property was insufficient to pay the funeral and administration expenses. Mr. Lauterbach's connection with David Lamar, "the wolf of Wall Street," brought him the censure of the Appellate Division some years ago and injured his practice.

Mr. Minrath's estate included $194,142 in securities and $190,775 in mortgages and notes. His held a note for $1,500 made by Mr. Lauterbach in 1918 and also had a claim against his partner for a loan of $25,418 made in 1920, for which he had a lien against Mr. Lauterbach's interest in the firm. The total value of the firm was only $6,563, of which only half was applied on the loan.

Mr. Minrath gave the bulk of his estate to his widow and two grandchildren, and to his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Gertrude Minrath. His adopted son, Scott E. Minrath, received $1,000, and a similar amount went to a number of nephews and nieces, and also to the Hebrew Orphan Asylum and Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum.

Mr. Lauterbach was one of the best known lawyers in New York at one time, and specialized in railroad law. He was at one time Chairman of the New York County Republican Committee, and was trustee of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum for thirty-nine years. He and Mr. Minrath had been in partnership for a long period. He died at the age of 78 and was survived by three daughters. Because of the condition of his estate no inheritance tax proceedings were ever filed.

To Honor Inventor of Telegraph.

Memorial services to commemorate the 134th anniversary of the birth of Professor Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph, will be held under the auspices of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Morse statue on the Mall, Central Park. Similar services will be held by the union throughout the United States and Canada. Police Commissioner Enright, a former telegrapher, will deliver the eulogy. Two great-grandsons of the inventor, Richard W. Morse and Bleecker Morse, will participate in the ceremony.

COERCED INTO PLOT, PANTANO INSISTS

PROVES AN ALERT WITNESS

Rests His Hope to Avoid Death Chair on Plea That Threats Caused Him to Aid Bandits.

Anthony J. Pantano, former bank clerk, 24 years old, spent all of yesterday on the witness stand at his third trial in the Kings County Supreme Court in presenting a defense that he hopes will prevent his return to the death house at Sing Sing. This defense, which he repeated over and over again, was to the effect that he had been forced involuntarily into the plot of the bandits, three of whom are in the death house at Sing Sing, to rob the West End Bank, which resulted in the slaying of its two messengers.

Pantano's experience in his two former trials, together with the knowledge he has gained by reading the testimony, appeared to have given him a complete grasp of his case, or at least sufficient aid for him to combat the vital points in the theory of the prosecution that he had instigated the robbery. His counsel, John E. Rustin, had no frequent cause for interposing in his behalf during a long cross-examination by Joseph V. Gallagher, an Assistant District Attorney.

The defense objected, however, when Gallagher asked Pantano if he had passed the homes of the murdered messengers, prior to the robbery and shooting, when going to his daily employment at the West End Bank. The court allowed the question, and Pantano said he sometimes took that route.

"You could have prevented the robbery, if you had wanted to do so," suggested the prosecutor. "It didn't occur to you to save the lives of these men?" Pantano declared he had been threatened with death if he mentioned the prospective robbery, but that he had not thought of any danger to the messengers.

Questioned by Justice Harry E. Lewis about the information he had given the bandits, Pantano said that they had threatened him he had told them of the transfer of money and gave a description of the two messengers, William Barlow and William H. McLaughlin. He also informed the bandits that the messengers would go to the elevated station at New Utrecht Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, Brooklyn.

Pantano said he afterward tried to frustrate the robbery by giving a false clue to the bandits about a mythical payroll to be sent out from the bank. Pantano admitted to Mr. Gallagher that he had never been threatened by Joseph or Nicholas Desmond; that they had merely repeated to him the threats of the other bandits.

When Justice Lewis adjourned court last night it was expected that the case would go to the jury this afternoon.

TAXICAB LICENSING RESUMED BY POLICE

Licensing of new taxicabs by the police was resumed at noon yesterday after a lapse that has lasted since April 11. The work was done at the old Bureau of Licenses garage on the East Twenty-fifth Street pier. Some of the bureau staff was active in the inspection and there were in addition patrolmen from various precinct station houses whom the police wish to "break in" on the work so that they may take it up when the licensing is done under the new system.

More than one hundred new cars were licensed yesterday. There was little congestion, since the new system of licensing had not spread generally and many owners did not know the deadlock had been broken. It is believed there may be crowding when the bureau opens today. The original intention of Deputy Commissioner Daly, in charge of police control of taxicabs, was to have the licensing done on the pier yesterday and today and start the system of licensing in police precincts tomorrow. The police are not sure yet whether they will be able to adhere to this plan or continue the work at East Twenty-fifth Street some time longer.

CROKER CHILDREN LOSE.

Florida Court Dismisses Creditor's Bill Against Mrs. Croker.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 22.—One of the numerous cases in which the estate of Richard Croker, late Tammany Hall chieftain, is involved, was disposed of in Federal Court here today.

A decision by Judge Rhydon M. Call, granted a motion to dismiss a creditor's bill in which the Croker children sought to enforce a judgment obtained in New York State courts as a lien on lands near West Palm Beach. Richard Croker Sr. and his wife agreed to sell the property to J. B. McDonald, who in turn entered into negotiations to dispose of the property to the Palm Beach Estates, a corporation.

The suit was brought by Ethel Croker White, Howard Croker, Richard Croker Jr. and other creditors against Bula Croker, individually and as executrix under the last will and testament of Richard Croker, and against J. B. McDonald and the Palm Beach Estates.

The New York judgment was obtained by the children shortly after the death of their father against a temporary administrator of the estate. The sum involved was said to be $200,000.

S. H. VENABLE IS DEPOSED.

Stone Mountain Monument Association Drops Him From Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 22.—Hollins N. Randolph was re-elected President of the Stone Mountain Monument Association today, and Samuel H. Venable, one of the four donors of Stone Mountain, was deposed from membership on the Executive Committee, the governing body.

Captain Walter Gordon Roper, retired naval officer, was appointed as successor to Mr. Venable. His wife, who is another of the four donors of the Stone Mountain scarp, recently issued a statement declaring she was heart and soul with the present management and was willing to give any additional space in the mountain if necessary for completion of the monument. By election of Mr. Roper the association has managed to split the family of the donors.

The meeting today was held under strict rules. No proxies were recognized. Membership rights of all present were rigidly scrutinized. A policeman in uniform was stationed at the door.

Mrs. A. McD. Wilson was elected Vice President in place of Mrs. T. T. Stevens, and Mrs. Helen Plane, who conceived the idea of the memorial, was named President Emeritus.

German Fire Chief a Visitor Here.

The Fire Chief of Freiburg, Germany, Edward Poppen, and Dr. Emil Schmidt, Councilman of that city, are at the Hotel McAlpin on a visit to the United States to inspect the fire departments of this country. They have arranged with Fire Chief John Kenlon to inspect the New York department next Monday.

Soviet Decree Lets Peasants Hire Hands; Drops 8-Hour Limit, Permits Child Labor

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, April 22.—In pursuance of its policy of attracting the peasantry to the Soviet régime, the Government passed today a decision permitting farmers to employ hired labor on their allotments. This is probably the greatest concession to the peasantry since the decree for the socialization of the land in 1917, which, simultaneously with the abolition of private land ownership, annulled the application of hired labor in agriculture.

According to the Soviet land laws, the whole land is considered State property and is distributed to the peasantry in proportion to their families and capacity for working it by their own means. The leasing of additional plots is also prohibited. Only the Soviet Communes possessing large areas were permitted to employ hired labor. The peasant farmers had the limited right to engage outsiders only temporarily, in emergency cases, especially during the harvest season.

Inasmuch as the redistribution of the land after the revolution left some groups of peasants deficient in their holdings and at the same time forbade the hiring of labor, unemployment continued to increase in the villages. This added to the general dissatisfaction of the peasants, who were unable to manage without permanent employment of hired labor, and at the same time had a disastrous effect upon the agricultural situation throughout the country.

The new ruling published today is regarded as a measure which will remove the conditions which have hindered the development of national agriculture in Soviet Russia and will regulate the relations between the middle class of peasantry and the so-called groups of poor peasants.

The decree permits farmers to hire labor all the year round. It makes provision for increasing the working day beyond eight hours, as decreed by the Soviet labor code, and allows the employment of children over twelve for light work. The number of agricultural workers is not limited, but contracts cannot exceed the period of twelve months and must be registered with village authorities.

Sickness insurance must be provided by employers and wages cannot be lower than the State minimum fixed by the Labor Commissariat for the respective districts.

Certain Orthodox Communists do not deny that this new measure is a radical departure from the fundamental positions proclaimed by the Communists immediately after gaining power. The modification of policy, however, is considered as absolutely necessary in the interest of national economy as well as for the attainment of unity with the peasantry.

SELDOW CONVICTED; FACES SANITY TEST

TEARS CONTINUE TO FLOW

Refuses to Meet Eyes of First Wife and Mrs. Woodson and Weeps at Not Seeing Mary.

Tears streamed from Jack Seldow's eyes late yesterday afternoon when a jury in General Sessions found him guilty of bigamy. They flowed when his lawyer, Bernard H. Sandler, in summing up, pictured him as a "poor fool" and again when Assistant District Attorney William R. Maloney described him as a knave.

But his crying ceased a few minutes later when Judge Cornelius F. Collins decreed that instead of a day being set for sentence, Seldow be confined for ten days in the psychopathic ward at Bellevue, so alienists might determine his mental condition.

A ray of hope seemed to lighten his grief. But when he admitted to the clerk of the court that he was an alien a presentiment of trouble clouded his features once more. He seemed to sense that a report by alienists that he was of unsound mind would mean deportation to his native Russia. When his trial began he admitted to friends that deportation would be greater punishment than any prison term.

As he turned to leave the Court for the Tombs his glance rested on Augusta Redenbach, the young woman whom he married in 1918, whose testimony was responsible chiefly for his conviction. He averted his eyes. They encountered Mrs. Ada B. Woodson, the dressmaker, of Washington, D. C., mother of Mary Woodson, the 18-year-old girl whom Seldow married in 1923. He turned his glance quickly, hunting for Mary.

Mary, although testifying against him, proclaimed her unbroken love for him. The girl was out in the corridor crying bitterly. Seldow did not see her, but missing her, out-matched her for tears.

Assistant District Attorney Maloney, following the verdict, which was reached in ten minutes, told the Court Seldow was believed to have two other wives besides Augusta and Mary. He showed Judge Collins some documents. The Court then ordered the sanity test.

ANITA STEWART ON STAND.

Denies She Agreed to Pay the Salary of Actress.

Anita Stewart, a motion picture actress, was on the witness stand in the City Court before Justice Joseph McKee and a jury yesterday as a defendant in a suit for $1,200 claimed by Louise Sydmeth, an actress, as salary for an engagement in a vaudeville act in which Miss Stewart was starred.

Miss Sydmeth had testified she was engaged for ten weeks at $125 a week, but that the act closed after a week and a half of playing and that she was paid but $50. She admitted she had no contract, but said Miss Stewart guaranteed her salary.

Miss Stewart in her testimony declared she had no financial interest in the act, which was called "Modes of the Moment," and that she had been engaged by John Patton Russell to star in it. She denied she had guaranteed any salary. The hearing will be continued at 10 o'clock this morning.

Bystander Sees Woman Kiss Child, Then Run Away With Escort.

A man and a woman abandoned a well-dressed 18-month-old girl shortly before midnight last night on the sidewalk at Fifth Avenue and Bergen Street, Brooklyn. The woman bent down and kissed the little girl before she and her companion ran to Third Street and disappeared, according to Frank Herrick of 415 Third Street.

The child started to cry, as she tried to follow the couple. Herrick summoned Policeman Schmidt, and the child was taken to the Grand Avenue Station and later to the Founding Ward of the Kings County Hospital. The child has light hair and blue eyes, and was dressed in a light blue woolen Teddy Bear suit, white stockings and black pumps. A general alarm was sent out for the couple by the police.

National Academy Elects Five.

The Council of the National Academy of Design announced last night the election of five members. They are John F. Carlson, Woodstock, N. Y., painter of landscapes; Eugene Speicher, Boston, a portrait painter; Edward McCartan, of 225 East Sixty-seventh Street, a sculptor; Jonas Lie of 58 West Fifty-seventh Street, landscape painter, and Leopold Seyffert of 222 West Fifty-ninth Street, a portrait painter.

Statement Again Chides City for Its Failure to Construct Other Lines.

The Board of Directors of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation has appropriated $200,000 for equipment to be used in extending the Fourth Avenue subway from Eighty-sixth to Ninety-fifth Street, Brooklyn, it was announced yesterday. The appropriation was made at this time to enable the company to let contracts for the various items of equipment needed so that the new line will be ready for operation as promptly as possible after the city completes the construction work.

It is expected that this line will be ready late this year if the present rate of progress on construction is maintained and the company is able to do its equipment work in time.

"The B. M. T. has already prepared contracts and received bids for the third-rail work and installation of power cables in the extension, and the directors yesterday authorized the letting of contracts for this work immediately," the statement said. "The other items of work included in the $200,000 appropriation are signal equipment, station lighting, station control, drainage and ventilating equipment and telephone cables.

"In appropriating funds to equip this extension the B. M. T. directors are complying with the terms of contract 4 with the City of New York, requiring the company to equip and operate any new rapid transit lines which the city constructs as extensions to the existing system. The B. M. T. in providing funds to equip and operate this extension notwithstanding the fact that the City of New York has not as yet fulfilled its original contract to construct the Nassau Street line and also has not completed the Fourteenth Street-Eastern line, and has not provided any shops in which to maintain and repair cars, of which the company has purchased 600 since 1913.

"The company has repeatedly stated its readiness to provide cars, track and line equipment for these improvements called for by the Contract as soon as the city completes its work. This is estimated to cost the company at least $15,000,000."

I. R. T. MARCH STATEMENT.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company's March statement, issued yesterday, shows a surplus of $118,507 after taxes, interest, reserves and Manhattan Elevated dividend rental. This compares with a surplus of $463,008 for the same month of last year. Gross revenues were $5,053,650, against $5,230,763 a year ago. The "excess maintenance" item showed an increase from $34,534 in March, 1924, to $159,767 last March.

For the nine months of the company's fiscal year gross was $51,811,225, against $43,220,346; balance after taxes, rentals, &c., $14,782,926, against $13,989,905; excess maintenance, $1,024,320, against $1,551,015; balance after fixed charges, $2,169,735, against $967,919, and deficit after Manhattan Elevated dividend rental and reserves to cover additional rental which may become payable to owners of Manhattan stock not assenting to the readjustment plan of 1922, $129,103, against a deficit of $832,081 in the same period of last year.

The Brooklyn City Railroad Company earned gross of $1,806,294 in March; against $1,029,413 a year ago, while net income was $146,681, against $187,796. Nine months gross was $8,756,524, against $9,103,211, and net income, $1,803,813, against $1,479,829.

I.R.T. GIVES PLATFORM DATA.

Contends Contract Does Not Demand Extension of Local Stations.

Additional exhibits outlining the financial history of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company were introduced by the city into the records of the Transit Commission's hearings on the question of lengthening local station platforms when the hearing was resumed for a brief period yesterday.

Briefs are to be filed by counsel for the Interborough, the Transit Commission and the city on May 7. Assistant Corporation Counsel M. Maldwin Fertig appeared for the city. The Interborough was represented by Arthur G. Peacock.

Upon motion of Mr. Fertig, Commissioner John F. O'Ryan ruled that attorneys may file reply briefs. Mr. Fertig said that since the Interborough contends that its 1913 contract with the city does not obligate it to lengthen platforms, the city should have an opportunity to reply to the company's objection on that score. It is probable that the presentation of briefs will be accompanied by oral argument, although arguments in the hearing proper have been concluded.

America's Timber Supply

With the approach of American Forest Week, fixed by President Coolidge from April 27 to May 3, a survey of the present timber supply and the outlook for the future is timely.. As far back as the days of the Pilgrim Fathers there has been talk of timber exhaustion, but now the foresters say exhaustion will never come.

ETHYL GAS OFFICIAL DENIES MONOPOLY

TELLS OF RESEARCHES

Declares Scientist Failed to Get Retainer to Make Investigation He Attacked.

Thomas Midgley Jr., Vice President and General Manager of the Ethyl Gas Corporation, issued a statement yesterday in reply to Dr. Yandell Henderson, Professor of Applied Physiology at Yale, who asserted in a speech on Saturday night that the use of leaded ethyl gasoline threatened to cause a large number of chronic lead poisoning cases among the general public.

Mr. Midgley admitted that the corporation had supplied part of the funds for the Bureau of Mines investigation, and added:

"If Dr. Henderson wished the public to draw the conclusion that, because a part of the cost of a scientific investigation is defrayed by an industry which is interested in it, the results are to be regarded with suspicion, he may wish to explain why it was that he himself unsuccessfully sought a retainer from the General Motors Corporation to make such an investigation. The General Motors Corporation preferred to entrust such an investigation to an arm of the Government than to a private investigator paid by it."

Explains Why He Answers.

In his general reply to Dr. Henderson, Mr. Midgley Jr. spoke as follows:

"The morning papers carry accounts of the speech of Dr. Yandell Henderson attacking the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, its product, stockholders, methods of doing business, and morals. The main topic of Dr. Henderson's speech is, or should have been, the consideration of the hazard to public health arising from the use of ethyl gasoline. If the statement had been confined to an expression of Dr. Henderson's opinion on this topic there would have been no occasion for any statement by the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, since Dr. Henderson's views on this point have already been widely promulgated by him. The Ethyl Gasoline Corporation desires, however, to make clear the facts concerning the other matters in connection with its business which were dealt with by Dr. Henderson, particularly the following:

"Dr. Henderson states that the purpose of the 'interests' behind the ethyl corporation is to monopolize the production of motor cars and the sale of motor fuel. The facts are as follows: The product of the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation is ethyl fluid, the chemical which when added to gasoline in the percentage of about one-tenth of one per cent. stops the detonation, or 'knock,' which is experienced to a considerable extent when operating automobile motors under conditions of hard service. The occurrence of this knock is the one important thing which has for a generation past prevented the satisfactory utilization of gasoline engines. The General Motors Corporation recognized this problem some seven or eight years ago and started research in its laboratories at Dayton, Ohio, to determine the cause of this knock and any possible means which might be used to correct it and thereby permit more efficient motors to be built.

Found Cause of Knock.

"The result of seven years of work along this line was the final discovery that the knock was caused by certain combustion characteristics of gasoline, which, as every one knows, is the only fuel which may be relied upon as a permanent and adequate source of supply for the automobile. It was further discovered that the addition of certain rare, and therefore almost unknown, chemicals to gasoline would prevent this knock.

"The result of seven years of work freely published, and have already been of immense benefit to the automobile industry in the better understanding of the problem of engine design and the production of more efficient engines and better motor fuels. The sole benefit which the General Motors Corporation received from the expenditure of this money was that it did control patents covering particular materials which could be added to gasoline to accomplish the desired result. It has, and can have, no control over the many more efficient types of motors which this new fuel will make possible. Indeed, such motors have been in use with special fuels for many years for racing, aeronautical and other purposes. No basic patents on such motors are or can be held by any company."

GOV. TRUMBULL SLIGHTED.

But Lexington Committee Says He Did Not Reply to Invitation.

BOSTON, April 22.—Judge Prescott Keyes, Chairman of the Concord April 19 Committee, in a statement today explained an apparent slight to Governor Trumbull of Connecticut at the Concord-Lexington Patriots' Day celebration on Monday, declaring that the committee failed to make provision for his visit because no reply to invitations sent to the Governor and his staff was received.

Judge Keyes expressed keen regret over the incident.

Two Connecticut militia companies reported slighted in the celebration, he said, were not in Concord. Lack of road space prevented invitation of organizations outside Massachusetts, he added.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 22.—"Very slipshod" was the characterization of the arrangements of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Lexington-Concord battles given tonight by Governor Trumbull of Connecticut. His secretary, Edward L. Kelley, reiterated published charges of inattention at Boston and lack of courtesy to the Governor of this State, his staff and two uniformed companies of the Governor's foot guard.

"The situation has been mildly stated, to say the least," declared Mr. Kelley.

BOSTON, April 22.—Uncertainty still surrounded tonight the disposition of the case of the Harvard Lampoon, the humorous student monthly. Copies of the publication were yesterday ordered held in the Cambridge Post Office pending a decision from Washington as to whether the current number contained obscene and unmailable matter.

Hiram Williams, United States District Attorney, said today that no warrants had been issued against the editors of the Lampoon, and that no such action was contemplated. Postal authorities in Boston repeated that the copies held in Cambridge had not been confiscated and that the procedure so far was "purely routine."

Protest Against O'Neill's Play.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., April 22.—A delegation of six ministers led by the Rev. Henry R. Williams, President of the Ministerial Union, protested this morning against the proposed reading of Eugene O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms" at a tea room here tonight by George Grover Mills of Boston, lecturer last year at the Rand School of Social Science in New York. Miss Dorothy Winslow, the promoter, agreed to have the subject of the reading changed.

Yale Bars Motorcycles When Professors Are Hit

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 22.—Yale has barred motorcycles from the campus. Formal action has been taken by the Faculty of the academic and scientific departments and the Students' Council after several near-sighted professors have been run down by reckless undergraduates who have used motorcycles to get from one recitation room to another in a distant part of the campus without being late. The fact that the campus now stretches from the Hillhouse estate to the Medical School grounds, nearly a mile, has caused the undergraduates to acquire motorcycles in order not to miss consecutive recitations. It is now proposed to run a jitney service.

TRAPPED IN OFFICES BY AMMONIA FUMES

PHONE GIRL STAYS AT POST

With Eyes Closed and Handkerchief Over Face She Warns Occupants of Lower Floors.

Twelve persons were trapped on the seventh and eighth floors of the St. Regis Restaurant building, 13 to 136 West Forty-third Street, late yesterday afternoon, when pipe lines carrying ammonia at 150 pounds pressure burst. Fumes rapidly spread from the leak, which was on the third floor, to all parts of the building through a new elevator shaft, not yet enclosed, and made exit through the upper hallways impossible.

The odor was first noticed by Frances Gray, a telephone operator on the third floor. Miss Gray said she heard a thudding sound, followed by the hiss of escaping vapor. Closing her eyes and holding her handkerchief over her face, she proceeded to call persons on the various floors.

The occupants of the lower floors rushed from their offices and were carried down in the elevator operated by Albert Lloyd, colored, of 212 West Sixty-first Street, who said that he had to drive the car with his eyes shut most of the time because of the fumes.

Meanwhile a rescue squad under Captain William Lamb had answered Miss Gray's call. The lower floors were cleared of occupants, but, until gas masks were donned, the rescuers could not reach those on the seventh and eighth floors, who were leaning out of the windows and crying for help. By opening windows firemen with gas-protective equipment freshened the air on the seventh floor. Then a fireman reached the roof by the fire escape and broke the skylight in offices on the top floor, to the relief of the occupants, who were helped from the building.

It was reported that Marjorie Rambeau was among those rescued, but Miss Rambeau denied that she was in the building.

FAIMAN GETS $100,000 BAIL.

Crowe to Hold Him for Shepherd Case, Which Comes Up on Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 22.—State's Attorney Crowe today in the Shepherd case got Dr. Charles E. Faiman, his star witness, in his custody indefinitely. Attorneys for Shepherd have been trying to compel the State to incarcerate or release Dr. Faiman, who alleged in a confession that he conspired with Shepherd to kill William Nelson McClintock. Since then Faiman has been in the State Attorney's custody at a hotel, and a mandamus suit was started to compel his release.

Crowe took Faiman before Judge Thomas J. Lynch of the Criminal Court and requested bail at $100,000. After the motion had been allowed Crowe asked that John J. Geary and Peter Pacelli, Detective Sergeants assigned to his office, be allowed to sign Faiman's bond without making any schedule of property. That motion also was granted.

Faiman will be held at a hotel as the personal prisoner of the two detectives.

Chief Justice Jacob Hopkins of the Criminal Court today assigned the Shepherd case to Judge Lynch. It will come up on Monday and the date of trial will then be fixed.

EXTENDS SMALLPOX FIGHT.

Philadelphia Establishes Two More Quarantines, Involving 1,600.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 22.—Medical departments of many manufacturing and public utility companies today joined the city's fight against smallpox as two more quarantines were established, involving the vaccination of nearly 1,600 residents of the restricted areas.

At the same time Dr. George Ernest Johnson, chief diagnostician of the Bureau of Health, declared the smallpox now prevalent is the most virulent type he has ever encountered.

Two deaths yesterday brought the death total to fifteen out of 137 cases reported since Jan. 1. The mortality record of the disease so far is more than 9 per cent.

Fifteen Camden physicians were requested today by Mayor King to act on a special investigating board to determine whether Camden's so-called "honor system," severely criticised by local health authorities, and blamed by them as largely responsible for the spread of the disease here, is better than the compulsory vaccination method employed in this city in smallpox quarantines.

BUYS FOUR LENOX ESTATES.

LENOX, Mass., April 22.—Howard Cole, who returned to Lenox today from Palm Beach, announced that he had bought four Lenox estates, comprising 1,008 acres, for $246,250. These properties have an assessed valuation of $354,510 and are said to have cost their owners more than $1,500,000.

The properties and prices at which they were sold follow: Mrs. William E. S. Griswold's Wyndhurst, 258 acres, $100,000; Frederick A. Schermerhorn's estate, Pine Croft, 343 acres, $96,250; Mrs. Robert W. Paterson's Blantyre, 250 acres, $25,000; Captain John S. Barnes's fifty-nine acre estate, Cold Brook, $25,000.

An eighteen-hole golf course is to be laid out at Blantyre and the villa is to be remodeled into a club. Mrs. Griswold's villa is to be made over into an exclusive inn.

Mr. Cole said that he and his associates were negotiating for the purchase of Ventfort Hall, Miss Caroline L. Morgan's estate, assessed at $168,350.

Will Ask Extradition of Child Slayer

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 22.—Governor Smith of New York will be asked tomorrow to extradite Thurlow H. Rogers of Waterbury, Conn., who is now in Schenectady. He is wanted here to answer to the charge of killing his infant son and leaving the body checked in a suitcase at the railroad station in this city. Rogers confessed to the murder in Schenectady.

DECISION UPHELD AGAINST $1 GAS LAW

SUSTAINS MASTER'S REPORT

Present Rate of $1.15 Yields Much Less Than 6%, the Court Holds.

CALLS LAW CONFISCATORY

Asserts Company Should Have Included In Operating Costs the Expense of Rate Litigation.

The report of Special Master James C. Graham, sustaining the contention of the Consolidated Gas Company that the dollar gas law was confiscatory and unconstitutional, was approved yesterday by Federal Judge Winslow. The decision of the Court states that the company is entitled to 8 per cent. return on its investment and that the present rate for gas, $1.15 per thousand cubic feet, yields a net return of "much less than 6 per cent."

Reference was made in the decision to the point made in the case of the New York and Queens Gas Company, that when the gas companies accepted a rate fixed by the Public Service Commission a contract existed between the companies and the State which the Legislature had no right to violate.

"The master's conclusion is that as actual test of the statute (fixing the rate) to demonstrate its confiscatory character is unnecessary," the Court says. "I believe that conclusion to be amply justified by the record. There is no narrow line in this case between confiscation and non-confiscation. I concur in the master's conclusion that the enforcement of the proposed one dollar rate, if applied to actual operation of the plaintiff during the periods under consideration, 1922-23, would be equivalent to the confiscation of its property whatever rate base be the starting point."

The Court said that it would have been proper to include in the cost of operation the constantly recurring expenses of rate litigation. This expense, it was pointed out, was eliminated.

PIONEER VITAGRAPH SOLD TO WARNERS

DEAL MAY BE $1,000,000

Buyers Get 50 Picture Distributing Exchanges Over World—J. Stuart Blackton's Beginning.

A big motion picture deal was made yesterday when Warner Brothers, Inc., of New York and Los Angeles, one of the leading independent producers, purchased the Vitagraph Company of America and all its subsidiaries. The Vitagraph concern is one of the early pioneer companies in the film business and the firm which exhibited one of the first real motion pictures.

This deal adds to the importance of the Warner Brothers, as it takes over Vitagraph's fifty picture distributing exchanges throughout the world; there are twenty-six exchanges in the United States, four in Canada, ten in England and ten in Continental Europe. It is supposed to involve more than $1,000,000.

Harry M. Warner, President of Warner Brothers, asserted yesterday that this was not an amalgamation, but an outright purchase, as his company had acquired the controlling interest of Albert E. Smith, Commodore J. Stuart Blackton and the estate of William T. Rock, represented by John Rock, who were the organizers of the company twenty-eight years ago.

This deal places a different complexion on the producing end of the Warner Brothers concern, as well as the distributing end of their business. In acquiring possession of the Vitagraph Company the Warner Brothers become possessors of the Vitagraph's studio in Flatbush, a twenty-acre studio in Hollywood and a large laboratory. It is said that they also become the owners of one of the greatest libraries of motion pictures in the world; it consists of all the output of the Vitagraph concern for twenty-eight years, stories that have been recently purchased and all the pictures which are now being made, besides valuable real estate and other considerations.

Harry M. Warner, in speaking of the purchase, made the following statement:

"Negotiations were concluded today whereby we purchased the controlling interest in the Vitagraph Company of America, and by this deal Vitagraph passes absolutely into the hands of the Warner Brothers. Hitherto we have lacked personal touch with the exhibitors. Now we are taking over Vitagraph to distribute our future product throughout the world by means of its branches. We will go ahead with the work Vitagraph has planned for this year, finishing their productions, taking over their contracts and players."

The history of the Vitagraph Company of America is one of the romances of the motion picture industry. In 1895 J. Stuart Blackton, then a newspaper man, was sent by The New York World to interview Thomas A. Edison, who at the time was experimenting with "continuity pictures." When Blackton returned he told Albert E. Smith, with whom he was living, that he had learned something about a new art. They coined the word "vitagraph" after perusing a dictionary, and in February, 1897, they formed the Vitagraph Company of America. Their first picture, and possibly the first real motion picture to be exhibited in this country, was "The Black Diamond Express." It was exhibited in 1898 at Tony Pastor's Theatre, where Mr. Smith amazed the public by telling them that they would see a train, belching smoke, approaching from a distance and actually moving right up to and passing the audience on a plain white sheet. It was not long after this that it was obvious that this new form of entertainment had caught popular fancy, and in 1900 Smith and Blackton had thirty projection machines by which the pictures could be exhibited throughout the country. It was in 1900 that William T. (Pop) Rock joined Smith and Blackton, and the real Vitagraph Company of America was launched; it has remained virtually in the hands of these three men ever since.

It was in 1905 that the company formed the nucleus of their stock company by employing a player named J. Barney Sherry. They then started to grow amazingly and were responsible for introducing some of the most popular stars of the screen, including Florence Costle, Maurice Costello, Florence Lawrence, Mabel Normand, Julie Swayne Gordon, Helen Gardiner, Lillian Walker, Anita Stewart, Carlyle Blackwell, John Bunny and even Norma Talmadge.

The Vitagraph assimilated the old firm of Kalen & Lubin. The Warner Brothers concern also is a pioneer in its way. It began with a small theatre in Newcastle, Pa., and later the Warner Brothers entered the production field with a program of six pictures. Last year they produced twenty and they plan making forty productions for the season of 1925-26.

It is expected that a meeting will be held either today or tomorrow at which further details concerning the purchase will be revealed.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Tessa Kosta was absent from the cast of "Princess Ida" Tuesday night and yesterday, due to a cold, but will sing her role again tonight. It is announced. Augusta Spetta played the part during her absence.

Anne Nichols, author and producer of "Abie's Irish Rose," has purchased "White Collars" from Frank Egan. The play is now running at the Cort Theatre.

Glenn Hunter sailed on the Mauretania yesterday for a brief vacation. He will return on May 18 to begin rehearsals of "The Dark Chapter."

Lila Lee, well-known in motion pictures, will be seen here during the week of May 4 in a play entitled "The Charming Bride," adapted by Henry Baron from the French of Felix Candera. Mr. Baron is the producer.

Rachel Crothers, in association with Mary Kirkpatrick, will produce four plays next season. They will be "The Book of Charm," by John Kirkpatrick, with Elisabeth Patterson in the leading role; a comedy by Miss Crothers, with Mary and Florence Nash as co-stars; a play by John Howard Lawson, author of "Processional," and "Concerning Spring," a musical version of "Lady Luck."

Tonight's performance at the Neighborhood Playhouse will be given in honor of Mikhail Mordkin, who will bring a party of singers and dancers to the theatre.

Under the auspices of Doubleday, Page & Co., publishers of "World Birds," a party of literary editors and publishers will attend the performance of that play at the Cherry Lane tomorrow night.

A. E. Thomas's "The Champion" will be staged tonight in the grand ballroom of the Plaza Hotel as New York University's annual varsity show.

The Spring performance of the Inter-Theatre Arts School of Acting and Production will be given at the Cherry Lane Playhouse on Sunday night.

Wallace Eddinger and Roland Young have signed contracts with Gilbert Miller to appear in the leading male roles of a Molnar comedy to be produced by the Charles Frohman Company next season.

"Snapshots of 1925," a cabaret revue which opens at the Silver Slipper next Wednesday night, will feature Bernard Granville and Olga and Mishka, Russian dancers.

The anniversary of Shakespeare's birthday will be observed this afternoon at a reception of the Episcopal Actors' Guild at the hall, 1 East Twenty-ninth Street. Isabel Irving will be the guest of honor.

"Tell Me More" will be produced at the Winter Garden in London early in June by Al Aarone, in association with Grossmith and Malone.

Screen Notes.

Because of the big business which has been attracted at the Colony by Larry Semon in "The Wizard of Oz," on Saturday performances will start at 10:30 A. M.

CHIKUSA HER PROTEGEE.

Mme. Rethberg to Take Japanese to Her Villa in Italy.

Naka Chikusa, a native Japanese studying at Columbia, has won unexpected reward for a Winter's frequent attendance at the Metropolitan Opera, where she interviewed the stars, exchanging gifts for their portraits inscribed to her, and was able to assist Elizabeth Rethberg in arranging the proper headdress for Cio-Cio-San in "Madama Butterfly." Mme. Rethberg, on leaving for Atlanta recently, told the pretty Asian girl that she was invited to go as the prima donna's protegée and companion this Summer to Europe. Miss Chikusa has been in New York for a year and has supported her college studies by writing for Japanese papers here and in Tokio.

Mme. Rethberg, who is to sing "Butterfly" in London and on the Continent, will later take Miss Chikusa to her villa on Lake Maggiore, Italy, and to her home in Saxony. The singer's husband, Albert E. Doman, a German manufacturer, has visited Japan and made collections of its art objects, some of which are in the home he and his wife occupy on Riverside Drive.

REGINA DIAMOND IN DEBUT.

Regina Diamond, remembered as a singer in army hospitals and camps, as well as in local school and opera performances when she essayed Aïda, Santa, Santuzza and a popular Josephine in "Pinafore," took a long step toward the classic recital stage at Aeolian Hall last night. For her formal début, she prepared an artist's program in three languages, from old Italian airs and German Lieder to songs in English by Rachmaninoff and Hageman.

Miss Diamond displayed good lyric style and vocal resources, an occasional nervousness being more than offset by personal charm and animation in lighter songs. Mr. Hageman, at the piano, too, added to the contrasting moods of such as Wolf's "Ein Little Things" and Richard Strauss's "Bad Weather." A large audience applauded the young singer, who received a débutante's portion of bright seasonal flowers.

Samuel Goldwyn to Wed Today.

Samuel Goldwyn, the moving picture producer, and Miss Frances Howard, the moving picture star, will be married at 11 A. M. today by Police Court Judge Leo Sullivan at his law office, 15 Exchange Place, Jersey City.

Mr. Goldwyn, who was recently divorced by his wife, Bertha Lasky, resides at the Hotel Ambassador, and Miss Howard, who is half his age, has been living at a Park Avenue address. Only a few friends will attend the ceremony, immediately after which the couple will leave on a honeymoon for the Pacific Coast. Miss Howard, whose family name is McLaughlin, has a five-year contract with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

Actors' Theatre Dinner May 3.

The Actors' Theatre will give its annual dinner and entertainment for its founders at the Hotel Astor on Sunday night, May 3. The guests of honor will include Laurette Taylor, Peggy Wood, Pedro de Cordoba, Tom Powers, Warburton Gamble, Blanche Yurka, George Hassell, Clare Eames, Richard Bird, Galina Kopernak, Helen Chandler, Pearl Sindelar, Violet Kemble Cooper and Elizabeth Patterson. Many other well-known people of the theatre will likewise be present.

Verdict Against Pauline Lord.

A jury returned a verdict for $458 against Pauline Lord, actress, now playing in "They Knew What They Wanted" at the Klaw Theatre. The verdict was in favor of Chamberlain Brown, Inc., which sued in the Municipal Court to recover commissions on a playlet, "For Five Thousand Dollars," in which it was said Miss Lord starred last Summer.

Fiske O'Hara in "The Big Mogul."

Fiske O'Hara, an Irish singing comedian who has been popular for many years on the road, will begin an engagement at Wallack's Theatre on Monday night, May 11. He will be seen in a play entitled "The Big Mogul," by De Witt Newing, with Miss Pat Clary in the leading feminine rôle. During the week of May 4 Wallack's will be the scene of the Little Theatre Tournament.

Hugh Allan's Arm Broken in Fall.

MUSIC NOTES.

The David Mannes School and the New York College of Music give their annual concerts tonight and tomorrow respectively.

The King's Crown concert of the Columbia Glee Club has been postponed from this week until Friday, May 8.

ARMY BAND TO PLAY HERE AT 7 EVENTS

Principal Appearance Will Be at Legion Testimonial in Honor of General Pershing.

TO GIVE 2 PARK CONCERTS

Organization Will Be Kept Busy From May 1 to 7—Program Announced by War Department

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The Army Band will have a busy week in New York from May 1 to 7, according to the program released by the War Department today.

Reaching Governors Island on the afternoon of May 1, the band will give a concert on the parade ground, and in the evening will play at a dance in honor of Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall at Fort Hamilton. The next evening members of the band will be guests at the dinner of the National Vaudeville Artists Club as a preliminary to the testimonial in honor of General Pershing, which will be held at the Hippodrome. Governor Smith will be among those present at the Pershing celebration. The band and other military units will escort General Pershing from the dinner to the Hippodrome, where the performance will begin at 11 o'clock.

The opening number of the Army Band at the Hippodrome will be "Memories of the War," which was composed by Leader Stannard. A feature of the Hippodrome program will be numbers to be played by the Army and Navy Bands and the band of the Eighteenth Infantry in mass organization, under the direction of John Philip Sousa, former leader of the Marine Band and now on the retired list of the navy.

At the Hippodrome ceremonies General Pershing will receive a bronze tablet from four Medal of Honor men as the gift of the American Legion.

On the afternoon of May 3 the Army Band will give a concert in Central Park, and it also will appear that night at a benefit concert here for the American Legion Home at Saranac Lake. The next day the band will give a public concert in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, and that night will entertain in the Hotel Astor. Many New Yorkers interested in music have been invited to attend.

COCHRAN DISCHARGED IN BANKRUPTCY CASE

LONDON, April 22.—A discharge from bankruptcy was granted today to Charles B. Cochran. His unsecured debts amounted to £95,614, and realizations from real estate amounted to £5,404.

Among the producer's losses were St. Martin's Theatre, Ltd., £12,908; Pavilion Productions, Ltd., £6,000; R. and C. Productions, Ltd., £15,046; New Oxford Theatre, £98,000; Dempsey-Carpentire fight, £5,000; exhibition dances at Piccadilly Hotel, French season and Russian ballet, Prince's Theatre and Music Box Revue at Palace Theatre, £15,000.

Mr. Cochran admitted going to the money lenders in May, 1921, but declared this was not because he was insolvent but because his money was tied up.

Representatives of both the bankruptcy trustees and his creditors spoke in favor of the bankrupt's discharge and his own lawyer replied to a charge brought by the official receiver that Cochran had engaged in "rash and hazardous speculation" by pointing out his profession involved unknown and necessary risks and his ventures all had been legitimate.

Registrar Hope said the case was peculiar because the trustees for the creditors supported the application for his discharge and he thought to grant it gave creditors the best chance for the recovery of their money. He therefore ordered immediate discharge of Cochran subject to the payment of a judgment for £1,000.

DINERS HAIL MACKAY AS 'FATHER OF BRIDGE'

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., April 22.—More than 500 men and women of Bergen County attended a dinner last night given by the Mackay Hudson River Bridge Association in honor of Senator William B. Mackay. The demand for tickets was so great that the Swiss chalet was unable to accommodate all of the diners and an overflow dinner was arranged at the Hackensack Golf Club, Senator Mackay attended both.

Judge John B. Zabriskie, Chairman of the Bridge Association, and Mrs. Charles S. Conklin were the respective toastmasters, and each in turn presented to Senator Mackay a gold medallion. The obverse bears the inscription, "Testimonial dinner to Senator William B. Mackay, father of the first New Jersey-New York Hudson River Bridge, April 22, 1925," and on the reverse is the outline of a bridge over the river.

The dinner was nonpartisan, and although the Senator is a Republican and a candidate for re-election, the principal speakers were Senator Alexander Simpson and Secretary of State Thomas Martin, both Democrats. The other speaker was Ralph E. Chandless of Bergen County, majority leader in the last assembly.

Senator Mackay explained the purpose of the bills passed by the Legislature, and said his main aim was to save the taxpayers from paying the cost of the bridge. He said the Port Authority was empowered to sell bonds, and he believed that the tolls from the bridge would pay the entire cost within a few years.

SETTLE 'GHOST' FARM SUIT.

Lyman Caretaker for 19 Years Will Retain Property.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., April 22.—Herbert Iyman of East Hampton will retain possession of the Simons farm on which he has lived and worked for nineteen years and Miss Jennie Cain, a nurse who came from Buffalo to "aid Lyman" in his suit for $9,000 against the administrator of the estate of Mrs. Phoebe Simons, will remain either as his housekeeper or wife, or both.

When court convened after recess today it was announced that an agreement between the contending parties had been reached whereby Lyman was to pay $2,200 to Mrs. Mary Purcell of Southold. L. I., Mrs. Simons's daughter, for the farm. Later it was learned that Miss Cain, who announced on her arrival in East Hampton last week, that she had no objection to marrying Lyman; would either marry him or remain as his housekeeper. She offered aid to Lyman after his statements that he had talked with the ghost of his former employer were published.

Radio Reunites Mother and Daughter

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., April 22.—Mrs. James Bastian of Fields Station, near here, searched several years in vain for her daughter, who more than twenty years ago was given over to the care of a Chicago family when she was about 3 years old. Radio messages were sent out from six broadcasting stations last month. These were repeated several times, and last week Mrs. Bastian received word from her daughter, now living at Fort Worth, Texas. The result was a reunion of mother and daughter here this week.

MISS MARSH TO WED DR. DAVID C. BULL

City Magistrate and Mrs. Norman James Marsh of 911 Park Avenue have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Catharine Marsh, to Dr. David Chapman Bull, son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Marcus Bull of Naugatuck, Conn. Miss Marsh was graduated from Smith College in 1919 and was President of her class. She has spent two years in Americanization work in the Hawaiian Islands and since that time has been associated with the Presbyterian Hospital.

Dr. Bull was graduated from Hotchkiss School in 1909 and from Yale University in 1912. He attended the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons and was graduated from there in 1916. He served with Squadron A at the border, and in France with the 107th Infantry as a captain. He was twice cited for his services. He received his early surgical training at Bellevue Hospital and is now assistant attending surgeon of the Presbyterian Hospital.

The wedding will take place early in June.

GEORGE MESTA, NOTED ENGINEER, DIES HERE

George Mesta, President of the Mesta Machine Company of Pittsburgh, died here yesterday at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. Mr. Mesta had registered at the hotel with his wife on April 16. The body was sent to Pittsburgh.

Mr. Mesta was born on a farm in Bethel Township, Allegheny County, Pa., in 1862 and after receiving his elementary education in Bethel Academy, entered the University of Pittsburgh, where he graduated from the engineering college in 1885.

After graduation he was employed by Totten and Company of Pittsburgh as an engineer. Here he designed engines and rolling mill machinery until 1887, when he organized the Leechburg Foundry and Machine Company. After serving as Vice President and general manager of this concern he was elected President in 1889.

It was nine years later that he organized the Mesta Machine Company and became its President. One of his first tasks in the new concern was to supervise the building of its large plant now situated in West Homestead. A few months later the Mesta Company purchased the plants of the Leechburg Foundry and Machine Company and also of the Robinson Rea Manufacturing Company of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Mesta was a member of many engineering organizations, among them the American Iron and Steel Institute, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, National Association of Manufacturers and Engineers, Society of Western Pennsylvania, Machinery Club and Engineers Club. He also belonged to the Bankers Club of New York and to various civic and social clubs in Pittsburgh, New York and Washington.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Pearl R. Mesta, a brother, F. H. Mesta, and two sisters. Mr. Mesta had been in ill health for several months.

Edwin A. Oliver, newspaper editor, publisher and humorist, died yesterday in his home at 192 Warburton Avenue, Yonkers. Death followed a severe nervous collapse four months ago. Mr. Oliver, who was 69 years old, was born in New York City. He located with his parents in Yonkers in 1866, where, after completing his education there, he joined the staff of the Yonkers Statesman as a reporter. This newspaper was founded by his father, John W. Oliver, who was also its editor-in-chief until his own death in 1908.

The son at this time succeeded his father in the editorship, continuing in that capacity until 1923, when The Statesman was merged with the Yonkers Daily News. While on The Statesman Mr. Oliver wrote a column "Wit and Humor." His quips and epigrams admitted him to membership in the Press Humorist Association.

Mr. Oliver was unmarried, his nearest relatives being two nieces, Mrs. Alvin Curtis of Fon-du-Lac, Wis., and Mrs. Eleanor Gunn McClelland of New York City. They were at his bedside when death came.

The funeral services will be held Saturday in the First Methodist Church of Yonkers.

LAWYERS AT WILDER BIER.

Services for Prominent Attorney in First Presbyterian Church.

William Royal Wilder, prominent New York lawyer, who died Sunday night at his home, 312 West Seventy-seventh Street, was buried yesterday morning from the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street. Mr. Wilder, Secretary of the class of 1879 at Princeton University, of which President Woodrow Wilson was a member, belonged to the law firm of Wilder, Ewen & Patterson, 45 Cedar Street. He was 67 years old.

At the services yesterday the following officers and directors represented the New York County Lawyers' Association: James A. O'Gorman, Henry W. Taft, Samuel Seabury, John E. O'Brien, Benno Lewinson, John G. Agar, Charles A. Boston, M. Linn Bruce, Samuel Owen Edmonds, Julius J. Frank, Joseph M. Hartfield, Paul R. Towne, William Byrd, Lewis L. Delafield, Samuel Greenbaum, Terence J. McManus, Edgar J. Nathan, Abram J. Rose, Henry W. Sackett, Charles Strauss, Martin Conboy, Louis F. Doyle, Walter G. Dunnington, J. Noble Hayes, Samson Lachman, Allan McCulloh, Harold R. Medina, William A. Purrington.

LADY CAVENDISH DEAD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 22.—Lady Frederick Cavendish, widow of Lord Frederick Cavendish, who was assassinated in Phoenix Park, Dublin, in 1882, died at Tonbridge tonight, aged 84. By a tragic coincidence her sister, the Hon. Mrs. J. G. Talbot, died tonight at her residence near Tonbridge, aged 86.

Lord Frederick, the dead woman's husband, was assassinated a few hours after he had taken the oath as Chief Secretary for Ireland. Political enemies wrongly hint and his friend, Thomas Henry Burke, Under Secretary, who also was killed. In the trials which followed the assassins admitted that the attack on Cavendish was only incidental to the main object of killing Burke, his companion of the moment.

Mass in Memory of Teacher.

A month's mind requiem mass, in memory of Margaret F. O'Connell, former District Superintendent of Schools, who died March 26, will be celebrated Saturday at 9 A. M. at St. Catherine's Church, West 153d Street, between Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue. Members of the teaching profession, friends and alumni of the Catholic Summer School of America and members of charitable and educational organizations are specially invited to be present.

KATHLEEN CRAWFORD WEDS EDGAR T. FELL

Miss Kathleen Beale Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Gordon Crawford of 2 East Fifty-sixth Street, was married to Edgar Tremlett Fell of Baltimore in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Roland Cotton Smith, formerly of St. John's Church, Washington, assisted by the Rev. Dr. J. P. McComas of St. Paul's Church. Bishop Manning pronounced the benediction. There was a full choir service.

The bride wore a gown of white satin embroidered with pearls, with a lace train and a tulle veil bordered with duchess lace which was worn by her paternal great-grandmother Bienvenue of New Orleans. Miss Rebecca Linden Smith of Boston was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were the Misses Oliva Van Rensselaer Gawtry, Katharine Hoppin Post, Gertrude Ogden, Pauline Cabot of Boston, Mary Marval of Wilmington and Dorothy Queen Owen of Philadelphia, a cousin of the bride.

Edwin Morgan of Baltimore was best man and the ushers were Calvert Magruder and Charles Coburn of Boston, Lawrence Ballirere of Baltimore, John Worthington of Annapolis, George Davidson Jr. of Daytona, Fla., and Herbert Noble of this city.

The wedding was witnessed by friends of the couple who had come from New Orleans, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Boston, Washington and other cities. Following the ceremony there was a small reception at the Colony Club. Mr. and Mrs. Fell have left on a wedding trip at the end of which they will go to Baltimore, where they will make their home at 1,537 Bolton Street.

English—Covell.

The marriage of Miss Margaret B. Covell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nelson Covell, to William H. English Jr. took place yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, 72 East Nineteenth Street, Brooklyn. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a small group of relatives and friends by the Rev. Dr. Wallace J. Gardiner of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Kenneth Lyons was the matron of honor and the maid of honor was Miss Frances Brueggerhof. J. Radford English was his brother's best man and the ushers were Fremont C. Peck, Harry B. Smith, Henry C. Irons Jr. of this city and George L. Craig Jr. of Pittsburgh. Following a small reception Mr. and Mrs. English left for a wedding trip in the South and when they return in three weeks they will make their home for the Summer with Mr. English's parents in Red Bank, N. J.

STARVED IN ROOMING HOUSE

With only a few pennies in her possession, Mrs. Emily McGuiness, a widow, 80 years old, was found starving yesterday in a furnished room at 358 West Twenty-first Street. Dr. Jaeger of New York Hospital was called by Patrolman James McKenna of the West Thirtieth Street Station, and, though he said the woman was suffering from starvation, he did not take her to the hospital, but made arrangements for notifying the Department of Charities.

Mrs. James Forbes, the landlady of the rooming house, said she noticed Mrs. McGuiness was not well on Tuesday and took her a cup of tea. Yesterday when she called on the sick woman she found her so ill that the policeman was called in.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Something of indecision appeared in most markets yesterday. Prices on the Stock Exchange as a rule retraced their movement of Tuesday. Call money lost its temporary aspect of strength and declined toward the usual figure. Even Tuesday's rise in sterling, which had carried the rate to $4.79¾, was followed by a partial downward reaction which brought it below $4.79. French exchange also, which has been advancing uninterruptedly during the past week, fell back to last Thursday's price, and the French Republic bonds at the same time sold down about half a point.

This would seem to mean simply that speculators for the decline who were caught in the market by its unexpected response to the "French currency crisis" have now pretty much settled their unlucky commitments. When that has happened, a market always looks around to see what considerations, less favorable than those which have recently occupied the financial mind, can be discovered. Probably the questions of doubt which suggest themselves on the present occasion are the new Ministry's chance of long survival and the problem what card the rehabilitated exile who now figures as Finance Minister will be able to play.

The day's recovery on the Stock Exchange was mostly incidental to the violent decline which the so-called "pool specialties" have had to face. When one stock of this kind had advanced 80 points since New Year's Day and then declined 118 and another had risen 80 points and fallen back 85, and various others had imitated the performance at a respectful distance, there will always be occasions when purchases, either by people who think the bottom must have been reached or by speculators "covering their shorts," will steady the collapsing prices. Even the railway shares gained ground yesterday as a group; this notwithstanding the decrease of nearly $2,000,000 reported for Union Pacific's March gross earnings, with $1,100,000 decrease in the net. It may be doubted if this unfavorable showing will turn out to be typical of last month's railway results; but, taken along with that company's decrease earlier in the year, it certainly throws a somewhat perplexing light on business recovery in the Middle West. Yesterday's statement of railway car loadings showed the now familiar increase over 1924, but it fell considerably short of the figures of 1923.

Wheat went above the dollar-and-a-half line again, advancing at one time 7 cents over Tuesday's closing. These abnormally violent daily changes in the price might almost seem to put the present wheat market in the class with Cast Iron Pipe. The case is similar at least in this respect, that a wild speculative advance has all been lost and that the speculators have not yet managed to get into the way of calmly judging the realities in the day-to-day developments.

Estimates of the current output of steel, published in yesterday's trade reviews, show that production is now on the footing of the first half of December. The trade as a whole is calculated to be working now at 77 per cent. of capacity, as against an average of something like 82 in March; the United States Steel Corporation around 83 per cent., as compared with a recent maximum of 95. The striking fact of this situation is, however, what seems to be the lack of apprehension in the trade of any such continued shrinkage in demand as existed a year ago and which brought the active steel-making capacity down to 40 per cent. in July. Every one recognizes the fact of moderate overproduction during the three past months, nobody seems to know who holds the unsold surplus, but the feeling is apparently very general that, with actual consumption keeping up unexpectedly well, the surplus will be absorbed with no great difficulty.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 22, 1925.

Stock Exchange call money was firm at 4 per cent. all day, with nothing under that figure in the outside market. About $15,000,000 was withdrawn. Dealers reported that the demand was steady throughout and on more than one occasion was keen enough to force a higher charge, but lenders met every inquiry at the prevailing quotation. Time money market, on the other hand, continued quiet and unchanged, 90 days lending at 3½ per cent., with four to six months' accommodation, in moderate amount, placed at 4 per cent. There was very little doing. Acceptances and commercial paper were also dull and at previous discounts.

EARNINGS DECLINED ON UNION PACIFIC

Both Freight and Passenger Traffic Dropped—St. Louis-San Francisco Reports a Gain.

The Union Pacific System issued its report of earnings for March yesterday. The report was the first of the large carriers to contain figures showing operations for the first quarter of the year. Both for March and for the quarter decreases were shown in earnings compared with the corresponding periods of last year.

The March results were considerably lower than in the same month of 1924. Gross revenues for the quarter showed a reduction of 11 per cent. and net operating income was 32 per cent. under a year ago. Freight traffic was 13 per cent. under the year before and passenger traffic 12.8 per cent. According to Carl A. Gray, President of the system, the decline in expenses during March was less than in February.

Following are the principal items in the report for the month:

Railway oper. rev...	$14,012,401	$15,975,677
Net operating rev...	3,443,475	4,629,469
Railway oper. income	2,220,142	3,291,874

These figures in comparison with those for February showed that the slackening in operating income which came into evidence in January was continuing. For the full quarter the following figures show the principal comparisons with the year before:

Gross operating revenues of $7,376,000, an increase of $374,000 over March of last year, was reported yesterday by the St. Louis-San Francisco for last month. Net operating income was $1,677,000, a gain of $192,000. Surplus for the month after fixed charges and taxes was $401,000, against $242,000 the year before.

The consolidated earning statement of the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway and its subsidiary, the Wisconsin Central, showed net operating income of $328,467 for the month, against $217,133 in March, 1924. For the three months the company's net operating income was $720,912, against $388,970 for the corresponding period of 1924.

BIG INSULL UTILITY DECLARES A DIVIDEND

Directors of the Middle West Utilities Company, an Insull property, yesterday voted to put the common stock on a per annum dividend basis of $5 a share by declaring a quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share, payable May 15 to stock of record May 2.

Concurrently, it was stated that the company would offer to stockholders of record May 15 the right to subscribe for additional common stock at $72.50 a share to the extent of 10 per cent. of their present holdings of prior lien, preferred or common stock. With the shareholders exercising their rights in full, the common stock outstanding will be increased 65,239 shares and will bring the total issued to 267,289 shares. No action by stockholders will be necessary, as the company's authorized total of common is sufficient to take care of the increase.

Samuel Insull, Chairman of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, another of the Insull utilities, was quoted in Chicago dispatches yesterday as saying that it is the plan of the directors of this company to increase the dividend rate on the common stock, two classes, to 9 per cent., beginning with the dividend due Aug. 1. At present the rate on both classes of common is 7 per cent. per annum. The directors at the regular meeting voted an increase of 20 per cent. in the outstanding shares of the company. This will be in the form of additional common stock without par value and will amount to 76,461 shares.

The Middle West Utilities Company reported gross earnings in 1924 of $41,402,807, which compares with $3,680,676 in 1912, reflecting the big strides made in the utility business through increased service demands and the grouping together of operating properties to improve service and reduce expenses.

EXCHANGE OF BONDS.

New York Railways Committee Consents to Transfer Plan.

The committee representing the holders of Central Crosstown Railroad Company first mortgage 6 per cent. forty-year bonds dated Nov. 1, 1852, and of certificates of deposits therefor, has entered into an agreement with the Reorganization Committee of the New York Railways Company providing for an exchange of these bonds on the following basis:

Each $1,000 face amount of old Central Crosstown bonds for $800 of new Central Crosstown bonds to be issued by the new company and to be secured by a first lien on all property covered by the present mortgage, $200 in cash, and an "additional amount of cash equal to interest at 6 per cent. per annum from May 1, 1922, to the date from which the new Central Crosstown bonds shall bear interest."

BIDS FOR GOULD UTILITY.

A. E. Fitkin & Co. Negotiating for Virginia Railway and Power.

A. E. Fitkin & Co. are the latest bidders for control of the Virginia Railway and Power Company. Negotiations to this end have been under way for some time. The Virginia Railway and Power is at present controlled by Frank Jay Gould, Chairman of the Executive Committee, who is abroad. Mr. Fitkin may sail for Europe shortly to discuss the matter with Mr. Gould.

The Virginia properties are strategically located as a link in a super-power system for the Atlantic Seaboard territory. For more than a year various utility interests have considered acquiring the property.

Crude Rubber Market Higher.

Prominent grades of crude rubber regained part of the loss sustained on Tuesday in yesterday's trading, an improvement of one-quarter a cent per pound scored in the active options. Spot ribbed smoked sheet crude rubber at 44¼ cents; brown crepe thin clean at 43½ cents, and amber No. 2 at 43⅜ cents, developed the higher range, while fine up-river Para was unchanged, at 37 cents.

Market was quiet, buyers and sellers being locked in their idea of value, which in some instances amounts to a spread as much as 1 cent.

Central New England Income.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 22.—An increase in net income of $541,044 last year over 1923 was reported to stockholders of the Central New England Railroad at their annual meeting here today. Directors of the railroad were re-elected.

Elected to Atlantic Gulf Board.

Paris Firm; London Quiet—Sterling Moves Against Paris.

LONDON, April 22.—Trading was quiet and prices were steady on the Stock Exchange today. Old 2½ per cent. consols unchanged at 56⅝; British 5 per cent. war loan ⅛ higher at 102¾; 4½ per cent. war loan unchanged at 97¼.

De Beers Mining 11⅛, Rand Mines 2, both unchanged.

PARIS, April 22.—Prices were firm on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes unchanged at 45 francs 20 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan 10 centimes lower at 86 francs.

Exchange on London 70 centimes higher at 92 francs 30 centimes. The American dollar was quoted at 19 francs 19 centimes, against 19 francs 14 centimes yesterday.

American Ship Corporation Loss.

The 1924 report of the American Ship and Commerce Corporation shows gross revenue of $25,971,632, including other income, against $27,991,139 reported in 1923. After allowing for all expenses and charges, but excluding inter company dividends, a net loss of $930,406 was reported for 1924, against a profit of $890,501 in 1923.

American International's Income.

The American International Corporation reports for the quarter ended March 31 net income of $426,971 after expenses, interest and taxes.

GET TYROL POWER ISSUE.

F. J. Lisman & Co. to Offer $3,000,000 Bonds Next Week.

Alfred O. Cassin of F. J. Lisman & Co. announced yesterday that the Lisman firm had signed a contract for the purchase of $3,000,000 of 7½ per cent. closed first mortgage sinking fund gold bonds of the Tyrol Hydro-Electric Power Company. A syndicate headed by F. J. Lisman & Co. will make a public offering next week. The bonds are guaranteed principal and interest by the State of Tyrol and by the City of Innsbruck, which is a joint owner and also the largest customer for power and water. Innsbruck has covenanted to buy sufficient power to cover interest and sinking fund on the bonds one and one-half times over and a contract has recently been negotiated with the Austrian Federal Railways, which are soon to be electrified, for the sale of 24,000 horsepower.

Proceeds will be used in carrying out an expansion program that contemplates the furnishing of electricity to a population of 1,000,000 in Tyrol, Southern Bavaria and Northern Italy. The bonds will constitute a first lien on the company's property.

Cable dispatches reported yesterday that another foreign loan was in prospect. American capitalists were said to have promised to defray half of the cost of construction of a Dortmund-Cologne railway. New York bankers said they had no first-hand information on the reported project but believed in any case that the outcome of the approaching German elections would be awaited before any loan contract would be signed.

GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, TRUSTEE

We summarize from the letter of Mr. Oscar Nelson, Vice-President and General Manager of the United Carbon Company, as follows:

BUSINESS: United Carbon Company, a Delaware Corporation will acquire the carbon black and gasoline producing plants and business of 15 companies engaged in the manufacture of carbon black and gasoline in Louisiana, West Virginia and Kentucky.

Carbon black is a product resulting from the incomplete combustion of natural gas, and possesses qualities which make it practically indispensable in the manufacture of printing inks, automobile tires and other rubber products, paints and enamels, stove polish, phonograph records, carbon and other paper, crayons, and a great variety of other manufactured articles. The annual production of carbon black in the United States has increased from 22,869,000 lbs. in 1914 to approximately 175,000,000 lbs. in 1924.

United Carbon Company will acquire from the predecessor companies and operate 33 plants for the manufacture of carbon black having a daily capacity of over 183,000 pounds, and in connection therewith, 9 plants for the extraction of gasoline from natural gas. These plants, during the calendar year 1924, produced 44,932,173 pounds of carbon black and 5,465,529 gallons of gasoline.

The total gas acreage to be controlled by United Carbon Company, proven and potential, is approximately 113,787 acres. The Company will have nearly two hundred producing wells in Louisiana, Kentucky and West Virginia, with a present open flow capacity of approximately 800,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas per day.

Based on conservative estimates of Brokaw, Dixon, Garner & McKee of New York City, H. A. Quay of Pittsburgh, Pa., and other competent engineers, and on information obtained from State authorities, the natural gas supply to be controlled by the Company is ample for its purpose for a long period of years, the lowest estimate being in excess of twice the life of these bonds.

SECURITY: This issue will be secured by direct closed first mortgage on all of the fixed property of the Company, including lands, plants, buildings, pipe lines, natural gas wells, leases, etc., most of which have been appraised recently by The American Appraisal Company, and which have a sound value in excess of $9,500,000, of which over $7,700,000 represents carbon black and gasoline plants, and approximately $1,800,000 represents gas properties and improvements thereto. The total assets of the Company, after giving effect to this financing and after deducting all liabilities except these bonds, as shown by the balance sheet as at February 14th, 1925, prepared by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., are in excess of $11,800,000, or over $4,700 for every $1,000 bond of this issue. CRUDE OIL OUTPUT GAINED LAST WEEK

Rise Due to Smackover Field, Its Increase Being More Than the Whole Country's Net.

The production of crude oil in the United States averaged 2,085,425 barrels daily last week, a gain of 74,110 barrels, compared with the total of the previous week, according to figures compiled by the Oil and Gas Journal of Tulsa. This total is the largest for any week reported this year, and the gain is also the largest reported for any one week in many months. The increase, according to the figures, was due to the developments in the Smackover field in Arkansas, which produces a heavy grade of oil with virtually no gasoline content. Were it not for the gains reported in Texas and Arkansas, crude oil production would have been smaller last week, as output in the light oil fields fell off sharply.

In spite of the heavy gain in Smackover crude production oil stocks both on the New York Stock Exchange and the outside market were firm yesterday. This was explained by the fact that the production in the Southern fields, which are not receiving the attention of the trade, is having little or no effect on the gasoline situation, although it has caused some decline in the price of crude oil both in the Gulf Coast and mid-continent districts. The gasoline situation continues firm, and the full effects of the Spring and Summer consumer demand for this product are expected to be felt early in May.

The invasion of salt water, according to the latest advices received from Smackover, is also beginning to make itself felt on the production of that field. According to a telegram received by one of the largest oil companies with offices in this city, some of the largest wells brought in recently, showing from 10 to 20 per cent. of salt water, are now showing as much as 50 per cent. water. This invasion has caused many of the wells to be pinched, but despite this it would not be considered surprising if further gains in output were recorded before the field actually reaches its peak.

The detailed figures show that the gain in Smackover was more than the total net gain for the country as a whole. That field alone reported a gain of 77,765 barrels. The detailed figures follow:

BUSH TERMINAL DIVIDEND.

$1.25 Per Common Share Payable on First Quarter's Earnings.

Directors of the Bush Terminal Company declared a dividend yesterday of $1.25 a share on the common stock, payable May 12 to stockholders of record May 2, out of the earnings for the first quarter of the year. The following statement was issued:

"Inasmuch as the dividend on the 7 per cent. debenture stock which it is proposed to exchange share for share for the existing common is cumulative from April 15, 1925, this action was taken to enable the holders of these common shares to realize the dividend for the first quarter at the former rate."

The Melville Shoe Corporation declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent on the preferred stock yesterday and 50 cents a share on the common stock, both dividends payable May 1 to stockholders of record April 24.

UTILITY STATEMENTS SHOW MANY GAINS

Public utility companies in many parts of the country reported their earnings statements yesterday and in most cases increases were exhibited over the same period in the previous year.

One of the largest, the United Light and Power Company which recently acquired 95 per cent. of the common stock of the Continental Gas and Electric Corporation, reported net earnings for the year ended Feb. 28 of $14,466,696, as compared with $13,047,620 in the previous year. The company announced that it has just completed the construction of a power house on the Mississippi River, near Davenport, and was constructing another on the Scioto River, near Columbus, Ohio.

The consolidated earnings statement of the Utilities Power and Light Corporation for the year ended Dec. 31, 1924, shows net of $2,399,961 after charges. The company's gross was $5,295,107. It controls utility companies in Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, New Jersey and Rhode Island.

For the twelve months ended March 31, the Republic Railway and Light Company reported net earnings of $3,469,517, as compared with $3,506,087 in the previous year. For the month of March, 1925, earnings were $319,965, as compared with $343,029 in the same month of the previous year. The company announced the completion of a new power plant at Toronto, Ohio.

Net for the month of March of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey was $820,074, as compared with $956,654 in the same month last year. For the twelve months ended March 31 the corporation earned net of $7,378,765, as compared with $6,315,942 in the same months of the previous year.

The income account of the Montana Power Corporation for the first quarter of 1925 shows net of $984,574 as compared with $881,980 for the same quarter of 1923. Gross wa $2,159,956 as compared with $2,110,061 for the same period last year.

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company has received an order valued at about $1,00,000 from the Carnegie Steel Company for electrical equipment for the new steel mill at Homestead, Pa. It is said to be one of the largest orders ever placed for electrical steel mill equipment.

The order calls for three electric motors with fly-wheel motor generator sets and auxiliary equipment. The mills will be driven by one 8,000-horsepower and two 7,000-horsepower reversing motors. These motors are said to be the largest of their type in the world. The order marks another step forward in the electrification of steel mills in the Pittsburgh district.

Gulf States Steel Profit.

The Gulf States Steel Company for the first quarter of 1925 reports net profit of $390,347, after all expenses and charges. After allowing for the preferred dividend the balance was equal to $2.88 a share earned on the 125,025 shares of common stock outstanding. In the December quarter the earnings were $2 a share on the common stock, and in the first quarter of 1924 the company earned $2.86 a share on the common.

5% Farm Loan Bonds
ISSUED UNDER THE FEDERAL FARM LOAN ACT

Dated January 1, 1925 Due January 1, 1955

Optional January 1, 1935, or any interest date thereafter at 100 and accrued interest. Coupon bonds of $1,000 fully registerable and interchangeable. Interest payable January 1st and July 1st. Principal and interest payable at the Chase National Bank of New York.

AUTHORITY—These bonds are issued under the Federal Farm Loan Act. The United States Supreme Court by decision held that these banks were legally created as part of the Banking System of the United States and fully sustained the constitutionality of the Act and the tax exemption features of these bonds.

GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION—While these bonds are not Government obligations and are not guaranteed by the Government, they are the secured obligations of the New York Joint Stock Land Bank, operating under Federal charter with governmental supervision, and the collateral pledged as security has been approved by the Federal Farm Loan Board, a Bureau of the Treasury Department of the United States Government.

SECURITY—These bonds must always be collaterally secured by either first mortgages upon improved farm lands having a value of at least 100% in excess of the mortgages thereon; or by United States Government obligations deposited with the Government agent. The equity in the mortgages pledged is steadily increased by the semi-annual amortization of the loans. The first mortgages securing the $5,750,000 bonds of this bank now outstanding cover 110,201 acres of improved farm land. This land has a value of $14,573,405 as appraised for loan purposes by the bank's own and government appraisers.

TERRITORY—This bank operates in New York State and Pennsylvania but most of its loans are outstanding in New York State. According to the United States Department of Agriculture's summary of crop conditions of the United States as of December 1924, New York State ranks first in the production of the following: Hay, Potatoes, Apples, Cabbage, Onions, Green Beans and Green Peas and second in Grapes, Pears, Maple Sugar and Syrup, Cauliflower and Lettuce.

New Issue

Binghamton Light, Heat & Power Co.
First Refunding Mortgage 5 Per Cent. Gold Bonds

Due February 1, 1946

Dated February 1, 1916. Interest payable April 1 and October 1 in New York without deduction of normal Federal Income Tax now or hereafter deductible at the source not in excess of 2%. Coupon bonds in denomination of $1,000. Callable as a whole or in part on any interest date at 105 and accrued interest.

The Company: The business of the Company has been successfully operated for more than 33 years. It furnishes electric light and power to Binghamton, Johnson City, Owego, and a number of other cities and towns in the State of New York. Binghamton, the principal city served, is an important railway center and the hub of an extensive system of electric railways extending to the suburbs and neighboring towns.

1917	372,085	141,262	39,053
1918	446,923	162,520	53,080
1919	508,584	207,478	74,044
1920	762,336	211,238	85,129
1921	921,734	363,722	92,525

Consolidated gross earnings for the twelve months ended February 28, 1925, were $1,545,640. During the same period consolidated net earnings before depreciation amounted to $694,738, as compared with annual interest charges on total mortgage debt outstanding with public, including this issue, of $252,010.

Security: These bonds, in the opinion of counsel, are secured by a first mortgage on the property and franchises of the Company, with the exception of a small property recently acquired (the earnings of which represent less than 6% of the gross) on which the mortgage is a direct lien subject to $201,000 underlying liens.

Management: The Binghamton Light, Heat & Power Company is controlled by the General Gas & Electric Corporation, whose subsidiaries serve a population of approximately 1,900,000 in six important states in the eastern and southeastern sections of the country.

TO SELL $20,000,000 OF ONTARIO NOTES

—United Carbon Offering.

With a falling off in the total of domestic securities available for offering to an investment market that has become distinctly stronger in the last few weeks, New York banks turned their attention yesterday to Canada. Bids were opened on a new issue of $20,000,000 of one and two year notes by the Province of Ontario and three American groups were among the competitors. The range between high and low bids was narrow. The award was made to a syndicate headed by Blair & Co., Inc., and the Equitable Trust Company, and their bid bettered by only nine and one-third cents on the $100 the next high bid. The third bid was only nine cents on the $100 below the second high.

Public offering of the securities, which are 3½ per cent. Ontario treasury bills, is made today. Associated with Blair & Co., Inc., and the Equitable Trust Company are Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., the Chase Securities Corporation, Solomon Brothers & Hutzler, the Bank of Nova Scotia, Matthews & Co., Ltd., of Toronto, and Cochran, Hay & Co., of Toronto. The issue consists of $10,000,000 of notes maturing April 22, 1926, priced to yield 4 per cent. and $10,000,000 due April 22, 1927, priced to yield 4.37 per cent.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Company offered yesterday and quickly sold a new issue of $7,224,000 Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company 5 per cent. equipment trust certificates. They were marketed at an average price of 101.5 to yield about 4.80 per cent. The certificates consisted of $5,768,000 Series O, maturing Dec. 1, 1925-1938, and $1,456,000 Series P, maturing Feb. 1, 1926-1939. Proceeds will be used to defray in part the cost of new equipment costing $8,246,000, the balance being paid by the company. This equipment will be security for the issue.

United Carbon Offering.

Peabody, Houghteling & Co., Inc., are offering at 100 a new issue of $2,500,000 United Carbon Company first mortgage 7 per cent. six-year sinking fund gold bonds, closed issue, due April 1, 1931. This company, as previously announced, was organized as a Delaware corporation to acquire the assets of fifteen companies engaged in the manufacture of carbon black and gasoline in Louisiana, West Virginia and Kentucky.

Remick, Hodges & Co. and George B. Gibbons & Co., Inc., are offering an issue of $2,500,000 State of New York coupon or registered gold 4 and 4½ per cent. bonds at prices to yield 3.75 per cent. The 4s mature from Jan. 1, 1936, to Sept. 1, 1948, and the 4½s on April 1, 1934-1944.

The Mountain States Power Company offering which H. M. Byllesby & Co., Inc., and Blyth, Witter & Co. previously announced that they would make is to be placed on the market today. The bonds consist of $2,000,000 first mortgage 6s of Series B, due in 1938 and are priced at 100. Proceeds will be used to reimburse the company for previous expenditures for additions and extensions.

Clark Williams & Co. are offering a new issue of $1,750,000 New York Joint Stock Land Bank of New York City 5 per cent. farm loan bonds, due Jan. 1, 1955. This bank operates in New York State and Pennsylvania, with most of its loans outstanding in New York State. The mortgages securing this issue cover 110,201 acres of improved farm land appraised at $14,573,405. The New York City bank is associated with the Chicago and Kansas City Joint Stock Land Banks and its new issue of bonds is priced at 104¼ to yield 4.45 per cent. to the optional date, 1935, and 5 per cent. thereafter to maturity in 1955.

Utility Issue.

Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., are offering a new issue of $1,500,000 Binghamton Light, Heat and Power Company first refunding mortgage 5 per cent. gold bonds due Feb. 1, 1946, at 97 to yield 5.25 per cent. The bonds are secured by a first mortgage on the company's property and franchises with the exception of a small property recently acquired on which they are a direct mortgage subject to $201,000 underlying bonds. The power and light company is controlled by the General Gas and Electric Corporation. For the twelve months ended last Feb. 28, the company reported gross earnings of $1,545,640 and net earnings before depreciation of $804,736.

Austin, Grant & Co., Inc., and E. J. Van Ingen & Co. are offering $314,000 Birmingham, Ala., 5 and 5½ per cent. bonds and $360,000 Mobile, Ala., 5 per cent. street improvement bonds. The Birmingham 5s are due 1940, 1941 and 1950 and are priced to yield 4.30 per cent.; the 5½s are due 1929-1935 and are priced to yield 4.10 to 4.25 per cent., and the Mobile 5s are due May 1, 1928-1935, and are priced to yield 4 to 4.30 per cent.

P. W. Chapman & Co. will offer next week a new issue of $1,800,000 Allerton-Cleveland Building first mortgage leasehold 6½ per cent. sinking fund gold bonds, due May 1, 1945. The building is one of the Allerton group and its location is on Chester Avenue and East Thirteenth Street, near the centre of Cleveland. Completed, it will have sixteen stories, of which the third to fifteenth will be devoted to living quarters.

Dillon, Read & Co. announced yesterday that their offering of $10,000,000 Commercial Investment Trust Corporation 5 per cent. serial gold notes had been placed and subscription books closed.

Spend more than you earn . . and still have more than you spend

One of our good customers startled us recently with this statement: "I expect to be able to spend more than I earn — and still have more than I spend."

Then he said he was depending on us to make it possible.

"Right now, of course, I spend less than I earn," he said. "There is $2,000 of my yearly income left after comfortable living expenses. I could spend it easily and not know just where it had gone. But I invest in some of your bonds each six months. They average around 5½ per cent, and I reinvest the interest as it comes due.

"Before eight years have gone I'll have a safe and sure outside income of $1,000 a year. In 25 years that income will be over $6,000 a year. Then I'll be able to spend more than I earn—there's a great deal of pleasure in anticipating it.... and I'll still have more than I spend because the principal remains intact."

You can follow this same happy policy, whether you earn $5,000 a year or $50,000. Compound interest and Compton investment service are impartial benefactors.

Most interesting facts about the speed and certainty of the growth of money are contained in "The Way to Wealth." We would like to send it to you. Write for Booklet A-2.

Mr. H. F. Stratton, President of the Company, has furnished the following information in a letter to the bankers:

COMPANY AND PRODUCTS: The Electric Controller & Manufacturing Co., Cleveland, Ohio, incorporated under the laws of Ohio in 1899, manufactures many forms of electrical apparatus, including automatic controllers, automatic compensators, lifting magnets, switches, motors, starters, rheostats, etc., for use in steel mills, automobile plants, machine shops, etc. The "Dinkey" controller, which is practically standard equipment for overhead cranes in rolling mills, is one of the Company's best known products. The Company designed and manufactured the first commercial lifting magnet.

CUSTOMERS: The Company's customers include practically all of the leading steel companies, several railroads and outstanding manufacturers in other fields. Among these customers are: American Steel & Wire Co., Carnegie Steel Co., Illinois Steel Co., Inland Steel Co., Jones & Laughlin Steel Co., National Tube Co., Bethlehem Steel Co. subsidiares, Wheeling Steel Corp., Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., U. S. Cast Iron Pipe & Foundry Co., Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co., Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Co., Pennsylvania Railroad Co., Babcock & Wilcox Co., By-Products Coke Corp., Ford Motor Co., Packard Motor Co., International Nickel Co., Lehigh Portland Cement Co., and National Enameling & Stamping Co. The Company has a total of approximately 500 accounts on its books.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS: The Company's average annual net earnings, as audited by Ernst & Ernst, certified public accountants, for the nine-year period ended December 31, 1924, after all charges including dividends on Preferred Stock now outstanding and allowance for Federal Taxes at the present current rate, were $497,658.88 or $8.36 per share of Common Stock now outstanding. Such average net earnings for the last three years of this period were $553,613.95 or $9.37 per share. During this nine-year period the Company paid in cash dividends an average of $5.66 per share of Common Stock now outstanding. The stock is now on a $5.00 annual dividend basis, payable $1.25 per share quarterly, January 1, April 1, July 1 and October 1.

Orders for the first quarter of 1925 were at an annual rate to yield profits for the current year substantially in excess of the average earnings per share for the last three years as given above.

ASSETS AND FINANCIAL CONDITION: The Company's balance sheet as of December 31, 1924, audited by Ernst & Ernst, shows a book value for the Common Stock of $30.32 per share and a net current asset value of $24.88 per share. The total value of the Company's properties as appraised by the American Appraisal Company as of June 30, 1923, less subsequent depreciation, is approximately $1,900,000. Giving effect to this appraisal, the book value of the Common Stock would be $48.97 per share.

Current assets are $1,655,255.26 or 7½ times current liabilities of $215,132.74. Included in current assets are United States Treasury Notes and Federal Land Bank Bonds to the amount of $732,291.00, including accrued interest.

Application will be made to list these shares on the New York Curb Market. Listed on the Cleveland Stock Exchange.

We offer this stock when, as and if received by us and subject to the approval of counsel.

Price $62.50 Per Share

ILLINOIS MERCHANTS TRUST COMPANY, CHICAGO, TRUSTEE

Company Mountain States Power Company owns and operates four groups of utilities in Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho, and is now acquiring the electric properties in Wyoming formerly owned by the Natrona Power Company. The Company's System, including the properties now being acquired, furnishes, without competition, electric, gas and other services to over 35,700 customers in fifty-seven communities having estimated population of over 275,000.

Properties The Company has a total present installed electric generating capacity of more than 26,300 horsepower, of which 5,250 horsepower is hydro-electric. It also purchases, under favorable contracts, steam and hydro-electric energy, including a contract, expiring in 1952, for the purchase of 16,000 hydro-electric horsepower, which as needed may be increased to 24,000 horsepower. The electric transmission and distribution systems aggregate 755 miles of pole lines. The gas plants have a total daily manufacturing capacity of 5,330,000 cubic feet and there are 429 miles of mains. The above figures include the properties of Natrona Power Company, which have generating capacity of approximately 7,000 horsepower and over 71 miles of high-tension transmission and distribution lines, serving power and light to over 6,700 customers.

Earnings Net earnings of the properties for the 12 months ended March 31, 1925, were more than twice the annual interest requirements on $1,787,000 Series "A," and $6,434,000 Series "B" First Mortgage Gold Bonds outstanding, including this issue. During the five years ended December 31, 1924, net earnings of the properties to be directly owned increased over 74%. Approximately 71.6% of the present net earnings of the properties in the System, to be directly owned, is derived from the sale of electric power and light, 21.2% from gas and 7.2% from the sale of miscellaneous services.

Security These Bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a first mortgage on the entire property of the Company directly owned, including properties of the Natrona Power Company now being acquired. The value of the property of the Company to be directly owned is estimated to be in excess of twice the amount of First Mortgage Bonds outstanding and those about to be issued.

Purpose of Issue Proceeds from the sale of these $2,000,000 First Mortgage 6% Gold Bonds, Series "B," will be used in part to reimburse the Company for additions and extensions heretofore made to its properties, including acquirement of the properties of the Natrona Power Company which serve electric power and light to the city of Casper, Wyoming, and suburbs.

All legal matters pertaining to this issue are subject to the approval of Messrs. Chickering and Gregory, of San Francisco, for the Bankers, and Messrs. Cummins, Rosmer, and Flynn, of Chicago, for the Company. Permanent Bonds of the Company are expected to be available for delivery on or about May 8, 1925.

CLOSES CONTRACTS FOR DODGE SHARES

Some Dealers Forced to Buy in the Open Market to Meet Clients' Orders.

The New York Stock Exchange called yesterday for the settlement of contracts on a "when issued" basis in the case of new shares of Dodge Brothers, Inc. The contracts for the preference stock, which carries a bonus of Class A common stock, were settled by the delivery of interim receipts for preference stock allotment certificates. Attention was called by the Committee on Securities to the New York State transfer tax of $4 and the Federal transfer tax of the same amount, which should accompany each 100 shares.

Contracts for Dodge Brothers, Inc., 6 per cent. gold debentures, due 1940, on a "when issued" basis must be settled today by the delivery of interim receipts. Accrued interest from April 15 to April 23 will amount to $1.3333 per $1,000 bond.

In anticipation of this operation there has been considerable activity in the Dodge Brothers, Inc., preference shares. Some dealers who found themselves after the public offering with fewer shares than they had committed themselves to sell were obliged to step into the open market to purchase the securities with which to meet their clients' orders. Others who had speculated on the short side in expectation of a decline in price when the common stock was separated from the preference shares in the original offering unit were among the purchasers.

Both the common and the preference shares were steady yesterday, the preference shares closing at 100, the offering price, after an advance of one-eighth of a point, and the common stock closing at 23½, off one-eighth of a point.

TO SPEND $15,000,000 TO PIPE COLOMBIA OIL

Andian National Corporation, in Selling $10,000,000 Bond Issue, Gives Details of Plans.

In connection with the public offering yesterday of $10,000,000 first mortgage fifteen-year 6 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds of the Andian National Corporation, Ltd., which were sold soon after the subscription books were opened by Jesup & Lamont of 26 Broadway, details of the proposed operations of this company were made known.

The company has a concession from the Colombian Government for the laying of a 350-mile pipe line paralleling the Magdalena River from Cartagena Harbor to the producing oil fields in that country. The company also has a concession covering harbor facilities at Cartagena, giving to it the exclusive right to operate wharves, warehouses and other terminal facilities in the harbor. The company already owns all wharves and warehouses now operating in the harbor and nineteen miles of harbor front property. The proceeds from the sale of the bonds, together with $5,000,000 raised from the sale of common stock, will be used for the laying of the pipe line and harbor improvements.

In connection with the financing and the laying of the pipe line, the announcement said:

"The Tropical Oil Company (which will be served by the pipe line) is developing a concession covering 2,000,000 acres in the Republic of Colombia; the time elapsed since its acquisition has permitted the exploration of only a small part of this concession, but competent geologists have estimated the potential production of such explored portion at more than 70,000,000 barrels. The present production is at the rate of about 6,000,000 barrels per annum and drilling is being conducted at a rate which indicates a production of some 10,000,000 barrels per annum at the earliest date at which adequate transportation to a seaboard terminal can be provided. The Tropical Oil Company has up to date expended in development work and in laying foundations for large future development in excess of $30,000,000.

"In addition to serving the areas now being opened by the Tropical Oil Company, the company's pipe line will tap practically all present potential petroleum areas in Colombia in which development operations are being conducted by a number of important American and British companies."

The Board of Directors of the Andian National Corporation, Ltd., is made up of Sir Herbert Holt, President Royal Bank of Canada; Hugo Baring, London; Sir Augustus Nanton, President Dominion Bank, Toronto; J. C. Donnell, President Ohio Oil Company; G. W. Carpenter of Jesup & Lamont; M. Maurice Reyer, director Banque de Paris et des Pays Bas, Paris; Dr. Carlos Uruetia, former Colombian Minister to the United States; G. Harrison Smith, President International Petroleum Company, Ltd.; C. E. Neill, general manager Royal Bank of Canada; D. O. Towl, Toronto.

STOCK INCREASE APPROVED.

American Steel Foundries Earnings for Quarter Rise.

Stockholders of the American Steel Foundries Company have approved the proposal of the directors to increase the authorized common stock from 750,000 shares of $33.333 par value to 1,000,000 shares of no par value. The stock will be exchanged on the basis of five shares of the new common for four shares of the old. The balance of the increased common will remain undisposed of for the present. The change in stock holdings is in effect a 25 per cent. stock dividend on the present common stock.

The company for the first quarter of 1925 reported net income of $1,326,636, which, after regular preferred dividends, was equal to $1.70 a share earned on the common capital stock outstanding. This compares with net income of $909,932, equal to $1.04 a share on the common stock, reported in the first quarter of last year.

Refrigerating Machine Orders.

Orders for refrigerating machines received during the first quarter of the year by the Serv-El Corporation amounted to $750,000, the company announced yesterday. Delivery in the first quarter increased 50 per cent. over the final quarter of 1924.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Charles H. Jones of Charles H. Jones & Co. has been elected a director of the Hale & Kilburn Corporation.

The American Trust Company has been appointed corporate trustee for an issue of $470,000 first mortgage 6½ per cent. gold bonds, due 1945, of the Georgia Hydro-Electric Company.

The United States Corporation Company has reprinted for distribution important amendments for 1925 to the Delaware corporation laws.

The Bank of America, New York, has been appointed trustee under $1,750,000 issue of Detroit and Buffalo Post Offices' Corporation first mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds, due 1935.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

A generally easier tone was discernible in the foreign exchange market yesterday, although in some spots—notably the Scandinavians and Swiss documents—slightly higher levels were reached. Losses in other Continentals did not run very far, and were representative more of profit-taking on top of the recent rise than to anything untoward in the news.

Sterling was firm at the close at $4.79¼, unchanged from Tuesday, but French francs sagged about four points to 5.17¾ cents, and the Belgian bill a point to 5.64 cents. Italian and Spanish were moderately lower, but renewed demand for the Scandinavians carried Danish bill up seven points to 18.44 cents, and Norway three points to 16.30 cents. Swiss franc improved a point to 19.35 cents.

Far Easterns and South Americans were dull and unchanged.

Lion Oil Brings in New Well.

The Lion Oil and Refining Co. brought in a new 3,500 barrel well in the Smackover field in Arkansas, according to a telegram received yesterday by H. D. Williams & Co. According to the information the salt water stories coming out of Smackover "are greatly exaggerated." Drillers, it was added, frequently misjudge the lower sand and drill too deep, with the result that they get salt water. This has always been characteristic of the Smackover field.

American Zinc's Earnings Up.

April Disappointing to Operators in Volume of New Business Developed.

INGOT OUTPUT ABOUT 75%

Iron and steel authorities agree that the ratio of operations in the industry is lower than at the end of last week. They comment that recessions in prices of key products are rather more pronounced than in the immediate past.

The Iron Trade Review says: "April proved disappointing to iron and steel producers in the volume of new business developed, and the weight of the record-breaking tonnage delivered in the first three months still is on the market. Consumption, according to all reports, has not changed appreciably since 30 to 60 days ago, but buyers seem to have met their initial wants and are adding to their tonnage only as pressed to do so by new requirements. Furthermore, the easier tone in prices apparently is the factor strongly influencing the continuance of piecemeal buying.

"It is now more evident that price advances in finished steel during January and early February were premature, for these have not held, and the market is now back to the November-December basis, when the heavy buying wave appeared.

"Five additional blast furnaces have been put out in the Pittsburgh district and another at Chicago. Carnegie Steel Company's activities are at the lowest point since January. The general average of ingot output is around 75 per cent."

The Iron Age says: "The Carnegie Steel Company has dropped from 85 per cent. to 75 per cent. in its rate of ingot production, while independent companies at Pittsburgh and Youngstown are close to 70 per cent. The Steel Corporation as a whole is now below 85 per cent. and the average for the industry is put at 77, as against 92 for the actual rate of March.

"New buyig is put at 85 to 90 per cent. of current shipments of leading companies having varied lines of products. Quiet as the past two weeks have been, not a few mills have had better booking than in the same period in March. Consumers are following market changes closely, but their operations in some cases are calling for more rather than less steel."

WEEK AN IDEAL ONE IN THE COTTON BELT

Weather Generally Favorable, Too, for Corn Planting, but Less So for Seeding.

The weekly weather report of the Department of Agriculture issued at Washington yesterday in part follows:

"Very little rainfall, high temperatures for the season and ample sunshine made ideal weather for field work throughout the cotton belt. Where it was too dry planting made excellent advance and early planted cotton has mostly come up to a good stand in the central and eastern portion of the belt. The drought was still prevalent in Texas, with a further delay in planting, and both progress and condition of cotton already planted were poor except in the extreme south and the northeast; chopping was advancing in the south with some squares appearing. Planting advanced satisfactorily in Oklahoma. Germination is reported as only fair in Arkansas because of lack of moisture.

"In Mississippi considerable cotton was up but stands are rather unsatisfactory, while in Alabama cotton more recently planted needs moisture for proper germination. Conditions are generally favorable in Tennessee and Georgia chopping has begun and is completed in the southern division of Georgia, chopping out began in the south. Cotton is up to a good stand in the lower counties of South Carolina and planting made good advance in North Carolina.

"With favorable weather for field work corn planting advanced northward to the Middle Atlantic States, Southwestern Ohio, North Central Illinois, extreme Southern Iowa and Southeastern Nebraska. Conditions were mostly favorable for early planted corn east of the Mississippi River, but drought was unfavorable in the southern transmississippi States, especially in Oklahoma and Texas, with seeding further delayed in the latter and progress and condition of the crop mostly poor to only fair in the former State."

PREPARE TO MOVE CROPS.

Confirming a report that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company is in the market for 5,500 freight cars, H. E. Bryam, one of the three receivers of the road, said yesterday in Chicago that these cars would be received in time for the Fall crop movement.

"Receipt of this equipment will partially relieve what has been our most pressing problem—shortage of freight cars," he said. "These cars, which will be financed by equipment trust notes, will be the only ones ordered this year. As yet we have not mapped out any general policy of capital expenditure.

"Since the receivership our patrons have shown toward us most gratifying sympathy and cooperation and our traffic has been unaffected. At that time we had no bank loans and no large amount of current indebtedness.

"The crop outlook in the St. Paul territory is excellent. Seeding was three weeks earlier than usual and this means that wheat should escape both rust and the hot winds usually prevalent just when it is heading out. The outlook is particularly favorable east of the Rockies, while Washington, which has suffered from drought, now has sufficient moisture."

Car and Foundry Stock Changed.

TRENTON, N. J., April 22.—The American Car & Foundry Company today filed with the Secretary of State here an amend ment certificate of incorporation changing its issue of 300,000 shares of common stock at a par value of $100 a share to 600,000 shares with no par value. The 300,000 shares of preferred stock, par at $100, remain unchanged.

C. & O. to Buy Shelby Valley Line.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., April 22.—Garrett B. Wall, Vice President of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, in a statement to the Herald-Dispatch here today, announced that the road would exercise an option to purchase the Shelby Valley & Elk Horn Railroad. The consideration was not made public. Mr. Wall said the Chesapeake & Ohio would consolidate the Shelby Valley line with its Big Sandy division, in the coal fields of Eastern Kentucky.

Anthracite Output Declined.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 22.—Figures made public today at the Department of Mines showed that anthracite production in Pennsylvania declined more than 5,000,000 tons in 1924 compared with 1923. The production in 1924 was 87,277,440 tons, against 92,663,854 tons in 1923.

Barnet Leather Co. Earnings.

TO OPPOSE LEASING OF VIRGINIAN RAILWAY

State Commission to Contend That It Would Affect Development of Hampton Roads Port.

RICHMOND, Va., April 22.—The Virginia State Corporation Commission will oppose the leasing of the Virginian Railway by the Norfolk & Western when the question is brought before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The commission will base its opposition on the grounds that the consolidation would not result in the proper development of the port of Hampton Roads. A petition to that effect was filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission March 13, when the Virginia commission objected to the four-system plan of consolidation proposed by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The petition declared the plan "would consolidate the Virginian Railway with the Norfolk & Western and the latter in turn with the Pennsylvania system.

"Domination of the Norfolk & Western heretofore by the Pennsylvania Railroad through stock ownership," it said, "has resulted in a concentration upon the handling of coal traffic by the Norfolk & Western. And so far as export, import and coastwise merchandise traffic is concerned, the policy of the Norfolk & Western has not tended to develop the port of Hampton Roads."

The Corporation Commission also voiced objection to the leasing of the Virginian to the Chesapeake & Ohio. It suggested that the road be connected with the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton, owned by the Ford interests, or with the New York Central.

In an announcement of plans for the united development and operation of the two roads, A. C. Needles, President of the Norfolk & Western, said they did not serve the same mines or compete as coal carriers.

"There is a junction point," he said, "and others can readily be developed in the coal fields as interchange points for an outlet via the Norfolk & Western to the Lakes and the Northwest for coal originated on the Virginian."

Electrification of the Virginian from the coal fields in West Virginia to Roanoke, Va., he said, would soon be completed.

KENNECOTT COPPER PLAN.

Charter Change Proposed to Permit Wider Operations.

Stockholders of the Kennecott Copper Company at the annual meeting to be held May 5 will be asked to vote upon certain changes in its charter which would permit the corporation to carry on business in the Continental United States and foreign countries. The present charter reads so that the company must confine its operations "in the district of Alaska."

Kennecott at the present time owns a controlling interest in the Utah Copper Company which operates in this country, and virtually all of the stock of the Braden Copper Company, which operates in South America. The proposed change, it is understood, would enable the company to carry on development work and acquire properties on a broader scale than in the past.

FLURRY IN MANILA POWER.

Rumors that interests identified with the American and Foreign Power Company were accumulating shares of the Manila (P. I.) Electric Corporation shot up the market price of these shares on the Stock Exchange yesterday to a new high level of 48¾. This was a gain of 11½ points from Tuesday's lowest. At yesterday's closing price of 45½ the stock was up 5½ points on the day.

Officers of the J. G. White Management Corporation, which manages the Philippine property, could throw no light on the reasons for the spurt, and pointed out that there were no negotiations under way looking to a transfer of the property. More than 16,000 shares changed hands yesterday on the Exchange.

OFF THE CURB TRADING LIST

Nine Additional Companies Dropped by the Exchange.

The New York Curb Exchange has dropped nine additional companies from its list of corporations entitled to trading privileges. The action was taken because the companies had failed to comply with the Exchange rules on assessments. The companies dropped were: Nevada Hills Reorganized Mining Co., Divide Consolidated Mining Co., Cedar Talisman Consolidated Mines Co., Cardiff Mining and Milling Co., Big Consolidated Copper Co., Davis-Daly Copper Co., Caledonia Mining Co. and Best and Belcher Mining Co.

C. & O. EARNINGS INCREASE.

Net Income $12,101,070, Against $8,979,430 in 1923.

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Company, one of the five roads included in the Van Sweringen Nickel Plate merger, reports substantial gains in gross and net earnings for 1924 as compared with the year preceding.

Net income amounted to $12,101,070, against $8,979,430 in 1923, operating revenue $108,033,448, an increase of 5.94 per cent, and operating expenses were $82,781,702. The latter was an increase of 4.93 per cent.

MAY WHEAT AT $1.56 IS HIGHEST IN WEEK

HEAVY RYE SALES REPORTED

Wheat Exports Up to March Were Close to Estimates of Total to July.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 22.—The grain markets had a better tone, with wheat in the lead. The May is becoming harder to buy, with, it is said, the bulk of the buying being for the covering of shorts.

May wheat reached the best price in more than a week with $1.56⅜ the highest and the close 1 cent under that figure. July closed at $1.43¼ to $1.43⅝, or 1 cent under the top. September was $1.35½ to $1.35⅝.

Spring wheat in the Northwest is doing better and premiums at Duluth were advanced 1 cent. Chicago cash handlers bought 410,000 bushels of wheat at Duluth and will bring it here for delivery on May contracts. There is very little No. 1 Northern Spring wheat here and it brings a good premium over the May. Red Winter wheat is scarce, with sales of No. 3 at $1.72½, or 20 cents over the May. The seaboard sold 400,000 bushels for export.

The Indian crop report is strongly bullish and the New South Wales has been reduced to 59,700,000 bushels, from 60,800,000 last year.

It has been estimated that the United States would export 250 000,000 bushels for the crop season ended July 1, 1925. Up to the end of March exports aggregated 221,659,000 bushels — 91,000,000 bushels more than last year. The March exports were 16,260,000 bushels against 9,378,000 last year. The United States and Canada have exported 27,000,000 in March, against 31,442,000 last year.

Duluth is selling rye to Montreal and export clearances are running heavy. For the week they are 2,301,000 bushels, yet there is plenty of rye left.

Corn receipts today were 350,000 bushels; a week ago, 234,000; last year, 606,000, and shipments, 660,000 bushels; last week, 575,000; last year, 828,000.

Henry J. Fuller of Aldred & Co. has been elected President of Rolls-Royce of America, Inc., succeeding L. J. Beinap, whose term has expired. Mr. Fuller will also be Chairman of the board. W. L. Wright, President of the Savage Arms Company, has been elected a director.

$231,000,000 GAIN IN GRAIN EXPORTS

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The value of exports of grain and grain products during the nine months ended March, 1925, was $231,000,000 more than in the same period a year ago, according to an analysis made public today by the Department of Commerce. The exports for these periods were worth $431,454,000 and $200,367,000, respectively. It is shown that more than 102,000,000 bushels more of wheat and nearly 22,000,000 bushels more of rye were exported.

The export outlook for the farmer was not good a year ago with prices of wheat and other important grains at a low level and reports coming in that the production of wheat was being increased in Europe and Canada and that the demand for American products was threatened with severe restriction. Failure of the world crops to meet expectations, however, put a new face on the situation during the later months of 1924 and early in 1925, as reflected by the figures set forth.

Exports for March, 1925, alone amounted to more than $69,000,000, or nearly $21,750,000 more than for the same month of 1924. The bulk of this increase was attributed to the increased quantity and value of wheat exports. The value of wheat exported in March, 1925, was nearly $16,000,000 greater than in March, 1924, and for the nine months ended March, 1925, the value was nearly $187,000,000 greater than for the corresponding period last year.

The value of exports of corn for the nine months' period just ended was more than $8,000,000 less than for the corresponding period of 1924; of rice, $3,675,000 less; of rye, flour and oat meal, more than $1,000,000 less in each case. Other losses were corn flour, $110,000; hominy, $134,000, and cereal breakfast food not elsewhere specified, $322,000. In March, 1925, the value of the corn grain exports was more than $2,500,000 less than for the same month of 1924; that of rice, $470,000 less.

The exports of feeds for the nine months' period ended March, 1925, amounted to $31,000,000, or $15,500,000 more than for the corresponding nine months of the previous year. The gain in value of exports of cottonseed cake and meal was $12,900,000, of linseed cake and meal $4,700,000. There was a small gain in the value of bran exports, $54,000, and in that of prepared feeds, $214,000. The value of the exports of screenings fell off $144,000. There was a loss in the exports of hops for the last nine months, compared to the same months last year, of nearly $1,700,000, but a gain in that of corn starch of $90,000.

In the case of every grain and edible grain product except macaroni the average export value per unit was greater for the nine months just ended than for the same period last year.

Buy Shale Oil Company.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., April 22.—A syndicate of Los Angeles capitalists yesterday bought the Continental Shale Oil Products Company, which operates a large plant near Santa Maria, this county, for $2,500,000. The sale carries title to patents perfected by the late Dr. David T. Day for the extraction of oil from shale.

COTTON MAKES GAIN ON ADVERSE NEWS

Nearly the Whole of the Producing Belt Reported Dry and in Need of Rain.

PLANT PROGRESS DELAYED

Instead of rains developing in the Southwest, nearly the entire cotton belt was dry, which caused a recovery of 13 to 17 points in prices yesterday. Only one station in Texas has reported any moisture during the past week, while Palestine, Texas, showed a maximum temperature of 100 degrees. In Arizona, on the other hand, temperatures were as low as 24 degrees, accompanied by heavy rainfall. The weekly weather report stated that progress and condition of the plant in Texas were poor except in the extreme southerly and northern portions of the State. In Arkansas germination was only fair, owing to lack of moisture, while in Mississippi stands are unsatisfactory, and in Alabama recently planted cotton needs moisture. The area wanting moisture to start the crop was larger than that indicated in the summary of a week ago.

With even less rain shown on the official weather map than on Tuesday and Liverpool prices higher than due, room covering advanced quotations 10 to 20 points at the opening of the market. During the running decline of the previous day a number of stop-loss orders were executed which reduced the amount of long cotton outstanding and professional covering strengthened prices during early trading. Later in the morning May liquidation and an unsettled stock market brought a setback and loss of the earlier upturn, October selling within 10 points of low levels of the week. This in turn reduced selling pressure, and failure of weather predictions to hold out any hope of immediate relief in drought sections stiffened prices after midday. While Liverpool remained open, foreign houses bought steadily against sales abroad, the advance in sterling increasing arbitrage operations. At the same time trading between New York and New Orleans continued heavier than usual. Transactions in July and December between the two Exchanges reached substantial proportions, though the volume of outside business proved light. An improvement in the stock market and a resumption of buying for foreign account advanced prices the last hour to high levels of the session, with steadiness in final trading.

AMERICAN SHEET AND TIN.

Books for Plate Delivery in Third Quarter Are Opened.

The American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, has opened its books for the delivery of tin plate during the third quarter of the year, according to The Daily Metal Trade. Prices quoted are unchanged at $5.50 a box of 100 pounds.

In order to meet competition, it is reported that the American Steel and Wire Company has reduced wire nail prices to 2.75 cents a pound and plain wire to 2.50 cents a pound, these prices being about $4 a ton below previous official quotations. The actual reduction in price, it was pointed out, was only $2 per ton, as business was being done on the basis of $2 per ton below the official posted price. Wire rods were quoted unchanged at $48 per gross ton.

END RUSSIAN RELIEF WORK.

American Students Cease Efforts, but Near East Body Continues.

MOSCOW, April 22 (Associated Press). —All active American relief work in Russia, with the exception of the Caucasus area, ceased today with the withdrawal of the American Students' Relief organization from Moscow.

Foreign relief assistance no longer is needed, the Soviet Government has declared, as the Government now believes itself able to administer to the needs of the special classes formerly aided by the American students' organization. This decision does not affect the Near East Relief, which is caring for many thousands of Armenian orphans in the Caucasus, nor will it alter the agricultural and industrial work conducted on a small scale by Quakers and Mennonites.

The students' organization in the past three years, largely supported by students of colleges and universities throughout the United States, has provided 8,000,000 meals, 25,000 Russian textbooks and journals, $500,000 in cash and thousands of garments and shoes for needy Russian intellectuals.

Mme. Kameney, Chairman of the Commission for Cultural Relations, has expressed the Soviet Government's deep appreciation for the work of the students' relief organization to A. J. Frederickson, the American director.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Charles M. Krebs and Samuel Krebs have resigned as President and Director, respectively, of Krebs & Adolph, Inc., manufacturers of children's dresses, and are no longer connected with the firm. They will shortly begin manufacturing under the style of Samuel Krebs Company.

S. M. Lever & Co., Inc., 354 Fourth Avenue, effective May 1, have been appointed sole selling agents for McBride Brothers, Fullerton, Pa., manufacturers of high grade broad silks. This production was hitherto sold through Mittenthal Company.

Beginning next Monday Jacob Mittenthal Company, resident buyers, will be located in larger quarters in the Wilson Building, 1,270 Broadway, Suites 1016-17-18.

The name of the Thatcher Furnace Company, Newark, has been changed to the Thatcher Company, owing to the greater number of products other than furnaces which it now manufactures.

The formal showings of Fall fabrics to be held today and tomorrow by the Gera Mills will be private and tickets of admission will be required.

Retailers Are Paying Well.

Reports from the local dry goods jobbing trade indicate that payments for Spring merchandise on the part of retailers have been generally up to expectations. The credit man for one prominent wholesale house here said yesterday that he was agreeably surprised by the way the money has been coming in since April 10, which is the Spring due date. However, he said that anticipation had been none too heavy, it having been confined entirely to the larger stores able to get bank accommodations at better than 6 per cent. So far the poorest showing has been made by the retailers located in the Northwest and Middle West, he added, with payments coming in most freely from the South.

Gingham Outlook Is Good.

The completion of the trips of salesmen for local commission houses that handle ginghams finds the advance business taken for Fall to compare very favorably with that of last year. The great bulk of the business so far has been on fancy dress ginghams, but that is usually the case early in the season. Jobbers' salesmen will all be out on the road in another week or ten days. For that matter, some of them are out now and are doing well. In another three weeks or so first hands expect to see the results of the work of these men in the shape of repeat orders placed by the latters' employers. National Gingham Week, which is now on, is also expected to produce a good demand on the jobbers, by the retailers, for fabrics with which to fill in broken lines.

Primary Market Is Dull.

For the most part there is very little of interest shown in the local market for cotton goods at the present time. Woven and printed novelties in the lighter fabrics, especially those containing some silk or artificial silk, are moving most freely from all accounts. There is little snap to the demand for heavy goods, and this applies to denims, despite the quiet cut of a cent a yard in them that has been made in the last few days. So far, at least, neither the cutters nor the jobbers have responded to the reduction with any fervor. In the other coarser cottons there is a fair filling-in business told of on tickings, but it is nothing that can be called active. The adversities of cotton are held responsible for the general quiet.

Gray Goods Show No Snap.

Although there was a fair amount of inquiry in the local gray goods market yesterday, particularly for print cloths, there was no business of real importance. Actual sales of print cloths included some May deliveries of 38½ inch 64-60s at 9½ cents and 39-inch 68-72s for June at 11¼ cents. These goods had sold at 11 cents for the delivery, but some sellers are now asking 11¼ cents for them. They are reported to have sold late Tuesday afternoon in a good sized way at 10 7-8 cents for shipment in July and August. Among the limited sheeting sales of the day were those of 36-inch 4.70s at 8⅝ cents. The best that could be done for 36-inch 5.50s was 9⅝ cents, for some houses holding at 9¾ cents. Thirteen cents was paid in Fall River for some 37½-inch 4.37-yard sateens. Pajama checks were held on the basis of 10½ cents for the 72-80s with little, if any, trading.

Although salesmen representing the makers of the better lines of men's shoes are now in their various territories after Fall business, there is very little of it being placed from all accounts. Buying is being done in a fairly cautious manner by the retailers, but the great bulk of the orders call for deliveries in the next thirty days or so. The outlook for the new season is considered bright despite the higher market for leather that has necessitated some small advances in the finished articles. For the most part, however, these increases have not been large enough to warrant their being passed on to consumers. In the new lines brogue effects, both in wide and medium toes, are seen for wear by the type of youth who affects wide-bottomed trousers, while for the man of more conservative taste there is a further playing up of the custom-made idea that was so noticeable this Spring. Light tans are still in the ring.

Notion Merchandising Plan.

How the Shephard Stores of Boston tackled the problems of their notions department was outlined yesterday by H. B. Bosworth, merchandise manager, at a meeting of the National Notion Association at the Hotel McAlpin. Through the application of systematic and efficient merchandising of the department, he said, notion sales have gained 15 per cent. Duplication of stocks and elimination of old and slow-selling merchandise, according to Mr. Bosworth, were two of the main provisions of policies that were made. Thus a new basic stock was created, to which new items which had a proved demand were added and concentrated upon. He stressed the need of complete stocks, the governing element being the necessity of having what the customer expects to find, particularly where the retail stores are closely grouped. The "open to buy" policy of the store, he added, was flexible and the buyer was enabled to take advantage of new trends and items. Creating new wants by the customer, Mr. Bosworth said, keeps the business alive. The policy of his firm was to hold two sales a year, one at the start of the Spring and the other at the beginning of Fall. To these were added special offerings from time to time to attract new customers to the store in the normal growth of population of the city.

Summer Millinery Retail Date.

May 18 has been selected as the uniform date for the opening at retail of the Summer millinery season, it was announced yesterday by Alfred Fantl, President of the Retail Millinery Association, Inc. This is two weeks later than the date of May 4 recently chosen for the start of the wholesale season. Telegrams, Mr. Fantl said, are being sent to all members of the association, advising them of the date and asking their full cooperation in giving the Summer millinery season a uniform and successful start. The two weeks period between the two dates, he pointed out, will allow ample time for buyers to see the new lines and prepare themselves for the uniform showing throughout the country.

Old Goods Must Not Be Buried.

Costly errors are frequently made by stock clerks in retail stores in the placing of new goods on top of similar merchandise which has been in the store for some time, according to experience related yesterday. The relator was a prominent manufacturer of rubber goods, who said that he was recently being shown through a well-known out-of-town store by an executive who prided himself on its efficient working. The manufacturer went into the stock room, and, being naturally interested in his own goods, went to where they were located. To his surprise, upon taking off the newly arrived boxes of merchandise he discovered goods at the bottom which had been shipped by him more than two years before. The store executive was perturbed, to say the least. The necessity of having old merchandise, particularly items subject to deterioration, go to the sales counters before newly arrived goods, the manufacturer said, has now been impressed on the stock clerks of this store at any rate.

Raw Silk Situation.

The activity in the raw silk market at Yokohama over the last week-end has not continued and trading has again become quiet, with slight concessions obtainable. Yen exchange has also reacted slightly. The Bourse is now quoting futures, according to E. Gerli & Co., Inc., at somewhat higher prices than spot deliveries, this reflecting a better sentiment in Japan. In the local market the demand has been almost entirely confined to purchases for early delivery and for special sizes. High-grade silks, especially the 13 15 size, are bringing full prices. A fair business has also been done here in Canton silks, helped undoubtedly by the strong tone of the market in Canton. Reports are being made of labor troubles there which may delay the reeling of new season silks. The Italian and Chinese markets are quite bare of stocks and reelers are unwilling to commit themselves for the new season at prices lower than present levels.

$625,000 FOR FURS; BIDDING IS LIVELY

SOME PELTS UP 50 PER CENT.

300 Dealers, Manufacturers and Shippers on Hand—Auction to Continue Eight Days.

Red fox, badger, lynx and wildcat were the features of the opening sessions of the $5,000,000 auction of raw furs in the grand ballroom of the Hotel McAlpin yesterday. The sale, which will continue for eight more days, was attended by 300 dealers, manufacturers and shippers. So active was the bidding that, according to executives of Frederick Huth & Co., who are conducting the sale, approximately $625,000 was realized.

A collection of 3,700 Australian fox was the first offering by General Manager W. H. Bennet, the auctioneer. It moved with only fair snap and the best prize realized was $4.

An offering of 3,000 white fox brought fair bidding, but prices were 10 per cent. under those of the Winter sale. Bidding for the 1,750 badger offered was more active and a gain of 40 per cent. was scored. Eight hundred kitt foxes brought prices up to $3.30.

The chief attention was given to red fox, of which 32,000 were sold. The bidding for the various qualities was irregular, with many of the poorer skins, such as are cut up into trimmings, doing relatively better than the finer pelts. Dealers did most of the buying, though the fancier pelts went mostly to manufacturers. Alaskan, Western Canadian and foreign skins made the best showing in comparison with Winter prices.

After the red fox came 33,500 sundry fox. These furs moved irregularly, $6.50 being paid for the best. Lynx, while scarce and in very strong market position, brought out considerable competition. Only 1,500 were offered, and the best brought the second highest price of the day—$46.50. Wildcat also sold well, the prices paid for the 11,250 skins offered averaging 50 per cent. above the Winter levels.

	Highest Price	Advance. (P. C.)	Decline. (P. C.)
White fox	49.00	..	10
Badger	9.00	40	..
Alaska	..	5	..
Eastern Canadian	..	..	15
Northwestern	..	..	10
Northeastern	..	..	15
Eastern	..	..	15
Kit fox	3.30	†	..
Lynx	46.50	20	..

At today's sale the offerings will include cross fox, blue fox, fisher, leopard and leopard cats, sundry cats, Alaska seal, ermine, mole, otter, nutria and beaver. Bidding for practically all of these skins will be closely followed by the trade.

POLICE CAPTAIN ON TRIAL.

Newark Officer Accused of Failing to Enforce Liquor Law.

The trial of Police Captain Patrick Troy, commanding the fifth precinct in Newark, on charges of neglect of duty in failing to enforce the liquor law in his district, was begun yesterday before Commissioner of Public Safety William J. Brennan in Newark.

G. Rowland Monroe, counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, upon whose complaint Captain Troy was arraigned, said that the league and Federal authorities had padlocked a score of saloons in the Roseville section of Newark, which is in Troy's precinct, and against which no police action had been directed.

Charles S. Chevrier, a deputy clerk from the Federal Court at Trenton, testified to applying the padlocks. Under cross-examination Monroe admitted that the league had not reported cases of liquor law violations to the police but had gone directly to the Federal authorities. The trial will be continued on Saturday.

BREWERY WINS A POINT.

Court Dismisses Conspiracy Charge in Hauck Beer Case.

The Government's case against the Peter Hauck Brewery in Harrison, N. J., received a setback yesterday when Federal Judge Runyon in Newark quashed conspiracy indictments against the brewery and four individual defendants. The indictments charged conspiracy to manufacture, possess and transport beer.

Judge Runyon said the conspiracy indictments were ambiguous, as the brewery and the four defendants, Isadore Rappaport, Nathan Levy, Morris Siegel and William Hobby, are under other individual indictments for manufacturing, possessing and transporting the beer.

Weak Buyers Ones Who Criticise.

It is usually the weak buyer who criticizes the merchandise manager on the ground that the latter has cut or limited a buying appropriation, according to a prominent merchandise executive of one of the large stores here. Discussing the question yesterday, he said that in his experience ninety-nine out of a hundred successful buyers make no criticism of the limiting of buying appropriations where such action has been decided upon. It is the weak buyer, he added, who is prone to excuse himself on that ground and who disregards the fact that the curbing of an appropriation is done only after a careful study of the factors involved plus the experience of the merchandise executive, who is not occupying his position in the store through mere chance.

West Side Garage Sold.

Charles A. Miller sold to Joseph G. Abramson 239-241-243 West Sixty-eighth Street. This property, on a plot 75 by 100 feet, is improved with three three-story garages and was held at $150,000. It is free and clear and this is the first sale in twenty-eight years. The seller takes back a first mortgage of $100,000 at 5½ per cent. for ten years. Frederick Zittell & Sons, Inc., were the brokers in the transaction.

Banker Buys Ardsley Estate.

The country estate of Mrs. Netta B. Rochester, situated at Ardsley-on-Hudson, back on the hills on the easterly side of Broadway and fronting on the links of the Ardsley Club, has been purchased by Clifford B. Ewart of Chicago. The property comprises three acres of lawn, sloping down to a running brook and miniature trout pond, with a brick Colonial residence and three-car garage with chauffeur's quarters. It was held at $90,000 and the sale was made by Kenneth Ives & Co.

Dyckman Plot Changes Hands.

Ennis & Sinnott bought the northeast corner of Broadway and Sherman Avenue, in the Dyckman section, consisting of fourteen and one-half lots, from the heirs of Michael Connolly and Sigmund Rosenbaum. This is the first sale since 1869. The property was held at $125,000. Vols & Maas were the brokers.

BIG APARTMENT FOR WEST END AVENUE

Ninety-third Street Corner to Be Improved With a Fifteen-Story Structure.

PROJECT INVOLVES $2,500,000

West side property in the high-class apartment house section was again a strong factor in the real estate market yesterday when several important deals were closed.

One of the largest transactions, involving a $2,500,000 project, was the resale of the southeast corner of Ninety-third Street and West End Avenue by Ennis & Sinnott, operators, to Simon Brothers, operators and builders, as a site for a fifteen-story apartment house.

The property consists of a group of ten private dwellings, having a frontage of 101.5 feet on West End Avenue and 136 feet on Ninety-third Street.

There is about 13,800 square feet in the plot and the buyers have commissioned J. M. Felson, architect, to draw plans for a fifteen-story fireproof apartment house, with suites of four, five and six rooms and three baths, to cost about $2,500,000.

The structure will be ready for occupancy in the Summer of 1926.

The same buyers recently purchased the property at 241 to 249 West 103d Street, adjoining the northeast corner of West End Avenue, on plot 85 by 100.11 feet, for which they have had plans prepared by the same architect to erect a fifteen-story apartment hotel. This building will also be completed in the Summer of 1926 at a cost of about $1,500,000.

Irving A. and Edward N. Hartstein, who are associated with the Simon Brothers in these transactions, were the recent purchasers of Worth, Inc., a women's apparel enterprise, with large stores in New York, Brooklyn, Newark, N. J., and Hartford, Conn.

Quick West Side Resale

A quick resale of West Side property was made yesterday by Frederick Brown who owned the two five-story apartment houses at 3 and 5 West 102d Street, adjoining the Melba at the north corner of Central Park West and 102d Street in less than an hour. He sold the contract for the purchase of the two houses and in forty-five minutes had signed another contract selling them to a client of M. Carl Levine, who recently purchased from Mr. Brown the Melba and three adjoining apartment houses comprising the entire block front on Central Park West from 102d to 103d Streets. The Melba is six stories and the three adjoining it on the parkway are five stories. They have a frontage of 201.10 feet on Central Park West.

The two properties purchased yesterday are each twenty-seven feet wide which gives Mr. Levine's client control of the 154 feet of frontage on the north side of 102d Street. The 100.11 Street frontage of the property, which this man controls, is 100 feet deep. The property is to be held for development with a tall apartment.

The Hattie Realty Corporation purchased 156 to 160 West Eighty-first Street, a ten-story elevator apartment. The purchase price was within the neighborhood of $500,000. The rentals approximate $75,000. The buyers were represented by Breitbart & Breitbart, who also acted for the Saldor Holding Company, Inc., which purchased from Florence E. Fitch, 21 East Eightieth Street, a five-story apartment house. The rental is approximately $12,000 and the purchase price about $110,000.

Wellwin Realty Corporation, Wiener & Levine, operators, sold 19 West 106th Street, being two six-story apartment houses having a frontage of 60 by 100 feet, located in the Central Park section. The purchase price was in the neighborhood of $150,000, the rental about $18,000. The sellers were represented by Breitbart & Breitbart, who also acted for Harry Blinderman, Charles Steiner and Helman Weisner in the purchase of 180 to 186 Bruton Street, four five-story tenements. The price is about $200,000. It is the intention of the purchasers to erect a moving picture house on the site, at an outlay of about $500,000.

Harry Goodstein purchased 226-228 West Seventy-eighth Street, a six-story elevator apartment houses on a plot 50 by 102 feet, from the Goldsmith Metzger Corporation, who have owned this property since 1908. The property will be extensively improved by the buyer upon taking title. Harry S. Shapter, of J. C. Hough & Co., was the broker.

Louis F. Sommer, in conjunction with Ruth Morgenroth, sold for Hochberger & Horowitz the five-story apartment at 63 West 107th Street on a plot 37.6 by 100 feet. It was held for $70,000.

Max Natanson bought through the B. F. Knowles Company, for a client, the southwest corner of Ninth Avenue and Forty-eighth Street, known as 695-697 Ninth Avenue and 400-402 West Forty-eighth Street, three five-story brick buildings consisting of stores and apartments.

Francis X. O'Connell sold for Stephen McFarland to Louis Moscowitz the Garland apartments, a seven-story elevator apartment on a plot 50 by 100 feet, at 338 to 340 West Fifty-sixth Street. Same was held at $150,000.

The Beirose Realty Co. purchased from the Metzger-Goldschmidt Realty Corp. the six-story elevator apartment house, 226-8 West Seventy-sixth Street, on plot 50x100, renting for $26,000 and held at $175,000. J. C. Hough & Co. were the brokers.

Leo P. Walter sold for the Albard Realty Corporation to a client for investment, 208 East Forty-fifth Street, 25 by 100 feet, a five-story apartment, with stores.

BUYERS TO OCCUPY SUBURBAN HOMES

TWO NEWARK SITES SOLD

The sale of country homes featured yesterday's suburban realty transactions. The advent of warm weather has brought a continually increasing demand for out of town homes within commuting distance of the city. Many of the buyers will occupy.

Westchester and Long Island properties are especially sought for. Real estate activities, however, are not confind to residences, as brokers report business properties active on the market.

The Cooley Realty Company has sold the stone residence and garage known as "Gray Rocks," located in Aubyn Manor, Mount Vernon, for Mrs. J. C. Freund, to Mr. A. Walter Buhlmann. The land consists of one and two-thirds acres. The buyer plans extensive alterations, and will occupy the house as soon as the work is completed. The property was held at $65,000.

Harry G. Ballance sold through Murray E. Parks his English stucco home at Highbrook Avenue, Pelham, to J. D. Robb. The house contains ten rooms and was held at $33,000.

Harry T. F. Johnson sold for the Larchmont Development Company, M. Cherry, President, to a client for investment, the two-story store and office building at the northwest corner of Larchmont Avenue and Boston Post Road, Larchmont, having a frontage of 75 feet on Larchmont Avenue and 75 feet on the Post Road, containing nine offices and six stores. Building was held at $175,000.

Long Island Transactions.

Prince & Ripley sold a plot on Sound View Avenue, White Plains, to D. W. Swain. The same brokers also sold for George C. Buchtenkirk, the house just completed in the Edgemont section of Scarsdale, to Pliny F. Stewart. Mr. Stewart will occupy the house this Spring.

J. Albert Johntra, sold for Louis Kaplan the new two family dwelling on a plot 40 by 100 feet on the north side of Twenty-third Street, near Cypress Avenue, Flushing, to Charles Dolson. The new owner will occupy the second floor.

Hamilton, Iselin & Co. sold the property known as "Shadow Lawn" at Quogue, Long Island, for Constance W. Watson to Joseph H. Senior. The property, containing about 10 acres with residence, garage and stable, was formerly the home of the late Sherman Joost and was held at $45,000.

The Gleeson & Dolan Development Corporation, sold home sites in Garden City, Maps of Garden City Estates, Nassau Haven and Garden City Park to Adelaide B. Pickell, Frank J. Robb, John Sanders, Hugh J. May, John Fairweather, John Hall, Alois Assmair, and Anna Tursky.

Newark Sites Sold.

The General Real Estate and Mortgage Company sold 12 Mechanic Street, Newark for William Riker to Rose & Spanger. Also sold 14 Mechanic Street, Newark, for Mrs. T. Minor to Harry Augonblick. The purchasers plan commercial buildings for these sites.

An Interior — Landscaped Garden

For a "Country" Summer in the City

Your home is a New Garden Apartment, set down in a great landscaped garden, and facing on a wide parked street, welcoming the summer breezes.

For diversion and recreation you have the tournament tennis courts and the carefully maintained community clubhouse. For the children, the playgrounds are a welcome haven, relieving parents of worry and care. Good schools, private and public, are conveniently near.

If you are now paying $140 to $300 a month in rent, you can purchase, with a moderate down payment, a New Garden Apartment under the Jackson Heights Plan of 100% Co-operative Apartment Ownership and SAVE HALF YOUR RENT.

TO AND FROM THE SEABOARD
Save 30%
The Rutland-Lake Michigan Transit Company, well known Lake and Rail Route, announces an extension of its service, beginning May 1st, to include its new All-Water-Route from Chicago to Montreal without transhipment, via the St. Lawrence River.
This is the first all-water route from the middle west to shipside at tidewater, for merchandise of all kinds.
Sailing time from Chicago to Montreal is 6½ days. There are two sailings, eastbound and westbound, each week. Montreal is 250 miles closer to Liverpool than is New York and is the cheapest route to and from Europe. Customs clearances are completed at our docks, if you wish.
First sailing eastbound from Chicago May 1st and westbound from Montreal May 1st. Route your shipments—export and import—care Rutland-Lake Michigan All-Water-Route at once, and take advantage of this saving immediately.
